WIRE BRIEFS

Trail Feels Tremor

TRAIL (CP) — A light, 20-second earth tremor awakened several residents in this area early today but there were no reports of damage or injury. The rolling tremor started at 1:32 a.m.

Fire Kills Nine

GARY, Ind. (AP) — Nine persons were reported dead and 13 missing today in a fire that swept a group of buildings in Gary's predominently-Negro midtown section.

Famed Chateau Burns

PERIGUEUX, France (Reuters) — The showpiece 17th-century Chateau de Hautefort was virtually destroyed in a $2,000,000 fire today.

A valuable collection of furniture and tapestries was reported destroyed.

New Wage Offer

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — A statement today from Lakehead elevator companies said an immediate 53-cent-an-hour pay increase has been offered striking grain handlers.

Trudeau Sees More Cutbacks

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday there would be more spending cuts in government programs to help bring the budget into balance and to liberate funds for new and more productive program.

He had already announced that the government would drop the winter works program, introduced by the Diefenbaker government to reduce winter unemployment and continued from year to year under Prime Minister Pearson.

Thursday the government announced cancellation of the $22 million Queen Elizabeth observatory on Mount Kobau in B.C.

New cuts would come after cabinet approval, Mr. Trudeau said.

He gave no indication of the programs to be affected by further cuts but said they would be meant "to hurt some ministers and some departments."

Mr. Trudeau said this was necessary to make sure the cuts were not "just sham ones" and to convince ministers and their departments that new programs would be possible only if less productive ones were cut out.

"The purpose of them is to balance the budget as closely as we can this year," the prime minister said.

On other topics covered at his press conference Mr. Trudeau said:

Dates have been set, "not in the very distant future," for meetings with business and labor to discuss means of restraining wages and prices on which a government white paper is to be tabled at the coming session of Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau said that further consultations would come after the white paper.

Limited means of action, the prime minister said, made the problem very difficult for the federal government.

ISLAND ARMED HOLDUP NETS BANDITS $15,000

PORT McNEILL — Two armed holdup men are being sought in northern Vancouver Island after the wilderness holdup of a bank teller Friday.

The two men escaped with an estimated $15,000 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here, after overpowering a teller, RCMP said.

A search by the five-man Port Hardy detachment is being conducted by air, water and on the only road in the region.

The robbery was discovered about 3:15 p.m. when a passing driver found the teller, Gerald William Underdown, bound in the seat of his car.

Underdown was heading for the Kokish camp of the Crown Zellerback Company, on Beaver Cove, police said. The money was for a pay office run by the bank to cash month-end payroll cheques for camp employees.

Underdown was driving from the bank to the camp to open the office.

One of the holdup men flagged his car to a halt on the deserted road about six miles south of Port McNeill, sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. The second man appeared and Underdown was overpowered.

The men were armed with handguns, police said.

They drove the teller's car up the road — a private paved route which is the only main road in the area — and went up a sideroad.

Underdown was left tied up in his car while the two men made their escape. Police said they did not know if the escape was made by road — no car was seen.

PATROL BOATS

An officer of the detachment said the men may have left the holdup scene "by car or by boat."

Police said they were working on several possibilities as to where the two may have gone, but would release no further information.

The Port Hardy detachment is equipped with aircraft and three patrol boats. All will be used in the search.

Port McNeill is about 250 miles northwest of Victoria and accessible only by water or air. Port Hardy — the base for RCMP activities — is another 30 miles northwest. The holdup occurred about six miles southeast of Port McNeill.

Dance Riot Injures 12 Policemen

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Twelve policemen were injured, one by a gunshot, some young people and two newsmen hurt, in a five-hour flareup of violence late Friday and early today.

The violence broke out at a "soul music" dance and spread to the city Negro district.

Eleven policeman and some young people were injured when youths hurled rocks and bottles at the police. None was reported seriously injured.

Police patrolman Arnold Westphal, 54, was taken to hospital where he was described in "good condition with a bullet wound in his left shoulder."

The troubles began in the downtown St. Paul City Auditorium.

WAVED PISTOL

Two off-duty patrolmen at the concert were informed that a youth was waving a pistol around in the men's washroom.

The officers found the youth and disarmed him. Several youths attempted to attack the officers, who held them off at gunpoint.

Patrolman Gen Gordon said at least "eight to 10 shots were fired at us."

Patrolman T. F. Owens said two newsmen were injured, not seriously.

Russians Purge Czech Reformers

CEAUSESCU
. . . next target?

BUCHAREST (AP) — Western diplomats and Romanian travellers reported a growing number of Soviet and Bulgarian troops near Romania's borders Friday, rousing fears the Soviet Union might be planning another invasion of a Warsaw pact ally.

In San Antonio, Tex., President Johnson said in a speech there were rumors that the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia might be repeated elsewhere in Eastern Europe and a White House aide said such reports had created anxiety.

Johnson did not mention Romania by name, but reports of a threat to Bucharest, which defied the Soviet Union's campaign to silence Czechoslovak liberalism, have been coming in from many sources.

"We don't know what to make of it," said one Western diplomat. "It might be the real thing or it might be just another move in a war of nerves."

SEE RUSSIAN TROOPS

A group of Romanians returning from a visit to the Ukraine, said they had seen Soviet troops headed toward Romania.

"The roads leading up to the border were clogged with troops heading west," one traveller said.

Long columns of Soviet tanks and artillery were near the Prut River, which forms the border between Romania and the Soviet Union in the east, another said.

Other travellers who crossed into Romania at Albita, said Soviet armor, personnel carriers and guns were massed near the Ukrainian town of Kotovskoje.

Romanian government officials declined comment.

The Soviet press labelled the reports as "provocation".

PRECAUTIONS REMAIN

But Romanian military and internal security precautions, set up after the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria invaded Czechoslovakia Aug. 20, remain in effect.

Informed sources said the Romanian Army was on a state of semi-alert with all reserve officers and 60 per cent of other reserve personnel on active duty.

President Nicolae Ceausescu, in a speech at Cluj, repeated his call for an early withdrawal of Warsaw pact troops from Czechoslovakia.

Continuing his defiance of Moscow, he said: "The word freedom can be said in many languages, but it has the same meaning for all people. Equality among men, among nations. What is understood is that people must be able to be fully equal, have the right to express their opinion, be able to take part in the guiding of society in accordance with their capability and knowledge."

Soviet troops in the border area has been estimated at between 15 and 27 divisions of armor and motorized infantry.

Woman's Organs Dispersed

HOUSTON (UPI) Five Methodist hospital operating teams directed by Dr. Michael E. Debakey transplanted the heart and three other organs of a woman into four different recipients today in an unprecedented surgical project.

Her eye corneas were removed and placed in an eye bank for possible use later.

GUNSHOT WOUND

The donor of the heart, two kidneys and a lung was Mrs. Nelva Lou Hernandez, 20, who died of a gunshot wound in the head.

She was first treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and then was transferred to Methodist, where she died as doctors prepared the recipients.

- Her heart was given to William C. Carrol of Scottsdale, Ariz.
- Her lung was given to William J. Whaley, 39, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.
- One kidney was given to William C. Kaiser, 41, of Odessa, Tex. The other went to Thomas A. Stevenson, 22, of Houston.

The patients were reported in satisfactory condition.

The multiple transplants were parts of a program at Baylor University College of Medicine aimed at using as many donor organs as feasible.

The lung transplant was the first at Methodist, which is in the Texas Medical Centre, professional home also of Dr. Denton A. Cooley, the world's busiest and most successful heart transplant doctor.

Invaders Tighten Grip on Country

Times News Services

PRAGUE — Liberals who controlled information, education and the secret police were reported on their way out today in a shuffle to make Czechoslovakia's Communist government more acceptable to Moscow.

Associated Press correspondent Carl Hartman reported that Soviet security men had moved behind the scenes to tighten the Russian grip on the country occupied 10 days ago by 350,000 Soviet-bloc troops.

Reuters correspondent Lionel Walsh said the Czechoslovak central committee scheduled a meeting today to elect a new 11-man presidium that would include pro-Soviet hard-liners.

Hartman wrote that the Russians were reported putting their own experts in all ministries and into the Czechoslovak Communist party's central committee building.

The Soviet press reported resistance to occupation troops in the countryside and said: "The struggle is far from being over."

(Meanwhile, in Moscow the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda called for the "liquidation" of resistance groups in Czechoslovakia, which are said to have more than 40,000 members.

("Liquidation" in Russia does not necessarily mean killing, though the world came to think of it this way during the Stalin era.

(As used by Pravda today, it apparently amounted to a demand to break up the resistance groups, without a clear indication of what punishment should be handed out to their members.

(In a report from Prague, Pravda said the Czechoslovak people's militia should give a rebuff "to the counter-revolutionary scum.")

The main figure reported on the way out in Premier Oldrich Cernik's government shuffle was Interior Minister Josef Pavel. Under him, the secret police had stayed in the background since Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek began in January leading the nation away from 20 years of Stalinist rule.

There were reports, but no official confirmation, that Pavel already had resigned.

Soviet soldiers guarded his ministry and he has not been in his office for 10 days, although he still attends cabinet meetings.

Information Minister Miroslav Galuska, Education Minister Vladimir Kadlec and Cestmir Cisar, the Communist party presidium member in charge of the press, also were reported likely to lose their jobs. Cisar has been in hiding.

There was some doubt whether Deputy Premier Ota Sik, Dubcek's planner of economic reforms, and Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek would return to Czechoslovakia from Yugoslavia. Both were abroad when the Soviet troops invaded.

The entry of Russian experts into key positions came despite the accord worked out in Moscow. That provided the occupation troops would leave Czechoslovakia when the situation "normalizes" and would not interfere in the country's internal affairs.

The Czechoslovak government has been going ahead with another part of the accord—reimposition of press censorship. The government said Friday night that censors will start work immediately on Czechoslovak newspapers and broadcasts.

Journalists and broadcasters have been operating clandestinely to put out uncensored news.

Dubcek, who has spent several days trying to convince his own progressive supporters to bow with him to the will of the Kremlin, was authoritatively reported to have called the old party central committee into session rather than the all-progressive one elected secretly last week.

PURGED COMMITTEE

During the first week of the Soviet invasion, a secret 14th party congress was held on a factory floor while Dubcek and other leaders were negotiating in Moscow for the withdrawal of Russian troops. This congress purged the central committee of all pro-Soviet hard-liners.

By calling the old central committee into session, Dubcek was seen as giving tacit acknowledgement to the Russian claim that the 14th congress purge was illegal.

Dubcek and his colleagues are convinced that only the return

Canadian Father of Five Awakes With New Heart

MONTREAL (CP) — Elie Zaor, Canada's newest heart transplant, was reported recuperating normally eight hours after receiving a new heart at the Montreal Heart Institute.

In a bulletin issued shortly after 10 a.m. today, an institute spokesman said the father of five had regained consciousness and that the transplanted heart "maintains, on its own, excellent blood pressure and circulation."

"Mr. Zaor's immediate postoperative evolution is satisfactory," a spokesman added.

Mr. Zaor, a 58-year-old native of Turkey and resident of Sherbrooke, Que., received his new heart Friday night from Aime Lamothe, 35, a welder from Sorel, Que., who died from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Pierre Grondin, head of the surgical team that performed all three heart transplants in Canada, said immediately after the operation that "the heart took over in a beautiful fashion."

ZAOR

Dr. Grondin told reporters Mr. Lamothe's hemorrhage was caused by "severe hyper-tension" that was "secondary" to a kidney ailment dating back several years.

Mr. Zaor had suffered three heart attacks—in 1947, 1955 and last Aug. 20.

Employed by Dominion Textiles in Sherbrooke, Mr. Zaor has been an invalid since May.

ARTERIES BLOCKED

"He is also suffering from a valvular disease," Dr. Paul David, the institute's executive director, said in announcing the start of the operation about 8 p.m. EDT.

"Two of his three coronary arteries are obstructed and the third is almost blocked."

The heart needed only one electrical shock to start beating on its own after it was inserted in Mr. Zaor's chest cavity about 11:07.

Fecal Clouds Near Victoria

Air-borne clouds of fecal particles have been found above Greater Victoria's offshore sewage outfalls by University of Saskatchewan researchers.

There is a strong possibility the clouds carry disease-causing organisms says Dr. S. J. N. Webb of the medical college's bacteriology department.

The fecal material was found in samples taken at altitudes of 2,500 and 5,000 feet. A light breeze could distribute the material as far as 10 miles from its source.

BLANKET CROPS

Besides being breathed by humans, the particles could blanket crops and pasturelands and be eaten by humans and livestock.

The researchers found similar clouds over the South Saskatchewan River into which Saskatoon dumps its sewage.

For years there has been a high incidence of stomach flu in Saskatoon and Dr. Webb asks whether this might be attributable to the fecal clouds.

The prairie city is considering installation of a sewage treatment plant, but the research report indicates such plants could produce clouds like those over the outfalls.

Treatment usually requires a cycle of stirring, bubbling and settling. Dr. Webb said research shows bubbling could possibly increase, rather than decrease release of the material into the air.

Microbial flora have been found in the clouds and the report says presence of the flora indicates the presence of disease-causing organisms.

LIST DISEASES

Among diseases which might be spread by aerial microbes are tuberculosis, hepatitis, gastro-enteritis and polio.

Greater Victoria daily is pouring six million gallons of raw sewage into the Strait of Juan de Fuca through two outfalls.

Heavy opposition to the disposal method has arisen since publication of a metropolitan sewage study callin for addition of eight outfalls.

Opponents including Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, fear sea-dumped sewage will contaminate the shoreline and kill marine life.

Current research does not yet show definitely that bacteria and viruses carried in the air remains sufficiently potent to affect man.

Dr. Webb's study is continuing and is not expected to be published in a scientific journal for several months.

of some hard-liners to the central committee, the country's supreme policy-making body, can avert the danger of the Russians losing their patience and taking over the reins of government themselves.

Informed Communist sources said the Russians are insisting on at least three conservatives being in the party leadership.

Debate has centred on which members of the anti-Dubcek group in the party should be put into key positions in the new presidium.

The despair in the present party leadership on what the Russians will do if they do not get their way could be seen in reliable reports of a private briefing Premier Cernik gave to Czechoslovak journalists Thursday.

Youth Makes Quick Profit

Yates Street parking lot attendant Wendy McKeown converted change for a youth Friday night — and lost $35.

She was counting the day's receipts when the youth appeared.

"He had a handful of change and asked me if I could give him a dollar for it," said Miss McKeown.

"I counted the change and gave him a dollar from the pile. Then he grabbed all the money and ran."

City police apprehended a suspect on Wharf Street about 25 minutes later.

Pearkes Opens Saanichton Fair

Saanichton's 100th annual fair was opened this afternoon by Gen. George Pearkes, VC, former lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

It will continue through Sunday and Monday with a horse show, Highland dancing, 4-H competitions, historic pageantry, a wide variety of special attractions and thousands of horticultural exhibits.

Vancouver Island Indians will stage a large exhibition of arts and crafts.

Injunction Withdrawal Plea Filed

Masonry contractors moved Friday to have set aside an ex-parte injunction prohibiting them from picketing an Esquimalt apartment building site.

The injunction, granted earlier this month by Mr. Justice George Gregory to Diamond Developments, named the Amalgamated Construction Association of B.C. and five masonry contractors as defendants.

Judge Montague Drake, sitting Friday as a local judge of the B.C. Supreme Court, reserved decision and will give written reasons, probably next week.

BUILDING SITE

The injunction arose from picketing of the building site by three strike-bound masonry contractors. They were protesting the hiring of a striking bricklayer by Diamond Developments, which is not itself involved in the dispute.

The contractors had circulated, under construction association letter head, a do-not-hire list of 12 bricklayers who voted to go on strike. The bricklayers' union called it a blacklist.

PICKETING ILLEGAL

In seeking the injunction, lawyers for Diamond Developments said the contractors' picketing was a violation of the Trade Union Act and Mr. Justice Gregory said he could see no way that the picketing was legal.

Friday, the lawyer for the defendants, Louis Lindholm, said picketing in itself is not illegal provided the purpose is only to disseminate information and is the only likely and probably result.

Inasmuch as the picketing was by employers, it was unreasonable to assume that trade unions would honor it and therefore it was logical to conclude that the only effect of the picketing could be the dissemination of information, he said.

In addition, the Vancouver Island Building Trades Council, a union assocation, established a counter picket with signs saying the first picket was by employers and should not be honored by unionists.

The do-not-hire list of 12 strikers, which identified the men by name and by social insurance number, was circulated by H. A. Ormiston, chairman of the masonry section of the Amalgamated Construction Association.

It stated: "Without prejudice we herein declare these men hot and request your firm's cooperation by not hiring these men during the strike lockout period."

Mr. Lindholm said there was nothing illegal about the list and he admitted that the defendants desired, in addition to publicity, to get Diamond Developments and other companies not to employ the strikers.

Museum Curators Ask More Vetoing Power

Curators of the newly-opened Provincial Museum have asked that they be given the right to veto any production of the display department which they consider inaccurate or inappropriate.

Three persons connected with the $10,000,000 museum have listed complaints against some of the displays.

There has been some dissent concerning the $80,000 Nootkan whaling scene in the main foyer. George Moore, who resigned as museum adviser last July, described the scene as artistically insulting and scientifically invalid.

RAIN CURTAIN

A few days ago, some members of the museum staff expressed unhappiness about the "rain curtain" which pours water down a set of plastic rods at either end of the whaling scene.

They said the moisture produced could bring to life spores of wood diseases formant in the artifacts. But the rain curtain is still in operation.

Since the building opened, its basement has been twice flooded to a depth of two inches because a sump pump had been turned off.

The basement is below the water table when high tide comes into the Inner Harbor.

An order that children under 12 could not visit the building unless accompanied by a parent has been rescinded. Children under 12 are now allowed on tours escorted by a museum guide.

Hippie Invasion

PENTICTON (CP) — RCMP said Friday they are "prepared for anything" after reports of a hippie invasion during the Labor Day weekend.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Some 1.16 inches of rain fell at Prince Rupert in a six-hour period early this morning in advance of a Pacific disturbance. This system will weaken as it moves slowly down the coast, but it will spread cloudiness over the lower coast on Sunday. Showers will accompany it through the central and northern interior this afternoon and evening. Cooler air, spreading across B.C. in the wake of this disturbance, will affect all areas of the province except the southern interior, tomorrow.

Bennett Blizzard Smothers Cabinet

By JOHN MIKA
Times Legislature Reporter

Premier Bennett's charge that newspapers are "managing" the news to hurt him must have brought ironic smiles to some of his cabinet colleagues.

Because Mr. Bennett has been moving back to his iron-fisted "one-man-government" stance with a vengeance during the past month.

Mika

For years, the press gallery has gone without seeing more than half a dozen press releases being sent up from Mr. Bennett's office. They've had to chase him for every scrap of news and most of the time he made himself scarce.

But, suddenly, for the past few weeks, the white "flimsies" on which his press releases are typed have been whistling into the press gallery like snowflakes in a blizzard.

Now that he's chasing the press for every bit of personal publicity he can get, he's miffed when he doesn't get front page headlines for all his squibs no matter how small.

Quite a transformation for a man who once proudly claimed that he never read the newspapers.

In any event Mr. Bennett's blizzard is beginning to pile up a recognizable pattern of drifts.

They all seem to smother the names of certain ministers.

For instance, the big announcement by Mr. Bennett that he had graciously "accepted" appointment as patron of the social welfare department's new program of counselling senior citizens.

It was a long blurb on the numerous new initiatives taken by the department since Dan Campbell took over the portfolio.

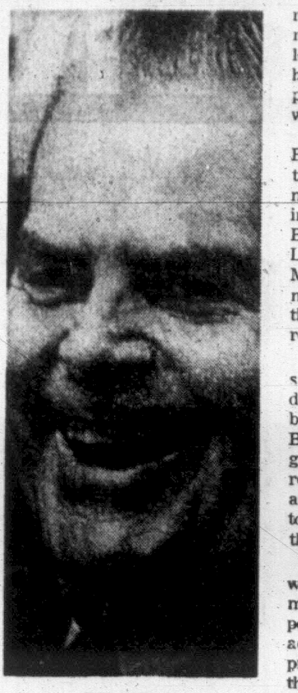
But the two-page release somehow failed to even mention Mr. Campbell's name while making an announcement he normally would have made himself.

This oversight followed on the heels of another strange situation.

When the CPR announced it was planning to abandon its E and N Railway run, Mr. Bennett eschewed the response which could be expected of him when given another opportunity to remind B.C. and the 'evil east' was an enemy.

It just sort of left Mr. Campbell dangling in thin air when he attacked the plan as a repudiation of the terms of Confederatin which should not be tolerated by the province.

Earlier, Mr. Bennett also tried mightily to downgrade Health Minister Loffmark's efforts to protect the public from sewage pollution.



BENNETT
. . . a snow job?

The premier took it upon himself to announce there would be provincial help for municipal sewage treatment programs and studiously added Resources Minister Williston would have the valet's job of filling in the minor details.

And it is the premier who has been announcing every small and large highways department call for bids for the past couple of weeks while Highways Minister Black is reduced to pleading with reporters to wait a little longer every time they ask him for announcements of programs known to be in the works.

When Education Minister Brothers indicated that he's taking a second look at the much-criticized school financing formula which Premier Bennett devised and foisted on Leslie Peterson last spring, Mr. Bennett undercuts the new minister by laughing off the study as just another routine exercise.

It appears Mr. Bennett's strong-arming has been directed chiefly at Mr. Campbell, Mr. Loffmark and Mr. Brothers who could be regarded as the new wave of reformers within the cabinet and the only ones who seem to enjoy general respect of the Socred caucus.

These three ministers have, within a very short time, made their way into senior portfolios which together account for the huge bulk of provincial spending and form the trident prongs for major change today.

FEARS YOUNG TURKS

Aging rulers have always feared the Young Turks within their own encampment most so it is not surprising that Mr. Bennett should have explained this week to reporters that henceforth all programs involving government expenditure — menaing virtually all programs — will be announced by the treasury board — meaning himself.

At the same time, Mr. Bennett declares that while newspapers are trying to "manage" the news to hurt him, "surveys show Social Credit government to be stronger than ever provincially."

It may be true that the party's popularity has risen marginally in view of the total destruction of the Tories, but that's not saying a great deal since the party has never taken as much as half of the popular vote in its history.

PUBLICITY TAP

But this may be the first time that the party is more popular than the premier and Mr. Bennett's obvious efforts to cut his most vigorous ministers off at the pubilicity tap may have two motivations — to dim the lustre of new talents flashing on the horizon and try to bask in their reflections himself.

In short, there are signs that Mr. Bennett is reversing his apparent goal of a dignified and graduated retirement from public life.

LAME DUCK

He's tired of being increasingly treated as a lame-duck premier by other politicians, particularly those in his own party, and has decided to fight back.

But he can only do it on the coat-tails of the reformers within his own group, and there's double irony in that.

Wasn't it another renegade in power who found that a cabinet's coat-tails hardly form a solid base for an old Conservative's last stand against the new politics?

Police Ask Help To Locate Girl

Saanich police have asked for public help in locating a missing 13-year-old girl.

Linda O'Neil, 241 Nicola Place, has been missing since 1:30 p.m. Friday.

She was last seen wearing an orange and brown pant-dress, black running shoes and carrying a brown purse with a shoulder strap.

Saanich police say she was a passenger on a black Honda motorcycle driven by a boy named "Doug" who wore a gold and red helmet. Linda was wearing a blue helmet.

Linda stands 5 feet 6 inches, has brown shoulder length hair, brown eyes and a fair complexion.

Anyone knowing the whereabouts of the missing girl is asked to contact Saanich police at 388-4321.

NEW ERA of labor-management relations was forecast by Labor Minister Leslie Peterson in his annual Labor Day message. He said this would be brought about by the new Mediation Act.

Labor Day Message Directed at Farms

The secretary of the B.C. Federation of Labor urged a new deal for farm workers in his annual Labor Day message.

Ray Haynes said Labor Day is traditionally the day set aside to recognize the contribution made by working men and women to the prosperity and welfare of the country.

From pioneer struggles, workers had banded together in unions, achieved the eight-hour day and five-day week and in many cases brought wages in industry, while not to a luxury level, at least enough to assure basic necessities.

"There still remain, however, some sectors of our generally affluent North American economy where hours remain long, where wages are so low that children under 10 years must work to provide the basic necessities of life for their families, where even primitive sanitary facilities are completely absent and where the worse abuses of monopoly power are practised against the employees," he said.

"I speak, in particular, of agricultural workers in both Canada and the United States, unprotected by labor laws, exploited by big employers, forced to migrate to make even the most miserable living.

"For several years the B.C. labor movement has been asking our government to include agricultural workers under all labor legislation. We have tried to help improve the conditions of the berry pickers.

"At present we are helping the California grape workers who have been on strike for three years just to get the right to collective bargaining that all other workers have in order to raise wages above the present average of $115 per month."

Mr. Haynes said these workers have nothing to celebrate on Labor Day but if "we pledge to support the grape workers and to support equal rights for agricultural workers in B.C., we will have given them something to celebrate on future labor days."

Nationwide House Study To Be Held

By VICTOR MACKIE
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A series of nationwide public hearings on the housing prolems of the country will start Sept. 16 in Ottawa and will take in all provincial capitals, Transport Minister Paul Hellyer announced here Friday.

He is heading up a federal task force on housing and urban development.

Members include C. E. Pratt, Vancouver; Dr. Doris Boyle, Sydney, Nova Scotia; Dr. Pierre Dansereau and W. Peter Carter, both of Montreal; Robert Campeau of Ottawa and Dr. James Gillies of Toronto.

William Neville of Ottawa, former executive assistant to Judy LaMarsh when she was secretary of state in the Pearson administration, has been appointed executive secretary of the study.

Assisting the task force will be Alfred Coll, executive director of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, as CMHC liaison officer and Lloyd Axworthy, of Winnipeg, executive assistant to Mr. Hellyer.

Centre Seeks Fitness Expert

Victoria Silver Threads are in search of a teacher for their Keep Fit class held at the centre each Tuesday at 10 a.m.

Applicants should call 388-4268.

The Five Pin Bowling Club will meet at the centre Thursday at 2 p.m. to organize its fall season.

All senior citizens can obtain tickets at the centre for a trip to the Gulf Islands, Sept. 12, and two trips to Vancouver Sept. 26 and 30.

Saanich Silver Threads centre at the corner of Harriet and Lurline will be closed Monday for the Labor Day holiday.

School Seized By Students

MONTREAL (CP) — A group of high school students, with parental and separatist support on a picket line, barricaded themselves in a school just before midnight Friday in an attempt to regain the building opened to English-language students in suburban St. Leonard.

The move may have widespread repercussions in the strife over school linguistics in the suburb whose local school board had adopted a French-only policy for "non-Anglo-Saxon" immigrants, to start when classes begin Wednesday.

But the Roman Catholic regional school board—which has jurisdiction over four suburbs, including St. Leonard—has decided classes at Aime Renaud school will be taught in English instead of French.

The students—one said from a window there were 87 inside—broke into the school and set up barricades at entrances, then called a French-language radio station in Montreal.

Further calls brought the pickets, including representatives of separatist Rassemblement pour l'independance nationale.

WILL KEEP PEACE

One of the half-dozen policemen at the scene said his force was under orders not to disperse the picketers but to ensure there is no violence.

Young couples and adults carried signs bearing slogans such as "Down with colonialism" and "Unilingualism, yes—bilingualism, no."

Paul Guerard, who said he is national director of the RIN, walked on crutches around the four-storey building which has room for 800 students.

With him was a small woman wearing a black sweater bearing the white-lettered words: "Quebec Libre."

"The phones are ringing now," he said. "There'll be more here."

Robert Samson, 29, a teacher with the Montreal School Commission, walked arm-in-arm with his wife and told a reporter:

"I'm here because I'm a taxpayer, but there are a lot of parents supporting the students inside the school."

MUST REMAIN FRENCH

He said the school must remain French.

"There's nothing to discuss—we will never give in. We are taking it for ourselves. It is the law of the majority."

Antoine Fernandez, 34, said he had a nephew inside the school.

"I'm here to encourage the students," he said. "The school was turned over to the English without consulting the parents or the students."

One policeman said the students inside the building had enough food to last a week and they intended to remain until classes open Wednesday.

No comment was immediately available from either the local or regional boards.

Chairman Andre St. Onge of the regional board said earlier this week the decision was basically an economic move.

Pending constructing of new facilities, the board could save $1,000,000 he said.

MOVE OTHER STUDENTS

The decision calls for 800 English-speaking students to attend the high school—579 of them from St. Leonard—and for 800 French-language students to be transferred to another building in an adjacent suburb.

Last June, the five-member local board decided to implement unilingualism starting with Grade 1, gradually increasing it to all other grades because French is the majority ethnic group in St. Leonard.

The suburb has a population of about 35,000—about half of French origin—and more than 5,000 students.

Last week, 700 adults voted unanimously to support a motion that would keep about 1,700 elementary students out of classes Wednesday in their fight against board decision.

IN RELAXED MOOD is Prime Minister Trudeau as he arrives in Edmonton on way to brief stop today in Jasper. He is to arrive in Vancouver at 2:30 p.m. Monday to address Tuesday session of Canadian Bar Association. (CP Wirephoto.)

Lawyers May Seek Strict Bugging Ban

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Canadian Bar Association Monday takes another look at a resolution to control electronic eavesdropping and ban the use in courts of evidence obtained by illegal use of the practice.

By coincidence, discussion follows another front-page flurry involving electronic eavesdropping: The disclosure in June that is was used in an investigation of the conduct of two Toronto magistrates.

Here, the subject is one of several as the association continued to draw up positions on human and civil rights and press them on government through what a member calls "a powerful voice in Ottawa."

The resolution on eavesdropping, which would make wiretapping and bugging a criminal offence except when used by lawmen under judicial control, is the first major discussion at the five-day convention.

The broader field of rights includes discussion Tuesday of a resolution urging Ottawa and the provinces to amend the British North America Act to provide for a constitutional charter of human rights.

TO HEAR TRUDEAU

A constitutional bill of rights was outlined at the 1967 convention by Pierre Elliott Trudeau, then justice minister, who as prime minister is to address a convention luncheon Tuesday.

Selected lawyers will argue for and against a rights charter—those opposed bringing up other methods of protecting rights—before a three-man tribunal and resolutions could be brought before delegates.

Last year, the association endorsed the principle of creating a national commission on human rights, to educate the public and work with government, to combat discrimination in Canada.

About 2,000 are expected to attend the convention, which includes discussions on obscenity and the law, new divorce legislation and the admission of criminal records brought out in court appearances.

A member paints the association as "very liberal" on human and civil rights but in the past year a CBA president and his successor have said the need for law, and enforcement, must not be obscured.

Current President A. Gordon Cooper of Halifax said punishment must be adequate to deter crime. And, he said in June: "The liberty of freedom of expression must not be allowed to degenerate into licence."

Spy in Yippies Bares Riot Plot

CHICAGO (AP) — A policeman who infiltrated the Youth International party has disclosed how Yippies planned in advance to riot and provoke attacks on them by police during the Democratic national convention, the Chicago Tribune says.

The Tribune says in a copyright story that the policeman, Robert Pierson, told the newspaper he was given a leave to serve as an investigator for the state's attorney's office, won the Yippies' confidence and became bodyguard for their leader, Jerry Rubin.

Pierson, 35, said he guarded Rubin from Sunday afternoon until Wednesday afternoon when his identity was discovered in a chance meeting with a member of the Blackstone Rangers, a South Side street gang, who recognized him.

Demonstrations by anti-war groups, including the Yippies, during this week's Democratic convention resulted in violent exchanges between protesters and police. The outbreaks brought swift action by police and charges that they attacked demonstrators without provocation, often clubbing them into submission.

Several hundred were arrested and scores were injured.

As a result of Pierson's undercover work, The Tribune says, police officials knew in advance what the Yippies were planning.

BROKE UP RIGHTS

The policeman said he came to the attention of Rubin by breaking up fights among hippies three times Monday. It was then that Rubin assigned Pierson as bodyguard, Pierson told The Tribune.

It was on Monday, too, Pierson said, that Rubin entrusted him with his personal diary of Yippie plans and told him to hold on to it at all costs.

Pierson said he later excused himself by telling Rubin he had to go to a washroom in the park. Instead, he said, he "picked a fight" with a policeman and was arrested. While in dentention, the undercover officer said, he identified himself, turned over the diary and gave police details of Yippie plans for Monday night in the park area.

After his release, through Rubin's intercession with a Legal Aid Bureau Attorney, Pierson told Rubin he had destroyed the diary when arrested rather than have it fall into police hands.

With information from the diary, police arrested Rubin Wednesday night in the downtown area and charged him with solicitation to commit mob action, disorderly conduct and resisting arrest. He was released on $25,000 bond Thursday night.

Bilingualism Surges Ahead

OTTAWA (CP) — The public high school board here will be the only one in Ontario this term to have a special Grade 13 school with French-language instruction, its officials say.

The Ottawa collegiate institute board's Grade 13 "pavilion" opens its doors to students Tuesday as do an additional seven French-language high schools the board has just started to administer. They were formerly private schools.

The board's new jump into bilingualism is bringing it 3,500 French-speaking students.

Contract Accepted

VANCOUVER (CP) — Bayshore Inn and Hotel Georgia employees voted 90 per cent in favor of a three-year contract Friday, averting a threatened strike by the Hotel and Restaurant Workers Union. The contracts provides for annual pay raises of 30, 10 and 25 cents for non-gratuity workers and 20, 10 and 25 cents for gratuity workers.

ONCE UPON A TIME

There was a new car dealership. It didn't make a lot of money but it certainly made a lot of friends. It was a little dealership that had to face some very big problems. First, the City expropriated the space the little dealership had used as a used car lot. Skeptics said: "That's the end of them, you can't sell used cars without a display area!" But the little dealership had built up a fine reputation for genuinely reconditioned and fully guaranteed used cars and people came looking for them. It became the only dealership that had to feed parking meters and move its used cars every three hours. Next, their landlord needed more space and so the little dealership had to give up its new car showroom. Skeptics are now pointing to the dealership and saying: "You can't sell new cars without a proper showroom — they're finished!" Yet within 2 hours of moving out of the showroom the little dealership sold a fine new car! The little dealership is unique in another way too — there are no longer any signs on the building to indicate what make of car it services and sells. The only way you can tell it is a Mercedes-Benz dealership is by the steady stream of smiling, satisfied customers bringing their cars for regular servicing. The little dealership, known as Three Point Motors, will stay at 760 Johnson — courtesy of their landlord — until its own, fine new, centrally located facilities are ready. The little dealership apologizes for being so difficult to find and promises those who seek it out that they will be rewarded for their trouble.

Affirmative Necessary

SPURRED BY THE MEMORY OF a hospital construction referendum that was defeated by Greater Victoria voters not long ago, the Regional Hospital District Board plans to engage a public relations firm to assist in educating the public to the urgent needs of the community in preparation for the vote next October. Such a step should hardly be necessary, for there can be few families in Greater Victoria that do not know, directly or indirectly, of the many months that most prospective patients must wait to get a hospital bed. But the fact remains that provision of new accommodation is so urgently important that nothing can be left to chance in informing the voters of the need for their support.

The referendum will be in line with the recommendations of the Agnew-Peckham report, and will call for $8 millions to provide extended care beds and $3.5 millions to improve existing hospital facilities. Of the total sum of $11.5 millions, however, the local taxpayers will have to find only $5 millions, the rest being made up of grants from the senior governments.

The new extended care units, to provide accommodation for patients requiring less than the full services of the acute hospitals, will greatly relieve the crowded waiting lists of the latter institutions by freeing beds for acute cases. This will be the first step toward providing an adequate system of hospital care for the people of the region. The second step of increasing the number of acute care beds will involve a vote for still more buildings next year.

The forthcoming referendum is not in the same category as votes on such projects as swimming pools or skating rinks. These are necessary adjuncts to any modern community—and, indeed are an important factor in its health—but in many cases they could be postponed temporarily without serious hardship. Not so our hospitals. We are already seriously behind in building new accommodation of the specialized types demanded today, and it is going to take a number of years to catch up even if we start immediately.

Hospitals are necessities, not a matter of choice, and the public must face the fact. If professional public relations experts are necessary to get that message to the people, then by all means let us hire them. This will be a referendum—with more to follow—which must not be allowed to fail.

The Nigerian Tragedy

IT APPEARS THAT THE WORST fears are coming to pass in Nigeria, where five million people face death in battle or by starvation. The latest reports from that anguished nation indicate the long and bloody civil war is nearing a climax. Resistance by the rebellious Ibo tribesmen of Biafra is crumbling, the federal forces are moving in for the kill. To date the Nigerian regular troops have shown little compassion for their opponents, and the eyewitness stories of atrocities and brutality are sickening.

The rest of the world looks on with a sense of horror at what is happening to defenceless women and children, but so far it has been unable to find a solution. The trickle of food dispatched to the Biafrans has accomplished little more than salve consciences abroad. In no country outside Nigeria has the situation caused more grief than in Britain, which launched the populous former African colony on the road to independence and tribal strife. London feels compelled to support the central government no matter how much it may disapprove of harsh Nigerian tactics in crushing the rebels. The Labor government turned down another appeal this week from some of its own members to end arms shipments to the federal side.

Canada has also refused to recognize the breakaway Biafra regime, and, apart from arranging for food shipments, has taken the position that the civil war is an internal matter for the Nigerians to settle. No nation has been willing to bring the matter before the United Nations, and even if this were done there is little that the UN could accomplish at this stage.

Some observers blame the intransigent position taken by the Biafran leaders for prolonging the war in the face of impossible odds and increasing the chances of a mass slaughter. In any case, there is no clearcut answer to the problem. It is not comforting to admit in this twentieth century, but there seems to be little the world can do but wait and hope that reason may prevail. The mandate of the United Nations to intervene in cases of international aggression is clearly not wide enough to embrace internal struggles such as that which now wracks Nigeria. But if suffering humanity is the chief object of concern, the job of the global peacekeeping body is only being half done as long as the victims of civil wars remain beyond aid.

Late for School

PUBLIC SCHOOLS WILL REopen Tuesday with some 32,000 pupils in Greater Victoria and another 10,000 in the surrounding area. School construction is lagging, and in some of the institutions emergency measures will be necessary. This involves the use of specialized areas for purposes for which they were not designed, resulting in disarrangement and an impediment to efficient teaching. Efforts to obtain the best teaching abilities possible should be matched by the provision of proper quarters and equipment to permit teachers to do their job. This does not mean makeshift classes held on auditorium stages, in basements or converted hallways. Still less does it mean disrupting essential library services by holding classes in the library room. There is no economy in misusing the expensive buildings we have provided. That is something the economy-minded provincial government should consider as it holds up construction plans prepared by school boards here and throughout the province.

Confirming a Road Pledge

BECAUSE THE STRETCH OF highway involved has been so much to the fore in partisan politics—with improvements promised as an election bribe which the voters did not accept—it is gratifying to learn that $1,700,000 will be spent on the Lake Cowichan Road. A former Social Credit minister of highways once suggested that if residents returned his party's candidates, pleas for improvement of the road would be heard; otherwise they could be ignored as they had been earlier.

The Social Credit spokesman is no longer minister of highways. Conceivably the time has arrived in the administration's thinking when concern should be shown for highways on a basis of need and legitimate development, rather than political considerations. Perhaps that is why Mr. Bennett gave assurance at the last session that work would be done in 1968 on the project. His confirmation of that promise is encouraging. Highways, like political fences, need mending.

Not Prison

Toronto Daily Star

Canadian law at present puts marijuana in the same category as addictive drugs such as heroin and hashish.

Use of it can bring a prison term of up to seven years, even for the first offence.

This severity in the law hasn't prevented a 30-fold increase in marijuana offences in the last three years, and we think Health Minister John Munro is being sensible when he suggests that lesser penalties should be prescribed.

The justice department under Pierre Trudeau embarked on a tough policy early this year when it advised prosecutors to ask for prison sentences for persons convicted of possessing marijuana, whether or not they had previous criminal records.

Prison isn't the answer for youngsters who try marijuana as an experiment, as thousands of Toronto high school students have done. A suspended sentence, with a period of probation aimed at separating the offender from bad associations, fits the offence better and probably gives a better chance for reform.

Stiff penalties should be kept for those who traffic in marijuana.

THE ECONOMICS OF NATIONS

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

Engulfed in the American Production Flood

Hutchison

THE ordinary man will hardly guess what is happening to the environment around him until he reads "The American Challenge," by J. J. Servan-Schreiber. This proves beyond doubt that the United States is rapidly swallowing the economy of Britain, Europe and the Western world, not for political or military reasons, not by any conscious plan, but simply because American technology is irresistible. No other nation on earth can compete with it.

Though Canada is involved in the American phenomenon more directly than Europe, not many Canadians yet understand it. But we must understand it if we are to frame any workable design for our own future. Why, in short, can American indistry make most modern goods better, and sell them more cheaply, than any competitor? Why can't Europe and Canada do just as well?

The common answer is that the Amercans have better machinery but, as Mr. Servan-Schreiber shows, this is only one part of the answer. Another part is the unequalled wealth of the United States, which can risk huge sums of money on the manufacture of some new product, as International Business Machines recently spent $5 billion to perfect a computing device. Machinery and wealth combined, however, fail to explain the prodigy of American business. Its inner secret, little understood by Americans themselves, is their superior education.

In technical training no other work force is comparable to that of the United States. This superiority didn't matter much when goods were relatively simple and the automobile and airplane seemed to be the climax of invention. Today, when a third industrial revolution is transforming the world, for better or worse, the skill of workers and managers is decisive.

The United States has achieved, almost unconsciously, a unique synthesis of government, private management and trained technicians that overwhelms Europe by unequal competition. As things are going now, says Mr. Servan-Schreiber, Europe must become an economic colony of North America — a rich colony, to be sure, but a colony of a "superior civilization."

Moves on Like a River

One may quarrel with the French economist's measurement of civilization but that is a philosophical problem. In economic terms the facts are quite clear — American technology is penetrating and dominating the Western world not because it deliberately intends to do so but because it cannot pause, and moves on like a river by its own laws of being.

The river can be dammed by any nation that is prepared to exclude American goods, capital and production methods, but only at the cost of restricting its wealth. Not many nations will make this sacrifice. Europe, at any rate, is not making it. In his attempt to stop the economic flood President de Gaulle is like a man sweeping back the Mississippi with a kitchen broom.

The flood will be stopped, Mr. Servan-Schreiber argues, only if Europe rejects Gaullist nationalism and unites politically and economically, thus building an industrial base comparable to that of the United States. Then, and not until then, will it have the chance to compete with American technology and, above all, with American education.

This lesson applies also to Canada. We cannot compete in modern industry, we cannot hope to develop our resources adequately or make good our ambitions for the future unless our workers are better trained.

The United States, as the French author says, has made its most profitable investment not in machines but in men. Its educational system is the mother of its economy. For example, 43 per cent of all Americans between the ages of 20 and 24 are attending university as against 22.5 per cent in Canada. Even Russia, with 24 per cent, is ahead of us. Western Europe lags far behind, Britain at the bottom of the list with seven per cent.

These figures correspond accurately with economic performance. It is no coincidence but cause and effect that American technology, built on an expert work force, outstrips all its rivals. Or, as a Chinese sage, Kuan-tzu, wrote 26 centuries ago, "If you plan for a year, plant a seed. If for ten years, plant a tree. If for a hundred years, teach the people."

The records of comparative productivity mean that in Canada we must vastly improve our technical education if we intend to stay in the race. A philosopher may well argue that we should not stay in the race but, limiting our future income, should concentrate instead on the improvement of our soul. Perhaps that is the course of wisdom but it will not be knowingly followed by a people who are convinced (wrongly, as I believe) that the pursuit of wealth and ease is the supreme objective of life.

'Human Capabilities'

Robert McNamara, no philosopher but probably the greatest industrial manager of our time, admitted in a recent speech that science, technology and management "do not sum up the entire worth of education." In the final analysis, he said, the important thing is to develop our "human capabilities." Yet without technical training there can be no progress, "spiritual, humanistic, economic or otherwise" and the world will be threatened by an explosion among the poor and backward peoples.

This is all true enough and it is true, too, that in Canada we have hardly begun to reckon the cost of educating ourselves for the economic contest ahead. But the task of education in a technical sense is not beyond our means. Surely the real question is whether human beings can live, as human beings, in the new computer age dominated by American managers like the well-meaning McNamaras of the United States. The current news of American civilization, as distinguished from economics, does not suggest a positive answer.

A Massacre of Words

Winnipeg Free Press

"First you start killing words, then you kill people," says a character in a contemporary Czech novel based on a tragedy that arose out of Communist jargon. The brutal massacre of words perpetrated these last seven days by the Soviet Union and her satellites would have brought a blush to the cheeks of Attila the Hun.

The summoning of the unwilling Czech leaders to Moscow — some were brought in under escort and in handcuffs — was described as "comradely discussions." The carefully planned and executed military invasion of a sovereign country was described as "fraternal assistance at the country's own request." Life-long Communists were described as counter-revolutionaries and allies of imperialism, but that is old hat. We have heard that one from Trotsky onward. The passive resistance of the Czech and Slovak people was depicted as "a joyous welcome to the brotherly forces."

It was a particularly nauseating exercise in mendacious hypocrisy. The dedicated lying linked with a brutal military action will leave the world numb for a long time.

FROM UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.

A Chance for Negotiation in the Post-Czech Chill

Frye

IT is widely assumed that in the wake of the Czechoslovak invasion, East West relations must be, and are, in for a long era of cold-war antagonism. The detente, it is said, is dead, or at least in very cold storage. This assumption may well prove to be entirely wrong. Tactically and psychologically, September 1968 may be exactly the right time to negotiate with the Russians.

"Atmospherics" have little or no real effect on Soviet policy. The Kremlin's relations with other countries do not have to be pleasant to be productive.

Some of the most useful diplomatic business the United States ever did with Moscow came in the period immediately following the Cuba-missile crisis in 1962, when Soviet leaders would certainly have been sulking and licking their wounds if they ever were going to indulge in that luxury.

So far from requiring a pleasant, soft-spoken background and a general feeling of peace and good will, the Russians actually seem more eager to come to terms when there is a dangerously hostile atmosphere.

Avoid Two-Front War

It is as if they feel they have a national interest in preserving at least a minimum detente with the United States—as indeed they have, if one assumes that there will be a long period of Soviet-Chinese antagonism. Russia has every reason to avoid a two-front cold war.

The situation today is not entirely comparable to 1962. It was not the United States, but tiny Czechoslovakia, which this time faced down the might of the Soviet Union and fended it off, though Czechoslovakia had some significant moral support from outside. No one in the Kremlin (or in Washington) came to the brink of nucelar war and looked over the abyss.

Still, the crisis did have aspects of Soviet-American confrontation, notably in the UN, and once again there is every impulsion for Moscow to mend its battered bridges to the West.

The Soviet leadership may not immediately be in a position to engage in serious and difficult negotiations, as for example on the control of nuclear missiles or, more apropos, on the future of central Europe. The lines of authority in the Kremlin presumably are in some disarray.

But once the dust has settled, "doves" who favor accommodation with the West are logically much the most likely candidates for the driver's seat, since their diagnosis of the Czech problem and the course of action they urged have been shown to have been wise and foresighted.

The "hawks" should have been thoroughly discredited. Indeed, no one here would be very surprised if some hawkish heads began to roll.

Under these conditions, negotiating with the Kremlin could be an unusually promising undertaking—more so, indeed, than at any time since 1962-3.

Vietnam would be one excellent place to begin doing East-West diplomatic business. The American conventions now are over, and Hanoi can have little further motive to stall.

It should be clear now that the basic negotiating position of the United States is not going to change in Hanoi's direction next January. The tanks that rolled into Prague helped guarantee that.

Moreover, there has been a healthy hardening of American opinion about the Paris peace talks. A lot of fuzzy thinking that was undercutting W. Averell Harriman, the American negotiator, has been swept away.

Pressure on President Johnson to cease demanding military reciprocation for a total bombing halt has eased.

This is a highly important new element. Once Xuan Thuy, Harriman's opposite number, becomes thoroughly persuaded that a bombing halt cannot be had for nothing, he may well begin a serious negotiation on the price to be paid for it—and at that point, prospects for peace will improve materially.

If the Kremlin wants to heal some of the damage done to East-West relations by the attempted rape of Czechoslovakia, one excellent way to begin would be to press Hanoi in that direction.

Hoped to End in Glory

Before Prague, President Johnson was hoping to make a triumphal, hands-across-the-curtain visit to the Soviet Union, thus ending his term in a burst of peace-making glory.

Such a trip may not be practical in the immediate future. But it could once again become practical if there were progress at Paris, if a nuclear-missile negotiation got under way in earnest, and if there were serious explorations for a settlement of the problem which, in the last analysis, lay behind the Czech crisis: the partition of Germany.

For all this to happen in the next few months would be remarkable, but not impossible. The Czech "compromise," while not entirely conducive to it, does not rule it out.

Moscow has pulled back just enough to permit a revival of the detente, and it could be exactly the right moment to explore the possibilities.

Nature Rambles

By FREEMAN KING

Take a ramble around the Centennail Trail at Francis Park. Each bend will show you something new.

Look among the grasses and you will see new shoots coming through the old brown. We should have a "green" autumn.

Stop at the rock outcrops. See how the sedum leaves are swollen now they have a new supply of moisture. Here too the mosses and lichens have taken on a revived green growth.

Look on the old snags or, perhaps, a downed log. See the bracket fungi with their smooth white undersides that can be used as a surface on which to paint pictures, or scratch with a sharp stick.

In the shady part of the forest, look on the ground. There you will find many of the tiny mushrooms that are ahead of time, They, too, have been triggered by the warm rains.

Growing on little fallen twigs there is the tiny delicate marasmius with its papery think-cap. On old fir cones there is another little forest sprite that only grows on this medium.

Where you come to a more open glade you can find the puff balls. They are excellent food when sliced young, firm and white inside, and fried in butter.

Along the north side of the trail there is a large bank where the moss is almost a foot thick. Look here for another of the tiny little mushrooms with a hair-like stem with a shiny dark cap.

When you reach the northern end of the trail, go down to the little marsh pool. See the skunkcabbage leaves that are eighteen inches wide and almost five feet in length. Some of the seed stalks are almost a foot in length.

Up along the ridge where there are a number of Arbutus trees you can find some new seedlings. These little plants are about six inches in height and at this stage the leaves are finely notched.

By the pond there is an old red cedar. If you look close you will see where a coon has climbed up into the branches.

Notice how the ants in their colonies are now "thatching" their mounds with fallen needles from the firs.

They Take Up Serpents As Sign of Their Faith

By HANK BURCHARD

BIG STONE GAP, Va. — Wailing grief over death and shouting joy in life everlasting, the members of the Church of God in Jesus Name buried Brother Oscar Franklin Pelfrey.

Pelfrey, 65, a lay minister of this declining Protestant fundamentalist sect, died last week after he was bitten on the forehead during a service by one of two rattlesnakes he was holding in his hands as testimony of his faith in his God.

Over the years the retired coal miner had been bitten seven times and seven times he recovered without medical aid. Each time strengthened him in his creed.

Taken From Bible

The gospel he practised with his co-religionists is taken from the 16th chapter of Mark, in which Jesus instructed his disciples:

"And these signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick, and they shall recover."

Something above a score of those who follow this teaching literally have died from snakebite in the half-century since the sect was founded in the Appalachians.

About three dozen congregations in Virginia, West Virginia, North Carolina and Tennessee still handle snakes, although it is illegal in all but West Virginia.

They are not snake worshippers. Most of them hate and fear snakes. They take up serpents as a sign of their faith in God and of their submission to his will. "The only time I can abide the serpents is when the Lord Moves me to take them up," said Kenneth Short, who is a keeper of the reptiles used. "When the spirit is upon me, then I am not afraid."

The spirit is a real and personal thing to these people. Some say, humbly, that God has spoken to them directly. Others see visions of Him. Many "speak in tongues" when fervor seizes them at the hours-long services.

Such displays lead "mainstream" religionists and members of other fundamentalist churches to shun or mock snakehandlers, who are a splinter group of the perfectionist Holiness Church.

Sect members term this "persecution" and accept it as part of the trials on earth that God has set for them. "The Lord's way is a hard way," Short said. "There is small ease in it."

The 45 or so members in the Church of Christ in Jesus Name were outnumbered by the curious and the scoffers as they squeezed into their tiny white frame church here for Pelfrey's funeral service. Some who showed anger at onlookers were gently chastised by their fellows.

"The other cheek, sister, the other cheek," an old man said to a teen-age girl who had hissed something about "ghouls" to a reporter.

They sang standard hymns, and others seldom heard outside these hills, in the guitar-accompanied driving rhythms from which folkrock derives. As the spirit moved them, different ones rose to testify:

'Not Afraid, Aman'

"Brother Pelfrey died in the faith he lived, aman, he was not afraid, aman," Said a holiness missionary who drove in from Ohio in a borrowed car. "He's gone now to a better place, aman, Pray God, aman, sweet Jesus pray that we may one day join him in that place, aman, where none is ever separated. Aman."

"Oh, Daddy, Daddy, Daddy, Daddy, Daddy, Daddy, Daddy how can you be dead? You were so good in life," a daughter cried as she embraced her father in the coffin where he lay in a grey suit.

"Yes, thank you, Jesus, take him Jesus, Jesus, Jesus" —the woman, who had risen to comfort her daughter, paused and closed her eyes. Softly she began to moan and then to speak in tongues—"Owoo, ulla, ulla, bitmitimibob, bitmitimibob, artana, artana. . . ." After a few minutes, during which those around her regarded her respectfully, she sagged to the floor and was carried out into the steamy afternoon.

With a beat that rose and fell, raced and hesitated, but never stopped, with sermons and solos, duets and choruses from a choir of eight, the nasal harmony of the hills vibrated the church for nearly three hours.

Decals on Window

Heat beat through the closed windows—covered with plastic decals representing stained glass—as, in a 30-minute recessional, Pelfrey's wife, son, Billy Ray, four daughters, four brothers, five sisters, 13 grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, friends and neighbors filed past the grey steel casket, weeping, shouting, kissing him, straightening his tie and lapels, mussing his grey hair, shrieking, sobbing, speaking in tongues, fainting, stroking the Bible in his crossed hands, soaking his tie and shirt front with their sweat and tears as they leaned over him, clutching each other in the circle of fellowship, nodding to the man from the funeral home, making arrangements for rides to the Powell Valley Memorial Gardens, where they buried him.

Later that evening, at his mountainside home that is reachable only by a steep rocky trail, Roscoe Mullins, assistant pastor of the Church of God in Jesus Name, spoke reverently of Pelfrey's death.

Mullins, who was the last one to handle the snakes before Pelfrey took them up, said Pelfrey did not cry out when the four-foot yellow timber rattler fastened its fangs in his brow.

Ready to Die

"He had always tried to live according to God's will, and he was ready to die," Mullins said. "That man believed 100 per cent."

"He asked each one to pray for him, and we did, and he was content. He could have gone to the doctor and got the serum and it might have saved his life, but he said if the Lord wanted to save him, he would."

The snake handlers say that sometimes God allows the death of those who are bitten—or who intentionally drink lye or strychnine—to prove to those within and without the church that the danger is real.

The way of their faith is hard, as Short says, but it seems to give them relief from their everyday lives, which also are hard in these mean sulphrous hills.

After they had buried brother Pelfrey, most of his brethren seemed refreshed, as though they had come from a wedding rather than a funeral.

Nathan L. Gerrard, chairman of the sociology department at Morris Harvey College, Charleston, W.Va., says snake handlers are happier and better adjusted than their neighbors who follow other faiths.

Gerrard, who with his wife studied the ways of the sect for seven years, wrote recently in "Trans-Action," a social science monthly:

"Snake handlers generally are poor even by the modest standards of this depressed region, and have little hope of improving their lot. Many (like Pelfrey) are coal miners made jobless by mechanization and failing mines.

"They prefer religious hedonism to reckless hedonism, with its high incidence of drunkenness and illegitimacy.

"Religious hedonism is compatible with a puritan morality—and it compensates for its constraints."

Rattler

Light at the End Of a Tunnel in Time

By ART STOTT

Some men whom I consider friends poke gentle fun at an ambitious excavation project I initiated in relative youth at Shawnigan. It seemed to me, as a comparatively young man, that a person could, with perseverance, excavate a basement under the shack I have erected there, picking away at the hardpan and wheeling it out a barrowfull at a time. That is still my belief, but the rewards of excavating hardpan come more slowly than I had thought.

Stott

My jocular friends, wearing formalized grins, accost me at times with the query: "Still digging that hole at Shawnigan?" My responsive smile is a mite sickly, my reply tired: "Yes, Rome wasn't built in a day, you know."

The thought occurs to me, after a decade or two with a pick and shovel in the bowels of the earth above Cigarmakers' Bay, that the Roman comparison is more apt than I had imagined. I wonder now how the Romans built their city during a mere five to seven centuries of its imperial majesty, in time for it to decline and fall. No doubt they accomplished the marvel by the use of slave labor. I have no slaves at Cigarmakers' Bay — only a Ph.D. son-in-law who varies, on occasion, a career in solid state physics with experimentation in solid state Shawnigan hardpan. I draw the conclusion from the infrequent experiments at the lake that solid state physics is less impenetrable than solid state Shawnigan hardpan.

* * *

Yet, with one of those revelations vouchsafed the simple in mind and heart, I have found proof of another familiar saying: time, in truth, has its softening influences. Until this summer, it passed my belief that anything short of high explosives would reduce the obduracy of the particular hardpan in which I worked. It stood, year after year, granitic in its rejection of my pick. This year it yields a little. I have pondered on this. It is my practice to spend at least as much time pondering a job as attacking it. And I have come to a conclusion which blunts my criticism of the kind of weather we have had.

By my reckoning, the gentle and not so gentle rains of a wet spring and damp summer have seeped through the upper layers of Shawnigan earth to moderate the formerly harsh character of the element in which I have labored. The hardpan yields to my pick as easily as the rocks now — and on occasion, with sufficient undercutting, can be drifted down.

In gratitude I have effected a compromise with the hardpan. If it keeps yielding, as it has on recent weekends, I shall leave half of it untouched, making only a half-basement. In the manner of a reclusive mental case. I have explained this to the hardpan. Talking to hardpan is not, perhaps, as idiotic as some may think. Other diggers I have known have also spoken to Shawnigan hardpan, but in a lexicon for which there is no room in a family newspaper.

Still, mine has been a one-sided conversation. The hardpan seems insensitive to words and lacks even the fugitive articulation old Omar attributed to the potter's clay.

* * *

Neighbors passing by and hearing my monologue, shake their heads in mild distress and think dark thoughts, wondering, no doubt, if the once-young man they saw disappearing into the earth has parted company not only with the sweet, fresh air above ground, but also with sanity.

They shall be reassured. During the next three weeks, in what is called my vacation, I shall be back in the hole again, this time with terminal intent. At this point I am not positive whether I or the half-basement will be finished first, but this is the year to end the excavation.

Should I survive, I shall offer my pick to Willard as a sort of poor man's Excalibur, the weapon which conquered the unconquerable. In this day of the bulldozer and back-hoe, it is quite conceivable that a pick, a plain, ordinary, common pick, may become an article of historical, if not archeological importance. If the Archives want it, it is only an act of citizenship to make the donation.

Still, such a gift would involve sacrifice. Without a pick, how will I dig out a column on a barren day, how will I fill in a rainy vacation at Shawnigan, what will I use for a conversation piece?

There will be compensations. When I'm again asked the weary query: "Still digging that hole at Shawnigan?" I shall be able to squelch the questioner with a curt "No." What more could a man want from his annual holiday?

'PROTEIN GAP' GETTING WIDER

By WILLIAM HINES, World Book Science Service

WASHINGTON — The greatest challenge to science and technology today, more important than going to the moon or discovering a cure for cancer, is closing of the "protein-gap"—the difference between the amount of essential nourishment human beings need and the amount they actually get.

It is no secret that this gap is wide and getting wider in most parts of the world. Nor is it a secret that agriculture is failing to meet the growing needs of burgeoning world population, despite much theoretical and practical work to improve the yield of farming and grazing lands.

Humanity's salvation will come in the long run, if at all, not from the land but from the water where life began. Before salvation can be realized, however, some important changes will have to be made in man's attitudes and techniques regarding exploitation of the oceans, seas, lakes and rivers of the world.

The art and science of "aquaculture" — purposeful farming of watery regions—is in most areas of the world about where agriculture was 10,000 years ago. Hunting and gathering are cultural marks of barbarism, not civilization, yet these are precisely the techniques used for most of the world's commercial fishing.

The waters of the world, particulary those that are landlocked or near shore, are incredibly productive—or could be, if they were properly managed. H. L. Mencken once called the Chesapeake Bay "a vast protein factory," and so it is; but few factories on land could be managed so inefficiently without going broke.

●

Actually, what is required to bring aquaculture to parity with agriculture is not breakthroughs but development. The problem is innovation, not invention; the application of existing sciences and technologies to the special conditions that exist beneath the surface of the water.

An especially attractive feature of aquaculture is that practically anyone can engage in it, given a watery tract to farm, a modest grounding in good husbandry practices, and a minimal capital investment. Yields of edible animal protein, measured in tons per acre per year, are truly prodigious.

Of all nations, Communist China has gone farthest to demonstrate the practical advantage of aquaculture. The world's most populous nation, China is today one of the chief fishing nations of the world in terms of tonnage landed (she leads the United States), yet China has no offshore commercial fishing industry worthy of the name. The bulk of her vast catch—measured in the millions of tons per year—is actually a farming operation, the harvesting of cultivated fish grown in ponds.

Water creatures are marvelously responsive to their environment, and this environment can be manipulated quite easily to suit the aquaculturist's convenience. A slight change in water temperature or acidity can start or stop a breeding or growing cycle.

Fish give a new dimension to the "population explosion" concept, and there too is hope for mankind. In the wild, one fish egg out of a thousand may develop into an adult; under aquaculture the survival rate from some species runs as high as 70 per cent.

In much of the world today, aquaculture is keyed largely to the luxury trade: raising rainbow trout in Idaho and Denmark, tempura shrimp in the Inland Sea of Japan, flat oysters in Brittany and Blue Points in Long Island Sound.

Yet this need not be the case as has been demonstrated by the poultry industry in North America. Only 40 years ago "A Chicken in Every Pot" was a campaign slogan. Today chicken is just about the cheapest item on the meat counter.

THE GALLUP POLL

Health and Knowledge Believed Improving

By the Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Majority opinion among 11 countries in the Commonwealth, Europe, and the U.S. believes that mankind's health, knowledge and intelligence is improving. For knowledge this level of opinion runs between 80 per cent and 90 per cent. For health and intelligence it is over 60 per cent in all countries surveyed.

To assess these national attitudes, affiliated Gallup Polls asked identical questions in the 11 countries, to determine for each factor, whether the people believed the situation was improving or worsening.

A comparison of opinion as between Canada, Great Britain, and the U.S. shows closely parallelled attitudes—with the main exception that Americans are much more convinced that intelligence is improving.

In Canada, and elsewhere, however, a solid segment of the public is of the opinion that mankind's health has not improved.

'Gathering Together The Reins of Power'

By PETER C. NEWMAN

OTTAWA — Ten weeks have passed since the election and Pierre Elliott Trudeau, the buoyant flower child of the shopping centres, has turned into a brooding, mysterious Prime Minister secluded in his office, mapping his government's first parliamentary session.

Newman

It's all a little reminiscent of a scene from one of those Cinerama spectaculars (Circa 1953) about the glory of Rome when the night before a decisive battle, the emperor paces his tent in lonely splendor and his shadow is glimpsed against the glow of late-burning lamps.

Trudeau's major pre-occupation is the throne speech that will open Parliament on September 12.

At first, the new Prime Minister and his cabinet were pondering the desirability of concocting a kind of master-plan that would set out all the legislation the government would try to implement during its five-year mandate.

Details Too Risky

But even though this presumably would have expressed a clear order of priorities, it was decided that to spell everything out was too risky since economic recessions or other unpredictable circumstances might interfere with long-term commitments.

Instead, it has been decided to draft a short throne speech that will outline only that part of the government's program likely to be implemented during the 1968-69 session. This should make it a very different document from the Pearson government's throne speeches which were mild-minestrone mixtures of solid plans and vague promises.

Highest priority will go to the government's language bill, a reform of the House rules, the presentation of a budget, and a general tidying up of bills left over from the last administration.

Most of the action in the new government so far has involved the quiet gathering together of the reins of power by the Prime Minister's staff. The regional-desks scheme has started to operate under the direction of Pierre Lavasseur and party workers across the country are being contacted in order to establish the links which hopefully will provide the policy input needed to give the government its promised regional orientation.

Touring the West

Western regional desk director David Thomson is currently touring the west, while Lavasseur and his assistant, Jean Hache, will soon leave for Quebec and the Maritimes.

The most interesting innovation in the PM's office has been the establishment of a talent bank. Run by program secretary Jim Davey and his assistant, Gwen Clark, the Trudeau talent bank consists of files on Canadian experts in various fields who have expressed a willingness to contribute their talents — temporarily or on a permanent basis — to government service.

Eventually the talent bank will also reach out and recruit men and women of special ability. These files will provide the names from which all appointments that don't come under the public service commission will be made. (This includes about 300 order-in-council appointments made every year, as well as service on government task forces, etc.)

The talent bank sounds, in theory anyway, like a very good idea. It should prevent the kind of last-minute patronage-tinged appointments that were prevalent during both the Diefenbaker and Pearson administrations.

Unfortunately, the bank appears to have developed a couple of alarming short circuits in the testing stages.

Two of the Trudeau government's early appointments — of former Liberal MPs Joseph Macaluso and Roger Teillet — scarcely qualify as the end results of objective talent hunts.

Cemetery Agent

Teillet, who was an agent for a cemetery company before going into politics, has been given a plum job as a member of the Canadian Pension Commision at $18,500 a year. Macaluso has been named to the research branch of the Canadian Transport Commission at $24,000 a year. The job had been previously advertised by the Public Service Commission as requiring post-graduate training in "economics, engineering or a related area."

Before going into politics, Macaluso was a lawyer in Hamilton.

In contrast, the government has made some highly-intelligent appointments to its task force on information.

D'Iberville Fortier, Bernard Ostry and Tom Ford are all professionals who are familiar with the new dimensions of communications.

They don't regard their assignment as a directive to discover more effective ways for Ottawa to manipulate public opinion. Instead they recognize that any society that wants to call itself just must consist of a well-informed electorate which feels a genuine sense of participation in government initiatives.

Likes Task Forces

Trudeau's emphasis on the task force — as opposed to the royal Commission — is in itself part of his determination to create a participatory democracy. Unlike royal commissions which tend to institutionalize themselves and produce long-winded reports which are usually shelved, task forces work quickly and informally, involving more outsiders in their deliberations.

The task force on housing, for instance, is being led by Paul Hellyer himself, so that citizens who have valid ideas will be able to present them at regional hearings directly to the mininster who'll be putting them into effect.

This task force, which hopes to produce its report by Christmas, is expected to go beyond the quantitative problem of housing.

"We realize most of us live in cities and we know that in many areas housing is scarce," says Lloyd Axworthy, a former University of Manitoba political science professor who is Hellyer's executive assistant. "But we still haven't developed any concept of what it means to be an urban nation. The city isn't just a place to live and work, it's not a town grown large, it's a different mode of existence."

One of the problems in formulating contemporary and relevant urban policies is that the jurisdictional web allows the federal government only a limited role in urban affairs.

It can have a large indirect effect, however, by the allocation of government buildings, and the use it allows of government lands. The task force planners hope that some formula can be evolved which would give Ottawa more than an advisory function in the evolution of Candian cities.

Politics in Cities?

An important side effect of this concentration on city problems may be the long overdue urbanization of Canada's political parties and the introduction of party politics into municipal elections.

John Lindsay's success in New York may set an example for other ambitious young Canadian politicians to use the mayoralty as a stepping stone to federal office. There is a strong feeling among the experts who have studied this problem that the next generation of Canada's political leaders will receive their training in the mundane confrontations of municipal councils.

"This is the age of the urban crisis," J. K. Galbraith, the U.S. economist, has written. "The day is coming when no one will be considered really ready for higher office until he has been a successful mayor."

Canada is already an urban-oriented country but by the end of this century—only 32 years from now—we will have to create cities to house an additional 21.5 million Canadians, the equivalent of ten new Torontos.

The problems involved in this growth should tax the imagination of all the talent banks and task forces we can muster.

EDGAR CAYCE ON PROPHECY, by Mary Ellen Carter, Paperback Library, 205 pages, 75c.

EDGAR CAYCE — THE SLEEPING PROPHET, by Jess Stearn, Bantam Books, 287 pages, 95c.

Reviewed by Marion Jenkins

For those interested in occult literature, a new pocketbook edition of Edgar Cayce on Prophecy by Ellen Carter has recently appeared. With this publication, there has been a revival of interest in Cayce's life and work compiled in such pocketbooks as Venture Forward by Hugh Lynn Cayce, Edgar Cayce on Reincarnation by Noel Langley, Edgar Cayce on Atlantis by Edgar Evans Cayce (all three from Paperback Library, 60c to 75c), and the popular biography, Edgar Cayce — The Sleeping Prophet by journalist Jess Stearn.

Cayce, who died in 1945, was a simple, religious man with little formal education. Yet, when in a trance, he could predict in knowledgeable terms future events — some of which have since occurred — in addition to offering home remedies for minor illnesses and suggestions for the cure of more serious diseases, such as cancer and arthritis.

The predictions which have materialized, such as the years the two world wars would begin and end, the death of John F. Kennedy, and the racial strife in America, begin to convince one that there are even more startling possibilities for our future.

Atlantis Emerges

The most disturbing prediction is that Los Angeles, San Francisco and New York will be destroyed, in all probability by earthquakes, and that most of the west coast will slip into the sea.

Geologists with their technical knowledge cannot deny such possibilities. The 1964 Alaska Quake actually set the stage for the truth of Cayce's predictions to occur between 1958-1998.

He stated that "the early portion (of these years) will see a change in the physical aspect of the West Coast of America."

One of his most excitingly optimistic predictions to materialize in the more immediate future (1968-69) is that the sunken remnants of the lost Continent of Atlantis would rise again in the waters around Bimini.

New Russia

Two other fantastic predictions — not to occur as immediately as the previous one — is that there will be an end of communism in Russia with a liberated Soviet — in alliance with the U.S.A. — becoming "the hope of the world," and the Christianization and democratization of Red China.

The subject of reincarnation is also explored in Cayce's life readings. According to Jess Stearn's account, "these were designed to dilineate past lives, which had most influenced this one, revealing attitudes, inclinations, and personalities presumably carried over from earlier existences in different bodies."

Of the two books particularly being reviewed, Mary Ellen Carter's (under the editorship of Hugh Lynn Cayce), although not as dramatically presented as Stearn's biography, is more factual and impartial, and thus more credible.

Stearn's book, on the other hand, is badly written in a rapidly journalistic style which gets bogged down in personal as well as repetitious details. Nevertheless, through both books, one cannot help being impressed by Cayce's life and work.

Russell's Genius Takes Dull Turn

THE AUTOBIOGRAPHY OF BERTRAND RUSSELL (Volume II) 1914-1944. McClelland and Stewart, $8.95.

Reviewed by Joan Coldwell

Where the first volume of Bertrand Russell's autobiography was uniformly lively, witty and informative, the second is patchy, underdeveloped and often plain dull.

It is all the more pity when it deals with such obviously fascinating material. The period covered spans the two world wars, a bleak time for Russell, both intellectually and socially.

In the first war he was imprisoned as a pacifist; during the second he was hounded around America, having been denied a job at City College in New York on the grounds that he had written works "lecherous, libidinous, lustful, venerous, erotomaniac, aphrodisiac, irreverent, narrow minded, untruthful and bereft of moral fibre."

This was the period of Russell's remarriages. With his second wife he founded a private school to experiment (unsuccessfully) with progressive methods of education for their children. The break-up of this marriage is not discussed; in 1936, Russell married Patricia Spence with whom he had collaborated on various historical writings.

There are some very moving passages in the book, particularly in Russell's wartime letters, and there are lively glimpses of other personalities, such as D. H. Lawrence and T. S. Eliot.

But the method of the autobiography is at fault. It is not always clear, for example, whether parts were written during the period described or many years afterwards—little appears to be of recent composition.

Further, more than half the book is taken up by selections of personal letters and since Russell had a habit of repeating the same passage to several correspondents, these often fail to interest. There is a splendidly rhetorical exchange of letters on the loss of a hat but this is the only time one catches anything like the wit of the previous volume.

When the projected third volume brings Russell's story up to date, the complete autobiography will be an invaluable record of the times as well as of an individual genius. Because of this, the present book is certainly important, but it is not the absorbing reading one hoped for.

The Canadian, United States and British children's book awards traditionally have gone to strange mixtures of books, from the obscure to the wildly popular. The three 1968 choices all reflect their national cultures, but, like earlier award choices, they vary considerably in their relevance and appeal.

From the Mixed-Up Files of Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler, winner of the American Library Association's Newbery Medal, should have the most popular appeal, despite the cumbersome title. It's a run-away-from-home story with well-defined, intriguing characters and lots of extras.

Bored with being good-old-straight-A's Claudia and stuck with a tiny allowance and the thousands of unjust chores falling to the oldest child and only girl in a New York suburban family, she wants to be gone long enough to give her parents a lesson in Claudia-appreciation.

Nine-year-old second brother Jaimie is chosen to go along because he can keep his mouth shut and, being a tightwad and a cheat at cards, he can contribute his fortune of $24.43.

Not one of these off to the woods with the bugs and dirt runaway trips for Claudia, though.

Simple Strength of Drawings Catch Flavor of Eskimo Life

A Fake Angel?

The Metropolitan Museum of Art provides their comfortable big city anonymity for over a week. With an enormous 16th century bed to sleep in, and the restaurant fountain to bathe in, their only problems seem to be avoiding the guards and eating on their slim allowances.

The impetus for the story comes in their unexpected necessity of finding out whether the new, highly publicized angel statue in the museum was actually done by Michaelangelo, just because they had to know, for themselves. The quest eventually leads them to Mrs. Basil E. Frankweiler, the former owner of the statue, and the crusty, rich old woman who narrates the whole book.

Claudia's need to identify herself, Jaimie's refreshing bluntness, and Mrs. Frankweiler's acid comments throughout make this award choice a tale well told and, I predict, one to be well received by both children and adults.

At the opposite pole in setting and mood, The White Archer, by James Houston, Canadian Book of the Year Award winner, should nevertheless have just as firm a place among the variety of important children's books. Full of bold, basic action and offering more than a surface dimension, it transcends the limitations of its Eskimo setting, although it could never have the wide appeal of a realistic story close to children's experience.

The same author-illustrator produced the 1965 winner, Tikta'liktak, an Eskimo legend similar, although perhaps not so far reaching, in implication. The earlier book was a well told survival story, but The White Archer goes beyond it to demonstrate to what purpose we live.

Wisdom Wins

Kungo survives an Indian massacre of his Eskimo village (his parents killed and sister carried off), and dedicates himself to revenge. After living two years with a seal hunter's family, he makes the fierce journey to an old archer and his wife, to learn the arts that will kill his enemies. But when he arrives at the Indian village to avenge his family years later, armed with the mighty bow Kikavik, pure white clothing sewn by the old woman, and a team of wolf-dogs he had raised himself, he cannot kill his enemies, but spends his fury in deadly accurate near-misses, piercing their clothing. He had absorbed the beauty of spirit, dignity and wisdom of the old couple and their deformed but strong dwarf companion as they traveled, hunted, sang and worked together.

The stark simplicity of the language, which could be read by an eight or nine year old, matches the Eskimo experience, and carries the richness and strength necessary to the dignity of the telling.

Hypnotic Owls

Perhaps the British Library Association's Carnegie Medal winner, The Owl Service, by Alan Garner, of the three award books is least understandable to children outside its own culture. It maintains a present day Welsh setting with the brooding atmosphere of the Mabinogion, a collection of medieval Welsh tales, penetrating and influencing the lives of ordinary people.

Alison and Roger, upper class English children living in Wales, and Gwyn, the Welsh son of their housekeeper, discover a dinner service painted with designs which can be seen either as owls or as flowers; whereupon the children begin to be taken over by the characters from the legend of the woman created from flowers and later turned into an owl for unfaithfulness to her husband.

Alison has near hypnotic spells where tracing owls and scraping the paint off the plates seem her only relief, and Gwyn tries to unravel the rest of the legend and extricate himself and Alison from it.

The primary weakness lies not in its elements of fantasy, but in the story's vagueness. The conflict never becomes focused or defined, and even after the final scene when Gwyn and his mother try to leave during a terrific storm and Alison psychologically accepts herself as flowers, not owls, the reader is left trying to sort out what actually happened. Indeed, almost nothing concrete does happen.

The Owl Service never actually moves into the realm of fantasy, and in this Garner has departed from his earlier widely acclaimed style of fantasy, in his Wierdstone of Brinsigamen and its sequels, which followed the Tolkien and C. S. Lewis tradition of a separate world where the forces of good and evil confront each other dramatically, usually in battle. Garner's present type of mood-fantasy interlaced with the real world is better offered to children in Lucy Boston's Green Knowe Books or Elizabeth Goudge's Little White Horse and Linnets and Valerians.

Another element of The Owl Service which would be strange to most Canadian children is the awareness of a class-locked society which pervades the realistic side of the story.

Gwyn is ambitious to raise his station through education and elocution, but Roger, at one point, says to Alison, "OK, he's intelligent: but he's not one of us and he never will be. He's a yob. An intelligent yob. That's all there is to it." This concept may need exposure, but in a total setting which is more comprehensible.

The combination of the intricate and vaguely realized world of Welsh legend, the class struggle, and a terrific dose of British and Welsh slang and coloquialism will probably deter all but the most determined non-British child from reading this Carnegie medal winner.

Empty Sex Well Bared

A BRAND NEW LIFE by James T. Farrell, Doubleday, 372 pp. $6.95.

Reviewed by Grant McOrmond

A Brand New Life is the fourth and final novel of the quartet that James T. Farrell has constructed around the lives of Roger Raymond and Anne Duncan in the Chicago of the twenties. It is not necessary for readers to have read the earlier parts of the series to understand or appreciate this latest work. Indeed, there will be many who may find in A Brand New Life an incentive to work back to the earlier Lonely for the Future, What Time Collects and The Silence of History.

Like most of Farrell's work, A Brand New Life is deceptively simple in both plot and style.

Anne Duncan Daniels, having divorced Zeke Daniels, moved from Valley City to Chicago in 1928, anxious to create a new life for herself in the city. Almost from the day of her arrival she meets and has an affair with Roger Raymond. When their passion wanes, she leaves him and runs off with his brother George.

Anne is a woman of no social or intellectual pretensions. Since the story is told with her voice, Farrell has managed to create and maintain the idiom that one would expect of a waitress of limited background.

SUBTLE IRONY

Yet with Farrell's artistry, the simplicity of the narrative in no way limits the reader's rich experience. Indeed, A Brand New Life, by practising economy of means, heightens the subtle irony of the lives depicted, until, as one closes the book, one becomes aware that Farrell is writing, in fact, the tragedy of modern life.

What Anne Duncan is seeking, as she arrives in Chicago is a new freedom, a freedom from the moral censors of Valley City, from the restrictions placed on her life by being married to one man, a man whose family looked down upon her as a social inferior. What she finds is sexual freedom as she enthusiastically initiates her affair with Roger Raymond.

Without her being aware of it, Anne finds in sex a surrogate for a sense of purpose and a sense of identity. She is anonymous in Chicago, without interests or occupation. By revelling in the excesses of the flesh, she is able to ignore her own poverty of mind and spirit.

ESCAPE TO ART

Both Roger and George Raymond, on the other hand, if less admirable characters, are more honest with themselves and more conscious of their loneliness and isolation. Neither has the courage to take on the responsibilities of marriage or a settled life, but both strive to find in art, at times even fraudulent art, a meaning and purpose to life; they seek their answers in a substitute for life rather than in life itself.

Some readers may find themselves disgusted with the uninhibited sordid sensuality of A Brand New Life. To see only that is to see only an unfair portion of what Farrell is attempting to show. The novel is not an erotic experience, but rather a profoundly moving exposure, layer by layer, of the muddled personalities of those who are caught up in the impersonal, meaningless existence of urban life.

Beheaded Mouse In a Mad World

ALL THE LITTLE ANIMALS, by Walker Hamilton. Doubleday (for Gollancz). 127 pp. $3.75.

This chilling little book is a difficult one to describe.

It belongs to a genre that is growing increasingly larger, in which an unworldly narrator — a child or a madman — lays bare the sophistication of modern life with the innocent logic of his own naivete. I suppose it all started with Holden Caulfield, and the type has been given new impetus by the mad Indian narrator of Ken Kesey's brilliant One Flew Over The Cuckoo's Nest. Their success has spawned a host of imitators in the U.S., but it is interesting to see an English novelist trying his hand in this style.

The narrator here is Bobby Platt, a retarded man-child of 31: "I was never a boy, not like other boys anyway, and I'm not a man like other men. I'm just me." Bobby meets up with a strange little man who calls himself Mr. Summers. The fact that the setting is Cornwall might suggest pixies, but it turns out that Mr. Summers is a refugee from commercial society, and he spends his life trudging the country lanes picking up the remains of "all the little animals" who have been run over. Bobby decides to join him since he is on the run from his step-father, "the Fat", who seems to stand for all that is cruel, rotten and modern.

DEADLY THUMB

Written in Bobby's childish style, the book succeeds as a stark little allegory that hits out against human cruelty and the almighty motor car. Seen through the narrator's "simple" eyes, events take on a heightened surrealistic quality: "His thumb had a very sharp, hard looking nail on it. It was like a curved knife . . . The thumb moved again and the mouse Peter's head went red with blood and then the head came off and the squealing stopped."

Yet beneath the shocks there runs a lyrical appreciation of a forgotten countryside: "The snails! Don't you think they look like ships? They carry their shells like great billowing sails, and the antennae look like the prow of some exotic galleon."

But as so often happens with this type of story, the book does not go much beyond the allegorical surface: a country life is not the simple heal-all that the story implies. The plot is clever and certain passages stick in one's mind, but it remains one-dimensional.

Aging Poet's Hurt Words

Despite the fact that he is over 30 — horrors of horrors — Leonard Cohen, the Canadian poet, novelist and ballad-maker, is one of the more articulate voices of the now-generation.

The son of an affluent Montreal family, he says this of himself: "I've been on the outlaw scene since I was 15. I had some things in common with the beatniks, and even more things with the hippies. The next thing may be even closer to where I am."

So now he lives on the Greek island of Hydra with Marianne, whom he calls "my lady," and their seven-year-old son, Axel. Occasionally he returns to Montreal to renew his "neurotic affiliations."

As a sign that Western civilization is due for a permanent upheaval, he notes that all the most sensitive of his contemporaries "are convulsed with pain." His latest message to his fellow sufferers can be found in Selected Poems, recently published by McLelland and Stewart.

Organ Expert Stops Squeals

By BERYL PROUDMAN

"Send for Hugo Spilker" is a cry that goes up whenever one of the 40 organs for which he is responsible runs into difficulty. If pipes shift and creak with cold or refuse to stop a howling cipher of anguish, help is at hand.

Vancouver Islanders have become so accustomed to Mr. Spilker's ministrations over the past nine years that many of us have forgotten the dark days when the only way to stop a squealing pipe was to stuff it with tissue paper or remove it altogether and manage without it until an organ-builder from the mainland came over on an infrequent tour of inspection.

Knowing that he took over only about 16 organs when he acquired the Vancouver Island franchise from Stan Haddon with whom he had been working in Vancouver, I asked Mr. Spilker what the other organ-owners did when their instruments needed repairs. "They just managed without, letting the organs deteriorate until things got so bad that something just had to be done" was his sad reply.

●

In Europe, where Mr. Spilker received his training, organists were expected to take care of the reeds which most frequently go out of tune and the organ-builder tuned only twice a year.

In North America the cult of specialization relieves organists of this chore but makes six-monthly tunings hopelessly inadequate.

For this specialization, Mr. Spilker is grateful because it keeps him busy and ensures that the instruments are properly tuned.

Since he has been here Hugo has persuaded many institutions that regular maintenance not only keeps the organ in better shape but, like a medical plan spreads the expense of occasional operations over a period of time, much easier to budget for than a crash remedial program.

Impressed by the organ-builder's skill, Graham Steed, a former organist of Christ Church Cathedral, suggested that he should come and live on the island. Though the transfer was a bit of a gamble, Mr. Spilker has never regretted moving to an area which has kept him busy for over nine years.

Particularly rewarding to this lover of organs is the fact that he arrived in time to save four antique organs which were just about to be scrapped when he discovered and refurbished them. The treasures he rescued are now in regular service in the Church of Our Lord, the West Gallery of Christ Church Cathedral, St. John's Church, Duncan, and in Cumberland United Church.

Though most of his work is done in churches he also maintains instruments in schools, private homes and funeral parlors.

Though he always envisages an ideal organ for each installation, Hugo Spilker willingly compromises wherever he can. Practical considerations urge him to use sound parts of old organs and build the renewed instrument around them.

Sensitive to the attachment of churchgoers to organs given as memorials, he tries thus to maintain a link with the deep-rooted past while adding modern improvements.

Those who ask for an instrument too large for their building are gently reminded that size does not denote quality. "The number of manuals doesn't tell you what is on them.' he explains.

●

In persuading committees to let the organ speak out unmuffled by discreet curtain or seemly screen, Mr. Spilker argues that a concealed instrument must be larger and more costly.

Positioning the organ in the building is important to its sound, so wherever he goes Mr. Spilker scans large unused galleries. Very recently he found particular pleasure in lifting the organ at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church out of the case in which it was embedded. The elevated and refinished organ now sounds far more effectively through the church.

St. Andrew's has invited the organist from Christ Church Cathedral to give a recital to celebrate the occasion in September.

Though he imports most of his pipes from the factory in Holland where he received his training, the master-craftsman "voices" them in his own studio.

Voicing, the art whereby a tuner brings individual pipes into accord with the rest of the organ, depends on the ear and taste of the organ-builder and so puts a personal trademark on each instrument.

●

Many organs have a distinct personality so that while some plod along uncomplaining for years, others, more neurotic, require constant attention.

There is something special about a custom-made pipe organ specially designed and built to fit the decor and budget of a particular building. Many institutions, which managed with an old reed-organ or an electronic instrument until paying off a mortgage or building a hall, start saving for their own pipe organ and, knowing his reputation as a builder, they turn to Hugo Spilker to help them.

Outstanding Jazz Musician Taught Himself Vibraharp

By RUSSELL FREETHY

Freethy

Twenty-five years old, almost shoulder-length hair, tasteful mod attire; impressive sideman credits, composer and arranger, and leader of one of the outstanding jazz ensembles of the day. Self-taught and playing with easy dexterity on the vibraharp and with total involvement in his music. This is Gary Burton.

In 1959, Gary Burton attended the first National State Band Camp at Indiana State University. The next year at 17 he made his recording debut, with guitarist Hank Garland. The same year, he attended the Newport Jazz Festival with a jazz contingent from Nashville. But, because of a riot, they never did perform. An album (After the Riot at Newport) was all that came of it.

Two years later, he was awarded a Berkeley School of Music scholarship. Here he studied composition and arrangement, developed his talents and expanded his musical horizons.

In 1963, he joined the George Shearing Quintet and during this time had the first of his own works performed and recorded. He left Shearing a year later to join Stan Getz. The next two years were frustrating for him.

Working for someone else, with no chance to express his own ideas. With Getz, he was the image of a studious musician — crew cut, bespectacled and conservative in dress. Today his image mirrors his music. It is young and fresh, adventurous and original.

The Gary Burton Quartet was formed in April, 1967, with Burton on vibes, Bobby Moses on drums, guitarist Larry Coryell and bassist Steve Swallow. Roy Haynes has recently replaced Moses on drums. The music of the group is written by Burton and by Swallow.

On stage they are capable of arousing enthusiasm not only with an educated jazz audience, but in younger listeners as well. Burton makes a point of playing a rock concert or club maybe one in every ten dates. "It gets us to audiences we normally wouldn't reach. Unlike a rock group we don't captivate an audience with volume. The people have to listen for our music. It's a challenge."

Their success with younger audiences is comparable to that of Charles Lloyd. Visual, musical and generational appeal.

They have been booked into a variety of clubs and jazz workshops such as the Village Vanguard in New York and the Electric Factory, a rock haven, in Philadelphia. They have toured back to back with some of the biggest names in jazz. And a concert in Carnegie Hall to top it off.

This year is a big one for the quartet. They have played at Newport and will play in Monterey (if it happens). Currently on a 22-city tour of the U.S., they begin their second European tour in October.

Charles Lloyd has lost two of his sidemen. His drummer, Jack DeJohnette has gone to the Bill Evans Trio, and his brilliant pianist, Kieth Jarret has been prevented from appearing in dates outside of the United States by Uncle Sam's draft board. At least his classificaion is fitting—1A.

Don Shirley, an exciting and impassioned pianist, is making a strong comeback after his long absence from the music world.

He will be the featured soloist of an all Gershwin program in the Hollywood Bowl on Sept. 7.

SQUARE TYRANNY PLAGUES ART

By TED LINDBERG

Lindberg

At Pandora's Box Gallery, former Vancouverite Larry Kristmanson, who now teaches at the Alberta School of Art, is being featured in a one-man show of prints and paintings.

Once again we are treated to the same strongly-patterned rectilinear, architectonic land, aerial and sea-scapes; decorative and sometimes pretty—so lacking in pictorial or emotional conviction that they are about as stimulating as a blackboard filled with completed tick-tack-toe games.

We see so much of this sort of thing, even among local artists, that there seems nothing left but the prospect of discussing the relative merits and weaknesses of this kind of art.

Most of all, it evidences the tyranny of the square and rectangular format, which will yet cause the demise of easel painting, and underlines the necessity for three dimensional and eccentrically-shaped supports.

And where the landscape is concerned, there isn't a way that square or rectangular format hasn't been drawn and quartered; proportioned, re-apportioned, fenestrated and colored; ad nauseam, from here to infinity.

Always Wonder

I always wonder at the complete lack of curiosity or cunning that exists among so many artists. The most cursory flip through some basic histories or art magazines should prompt something more than this sort of thing.

They could "lift" styles, techniques and imagery as much as a hundred years old; rework it to exhaustion, wallow in eclecticism; and still retain more integrity than they exhibit in these hackneyed and perfunctory topographies.

People buy this sort of thing, I know. It's well-carpentered, level and plumb. The images are recognizable and stay put. It offends no one, not even the decor, but unfortunately neither does it stir anyone.

If this old complaint is becoming a bit of a bore, you will at least share my own feeling of tedium about the oft' told tale which has simply become too oft' told.

This would be comparable to a situation where "the Tortoise and the Hare" were the only story recounted in the world of literature, or the only music, variations on "Three Blind Mice." A simplistic analogy, perhaps, but no more so than the case at hand.

So Little

Most people expect so little from art that they get exactly what they deserve: a picture that they cease to "see" after a week or two.

Kristmanson has four paintings in the show which are big enough in scale and bright enough in color to demand some continued attention. They are even pleasing in a superficial way, visionary and inventive to a point.

The artist has permitted himself the luxury of a little dripped paint, but not without the constrainment of somehow weaving it into a total design and blotting it carefully before it gets out of hand.

There is an overiding urge to combine something of the abstract and the descriptive in totally compatible terms, to the detriment of the painting.

In "Prairie Flight," the largest and the most successful of the paintings, Kristmanson evokes the landscape from aerial heights, revealing the natural abstraction of variegated green fields and contours, yellowed through a central path up to a horizon of light-to-medium blue bands. The composition is at least interesting because it can be read frontally or cartographically, providing a bit of ambiguity.

Bright Red

Another painting, "Harbour Pier," is a sectioned view, presumably above and below water, of a bright red structure composed of verticle dribbles, reiterated beneath the water's surface in blues and greens. Here, the structure seems organic rather than man-made, perhaps another redeeming factor to titillate the imagination.

Prints comprise most of the show: etchings, aquatints, lithographs, linocuts and a serigraph. Their themes are stylized variations on harbours; islands, shore-edges, mountains, cities and boats.

Art in Review

Mr. Kristmanson has mastered all of the technical means to making these prints, (I should venture to guess that he teaches graphics or printmaking), but again the resulting imagery is somehow manditory and half-hearted, as if these themes were used because everyone knows that harbors, islands, etc., per se, are things of beauty and profound importance.

Just possibly he nurtures some sincere and romantic feelings about this subject matter, but if he does, it is not because he has considered any of it sufficiently to make a reasonably significant statement.

It is reasonable to assume that everyone is particularly moved by certain symbols, experiences or conditions. It should follow then, that a person sufficiently equipped as an artist should find the means to make an adequately unique statement of belief.

Contrarily, I cannot accept that all the artists who are, in this day and age, nature painters, are really interested in nature, when they slight it and slander it at every turn.

More than often, what Mr. Kristmanson has done is to take a visual experience and "milk" it for the decorative design elements, instead of emotional and intellectual essence. The viewer is not likely to find any more reward in such a composition than was injected by the artist.

PRIZE FILM MADE BY HOUSEWIFE

By LINDA DEUTSCH

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — When a painter becomes a director and a housewife turns film producer, what can the end result possibly be?

In the case of C. Soutine, it's an art film about an artist, and it has walked off with this year's Venice Film Festival's prized golden lion for best documentary.

C. Soutine chronicles with stunning impact the life, work and thought of Chaim Soutine, Russian-born painter who influenced the Paris school of impressionists and post-impressionists.

The movie was the brainchild of Rita Morrison, a Los Angeles doctor's wife who studied film at University of California at Los Angeles.

For her subject she chose Soutine, a painter whose reputation lagged behind his contemporaries.

But now, 25 years after Soutine's death, there was to be an exhibition of his work at the Los Angeles County Museum of Art. Curator Maurice Huchman set out for Paris to ferret out Soutine works hidden in attics and cellars of the artist's friends. With him went Rita Morrison.

In Paris they found one of Soutine's mistresses. Mrs. Morrison quickly hired a camera crew and filmed an interview with the petite Mlle Garde. They visited Mme. Madelaine Castaing, an early supporter of the artist.

"She showed us one of Soutine's portraits, Mrs. Morrison says. "She complained that it was dirty, and she called a maid and had her scrub the face with soap and water. I was horrified."

Back in Los Angeles with her film, Mrs. Morrison recruited Jack H. Lieberman, 38, onetime painter and lecturer in the humanities. As a film director he had several documentaries to his credit.

Lieberman brought in Ken Plotin, young cinematographer, and Fred Haines, screenwriter who had worked on the film Ulysses.

ROBINSON NARRATED FILM

Edward G. Robinson, a Soutine admirer and art collector, agreed to narrate.

Lieberman says: "In researching Soutine's life I found that he was haunted by a childhood experience. As a boy, he witnessed the Jewish ritual slaughter of a chicken."

Examination of Soutine canvasses further revealed tortured visions of dying animals—bleeding chickens, hulks of butchered cattle.

"He was a visceral painter," says Lieberman, "and the film had to be visceral."

The film opens in a slaughterhouse.

Then all is filmed in dark sepia tones—Peltin's idea. It gives the effect of viewing a very old photograph album.

Canadian Plays Not Plentiful

By INA WARREN

OTTAWA (CP) — "I find writing about the Canadian theatre or drama depressingly like discussing the art of sailing among the Bedouins."

Such was the caustic comment of one Canadian journalist and author in 1929 as he surveyed the country's theatrical scene.

Almost 40 years later, the number of full-time Canadian playwrights can be counted on one hand, and the average theatre-goer is hard put to remember the last time a Canadian play was staged.

"We will never have a Canadian dramatic literature unless we encourage Canadian writers," says Gladys Watt, an elderly silver-haired woman who since 1949 has been chairman of the Canadian Playwriting Competition.

Formed in 1939 by members of the Ottawa Little Theatre, one of Canada's oldest amateur dramatic companies, the competition attempts to give an outlet to aspiring home-grown playwrights.

Open to professional and non-professional writers who submit an original one-act play, the competition receives manuscripts from people in every walk of life, from Whitehorse in the Yukon to Souris, P.E.I.

WORK APPRAISED

This year more than 100 plays have been entered, with the winners to be announced today. Identified by a code number to ensure the author's anonymity, the plays are judged by a leading Canadian dramatist and returned to the writer with a frank appraisal of his or her work.

Why are only one-act plays accepted?

Mrs. Watt says competition officials feel that plays of two or three acts are too cumbersome for the neophyte author to handle. Another factor is that one-acters usually require only a small cast and a minimum of staging, which makes them more attractive to low-budget drama groups.

For those who think that a one-act play is easy to write, Mrs. Watt recalls the case of one man who entered the competition three years in a row, each time to have his entry torn to bits by a different adjudicator. Finally, in irritation he wrote to Mrs. Watt.

"Mad as a hatter, he informed me that he had had three plays on Broadway. I checked with the adjudicator, and sure enough he was a fairly well-known playwright. But he could not write a one-act play."

Each year the number of entries in the competition increases and the manuscripts are presented more professionally.

But Mrs. Watt would like to see a lot more Canadian plays get on the boards — "Not because they are Canadian but because they are good theatre."

MEANT TO BE STAGED

A few years ago, a prize-winner written by a civil servant, A Button is Missing, was the first play to be held over in the history of the Ottawa Little Theatre.

Mrs. Watt feels that if that play can do it, others can.

The competition sees to it that the winning plays of each year are printed. They are then made available to drama groups across the country, which may write for them.

Mrs. Watts stresses that the plays "are not for private libraries, they are for production."

She says that although 53 plays are printed, "a lot of good ones are not printed; we can't print them — we haven't got the money."

Most of the plays produced are done by amateur groups in church basements or high school auditoriums. Others have been adapted for radio and television, and some have made it to Broadway.

Holder of a number of awards for her work to develop Canadian theatre, Mrs. Watt considers public indifference to Canadian authors her biggest stumbling block.

But in some ways things have improved. The first-prize play now receives $250 as compared to $5 in the competition's early days.

And Mrs. Watt says that in the early days she couldn't get anyone to read a Canadian play, let alone judge it.

Africans Featured At Fair

The rebirth of Black Africa is highlighted in all its multi-cultured facets in the Africa Place complex at Man and His World, the permanent international exhibition in Montreal.

Of unique African design and decor, bordered by picturesque canals, Africa Place offers visitors a colorful look into the cultural, economic and industrial life of 14 nations from West and East Africa.

Africa Place signifies more than the presence of Africa at Man and His World, however. It is also a meeting place, a place where the cultures and people of the industrialized countries can meet the ancient cultures and developing economies of the emerging nations of the vast dark continent.

This Anthology of Works Read by Poets Themselves

The Caedmon Treasury of Modern Poets reading their own poetry. TC 2006.

By BERYL PROUDMAN

One advantage this two-record album has over most poetry recordings is that it has historical significance as a record of the actual voices of several great 20th Century poets.

Instead of exquisitely modulated, often intense but stylized readings by expert actors, we hear the gravelly voice of Robert Frost, old in experience, wise in philosophy and earthy as an apple.

Yeats almost sings his poems in his lilting Irish brogue and Gertrude Stein recites her hypnotically repetitive semantic jingles with the precision of a metronome.

What is lost in perfection of tone is more than compensated by the insight into the verses the poets' readings give. When T. S. Eliot drops h's and tipsily slurs "goonights" he obviously means his readers to hear the language of common folk in his poem Ash Wednesday.

The dark intensity of Edith Sitwell's voice adds power to her lines while Louis MacNeice's pinched scholarly diction is autobiographical.

His obsession with individual letters and rhythmic patterns have puzzled many students of E. E. Cummings' poems who will find his reading illuminating. As well as stressing internal rhymes sounds his lines as long smooth units without corners and fills gaps between words by drawing out vowels in a lyric intonation.

The sense rather than the shape of Marianne Moore's poetry is brought out by her practical comfortable voice but the cynicism of William Empson's social comments is underlined by his voice, so aloof and gentlemanly that it sounds like a Seller's impersonation.

he sounds his lines as long makes Stephen Spender sound very young and fervent, while William Carlos Williams and Wallace Stevens both squeeze out their sentences with a painful jerkiness which makes them sound as though they are creating rather than reading.

Elizabeth Bishop is a delightful reader.

Her humorous shoulder-shrugging acceptance of the unchangeable is witty and charming, yet images like "a mystic three-legged carrot" and "a donkey who brays like a pump run dry" are vividly poetic.

Though many of these poets have died in the past few years, the tone of the album is "modern" and 13 of the 19 poets are represented in the poetry book now being used by Grade X students.

Because many of the poets were born before 1900 and suffered the effects of two world wars, the poems tend to be serious, but there is much variety both in the poems read and the voices reading them.

One side is devoted to T. S. Eliot but the other three contain a number of contrasted works, most of them short.

The most dramatic and clearly articulate of the readers is Dylan Thomas.

No wonder he was such a popular lecturer, for there is a dynamic grandeur in his rhapsodic recitation which easily captivates his audience.

Film Idea Began as TV Program

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — For the first time in the history of the Disney Studio, a feature cartoon is being made without the guidance and control of Walt Disney.

Jungle Book was the last animated feature produced under the watchful supervision of Walt, who oversaw all the films, beginning with the trail-blazing Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs in 1937. Now his studio's animators and artists are engaged in a brand-new film, The Aristocats.

"Actually, Walt did put the project into work," says Wolfgang Woolie Reitherman, directing the feature.

"At the beginning it was very loose, just as all of them are at the start. It began as a show for the television series, after 101 Dalmations (1961). The idea kept growing, and it appeared more suitable for a full-length feature."

HAS DISNEY'S IMPRINT

The Aristocats had scarcely progressed beyond the formative stages when Disney died in December 1966.

While he hadn't animated a frame of film since the earliest days of Mickey Mouse, his imprint had been placed on every detail of the cartoon features.

Since there is no extra charge to see the "ROMANTIC AFTER-DARK ILLUMINATION," come early in the evening and see these 30 acres of heavenly beauty by daylight. Refresh yourself with a cup of your favorite beverage, etc., at the coffee bar. As darkness takes over, stroll leisurely through the gardens . . . you'll be amazed at the transformation as the romantic night lights work their magic, spread their splendor over the entire 30 acres. So grand, Reader's Digest is proudly featuring these gardens in its publications throughout the world. To see the fabulous Sunken Garden and the amazing "Ross Fountains" after-dark is worth a visit in itself. Travel the world over and you'll never see anything to compare. Surrounded by the sheltering hills, the gardens are usually warm and balmy. Should it shower, don't worry. Free use of umbrellas.

Price Dip Shown In Stock Market

By GERALD CLARKSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Prices fluctuated in a narrow range on Canadian stock markets this week, drifting to a small over-all loss.

However, industrials, western oils and base metals are still near their high for the year and brokers say the upward trend is expected to revive.

Among sizeable declines, Peel Elder dropped 4 to 39½, Kenting 3¾ to 26¼, Canadian Goldale 3¼ to 28¼, Falconbridge 3¼ to 98¾, Inco 1⅜ to 41⅛ and Cominco 1⅛ to 27.

Although the four major Toronto indexes were down, gains outnumbered losses at both Toronto and Montreal. Jefferson Lake jumped 5½ to 36¾, Tamblyn 4 to 38, Consolidated Textile 4 to 14¼, Great West Life 4¾ to 76¼, Gordon Mackay B 3¾ to 15⅝ and Fleetwood 3 to 18¼.

Firm industrial groups included chemicals, utilities, retailers and trust and loan issues. Banks and industrial mines were lower.

Despite the market's drab performance, brokers were optimistic over the easier money market conditions and the widespread predictions of further cuts in bank rate.

Analysts noted that the impact of the Czech crisis has completely worn off; although cautious trading on European stock markets was partly attributed to a backwash from last week's shock.

The high level of the indexes, which have been climbing on a general trend since the beginning of April, show that stocks are still in a bull phase, and a respected Toronto chartist categorically states that prices are poised for a strong further advance.

He bases this belief on a study of the long-term behavior of seasoned industrials, and recommends investors to buy now — particularly if prices dip.

He says he holds the same view of the New York market, despite the enormous domestic and overseas problems which make Wall Street so volatile.

An unfavorable wind blew on the brokerage business this week when the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission charged malpractice against Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith, the world's largest stockbroker.

The charges alleged that Merrill Lynch supplied 14 institutional investors with private information about the declining earnings of Douglas Aircraft Co. two years ago, and thus enabled them either to sell their stock and avoid a loss, or sell Douglas short and make a profit.

At the same time, other customers of Merrill Lynch were not given this information and therefore went on investing in Douglas.

Canadian analysts thought the allegations, which were strongly contested by Merrill Lynch spokesmen, might provoke public distrust of the securities industry.

Jockey Club Up

Net profit of The Jockey Club Ltd. was $596,140 (eight cents a common share) for six months ended June 30, 1968, compared with $555,454 (six cents) for seven months ended June 30, 1967. The fiscal year-end was changed to Dec. 31 from Nov. 30, in 1967.

Gross revenues increased 3.2 per cent to $10,986,264 and operating expenses 3.6 per cent to $8,634,661.

The first month of the seven-month period ended June 30, 1967, due to the seasonal nature of operations, had no effect on revenues for the period, E. P. Taylor, chairman said.

BANK DROPS RATE AGAIN

OTTAWA (CP)—Governor Louis Rasminsky of the Bank of Canada announced Friday night a cut in the bank rate to 6 per cent, from 6½ per cent, effective Sept. 3.

His brief announcement said the cut was "in line with recent developments in Canada and abroad."

The bank rate is the rate of interest charged by the Bank of Canada on loans to the chartered banks. They rarely draw such advances, and then only for short periods, but the central bank stands ready to make the advances as so-called lender of last resort in the banking system.

By the bank rate it sets, the Bank of Canada gives a signal to the financial community about its views of the credit situation.

When the central bank was trying to dampen down an over-heated economy last year it pushed the rate to 6 per cent in November, and to 7 per cent in January this year.

The rate was pushed up to its peak of 7½ per cent March 15—the day the London gold market was closed in the crisis over gold.

A free market price for gold was then established by international bankers, letting it ride higher than the $35 an ounce U.S. price still used for international monetary purposes.

The Bank of Canada reduced the bank rate to 7 per cent July 2 after more ease was permitted in the money markets and short-term interest rates began to fall. It was cut further to 6½ per cent on July 29.

New York Trading Reflects Caution

NEW YORK (AP) — A cautious stock market remained on an even keel during the last week in advance of the Labor Day weekend, traditionally a turning point for business and the market.

Caution was reflected by the fact that weekly volume shrank to 38,592,280 shares from 45,592,460 the previous week. It was the lightest volume for any of the series of 12 weeks in which exchanges have been closed one day a week so that brokerage houses could catch up with paper work.

The New York and American stock exchanges decided to continue the one-day-a-week closings through September, pending developments.

The Dow Jones industrial average this week rose 3.67 to 896.01.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped .6 to 333.1.

On the whole it was a firm to slightly higher market, but movements were so slight as to carry little significance.

Of 1,654 issues traded the past week on the New York Stock Exchange, 789 rose and 721 declined.

Despite the business and economic news background, which was quite good, the market seemed to lack inspiration and to be watching and waiting for some definite clue.

The market Monday posted a gain, but it drifted irregularly lower Tuesday. On Wednesday, the day of the market recess, newspapers reported fraud charges leveled against the world's greatest brokerage firm, Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner and Smith. This might have shaken up the market had the news come when the market was open. As it happened, when trading resumed Thursday, there was no apparent response in a groping session. The trading week ended with a quiet rise Friday.

The five most active issues the past week on the New York Stock Exchange were:

Control Data, up 3 at 131 on 561,600 shares; Schenley, up 2½ at 56¾; Glen Alden, off ⅛ at 14½; American Telephone, unchanged at 51⅜; and Penn Central, off ⅞ at 65¾.

The five most active issues the past week on the American Stock Exchange were:

Commonwealth United, off 2 at 17½ on 361,500 shares; Waltham Precision, up 2½ at 25⅜; Christiana Oil, unchanged at 9½; Relianee Insurance, off 4¼ at 68: ¼-END Canadian Homestead, up 13-16 at 83 3-16.

More Probes On Pipeline Advised

WASHINGTON (CP) — Examiner William Levy of the Federal Power Commission Friday recommended further hearings to determine to what extent, if any, the certificate issued to Great Lakes Transmission Co. for its $212 million pipeline should be "modified or set aside."

He made no recommendation on whether construction of the line should be halted until the issues involved are finally resolved.

Levy's recommendations, following a three-day hearing earlier this week, also called for the filing of prepared testimony in support of the action the various parties are urging the commission to take by Sept. 29. The hearings would be reconvened on or about Oct. 31.

Farmers Win Rail Allowance, Grain on Move

DAWSON CREEK (CP) — Grain farmers in the Peace River area were moving feed grain to elevators today after winning a cartage allowance from Pacific Great Eastern Railway to combat a price drop.

Farmers had withheld shipments to protest the drop in prices. In discussions Thursday with the provincially-owned PGE, they were given an allowance of 18-cents a hundredweight until Aug. 1, 1969.

More than 1,000 farmers in the area voted heavily in favor of stopping all shipments to elevators. Grain company officials advised against this and said farmers should seek lower freight rates.

Canadian wheat board price for No. 1 feed barley has dropped to $1.11 a bushel from $1.28¾ a year ago. The drop was attributed to "a surplus and other countries underselling Canada."

Railways Losing To Airlines

TORONTO (CP) — Railroads have lost the battle with the airlines for Canada's long-distance passengers and cannot continue fighting, the chairman and chief executive officer of the Canadian Pacific Railway said.

N. R. Crump, whose railway transported 6,138,757 passengers last year mostly over long distances, said Canada's geography and population patterns preclude a continued fight between land and air carriers for passengers.

"By 1980, 80 per cent of our population will live in urban areas," Crump said. "They won't need long-distance trains."

The future of railroading in Canada is in short-distance passenger service and in freight handling, he said.

Even the future of commuter service is amorphous, Crump said, because "84 per cent of intercity passenger miles are by private automobile — and that percentage is getting bigger every day."

Crump was interviewed after a speech to the Canadian National Exhibition directors' luncheon on Transportation

Oil Company's Production Stalled

EDMONTON (CP) — Mechanical difficulties have forestalled Great Canadian Oil Sands Ltd. attempts to bring its operation to capacity production, it was announced in the company's mid-year report.

To June 30, the company had obtained $25.3 million in additional financing through further borrowing in the Canadian short-term money market and bank loans.

It is anticipated that "substantial amounts" of this short-term debt will be replaced by long-term financing when the plant becomes fully operational and when market conditions are satisfactory.

The company has applied to the Alberta oil and gas conservation board for permission to increase production from 45,000 barrels daily to 65,000. It said the increase would not involve technological changes but the existing plant would be expanded and augmented as necessary.

It was estimated that by the end of 1970 recoverable bitumen in the lease will amount to approximately 620 million barrels, "a quantity sufficient to supply the proposed expanded operation for a minimum of 20 years."

National Drug

National Drug and Chemical Co. of Canada Ltd. reported net income of $117,000 or 22 cents a share for the 28 weeks ended July 16, against $107,000 or 20 cents a year earlier.

Sales were $39.3 million against $38 million.

Canada, U.S. Examine Auto Pact Broadening

OTTAWA (CP) — Both Canada and the United States are interested in broadening the auto pact between the two countries, Industry Minister Jean-Luc Pepin reported Friday.

He made the statement in announcing conclusion of a two-country review of the pact, signed early in 1965 and providing free trade at the manufacturer's level in autos and auto parts.

In Canada, Mr. Pepin said, the pact has meant "notable progress" in increasing production, employment, trade and productivity.

It has also cut appreciably the difference in car prices between Canada and the U.S., he said. He cited no figures in support of this contention.

Mr. Pepin's announcement said the review with U.S. authorities began last December, and considerable progress has been made in simplifying customs and other procedures.

"Both sides indicated an interest in exploring ways of broadening the agreement to the benefit of each country," the announcement said.

"Discussions to this end will be continued when the United States administration is in a position to recommend the necessary legislation to Congress."

The announcement also provided a number of statistics on results of the pact.

Two-way trade in automotive products had increased to $3.3 billion in 1967 from $760 million in 1964, and the 1968 figure would be even larger.

In the 1968 model year, one million vehicles had been manufactured in Canada, compared with 700,000 four years earlier.

Exports of vehicles and components had increased to more than $2 billion from $123 million over the same period.

Ogilvie Flour

Ogilvie Flour Mills Co. Ltd. reported net income of $2,134,000 or 66 cents a share on sales of $88,407,000 for the eight months ended April 30. Year-earlier figures wer not provided.

For the year ended Aug. 31, 1967, Ogilvie's net was $3,633,000 or $1.16 a share on sales of $136,527,000.

The year end has been changed to conform with that of John Labatt Ltd. which currently owns 96.8 per cent of Ogilvie's common outstanding shares and is seeking the balance through an offer open until Dec. 27.

Sileurian Chieftain

Sileurian Chieftain Ltd. reports a large high grade deposit of molybdenum has been found at its Alice Arm property, 100 miles north of Prince Rupert.

Hollinger Mines

Hollinger Mines Ltd. had consolidated net profits of $3,154,000 or 64 cents a share in the first six months of this year, compared with $2,417,000 or 49 cents in the similar 1967 period.

Revenue from gold production declined to $1,605,000 from $3,068,000, but income from iron ore rights and concessions rose to $5,049,000 from $3,441,000.

"Scheduled shipments of iron ore for 1968 are above those of 1967 and the settlement of labor problems on the St. Lawrence Seaway and in the United States steel mills has rmoved certain elements of uncertainty with respect to forecasts," the company said.

"As a consequence, and barring unforeseen circumstances, it is expected that Hollinger earnings in 1968 will be somewhat above those of 1967."

GMR Reduces Loss

Grouse Mountain Resorts Ltd., which operates the skyride and other facilities on Grouse Mountain near Vancouver, started to climb towards a profit position in the year ended May 31 with a net loss of $42,159 compared with a $137,570 loss last year.

The company reported a profit before deductions of $245,872 up from $125,833 a year ago.

Revenue reached $607,461 compared with $564,448 in the same 1967 period.

President John E. Hoegg said passenger traffic for the year totalled 236,918 an increase from 174,856 in the previous year.

CMR bought 43 per cent of the common stock of its competitor, Lifts Ltd. (CCT) on June 28 and acquired 100 per cent of Ski Village Ltd.

Bow Valley Revenue

Bow Valley Industries Ltd., a Calgary holding company, reported gross revenue of $28,071,784 in the year ended May 31, 1968. Gross revenue was $24,487,750 in the previous year.

Net income in the year ended May 31, 1968, was $1,264,774, compared with $1,591,938 in the previous year.

The company's subsidiaries deal in oil and natural gas production well drilling, oil and mining equipment manufacture and sales, real estate, steel and aviation.

Investors Group

The Investors Group reports net earnings for the first six months of this year were about $191,000 higher than for the same period last year.

C. E. Atchison, president of the Winnipeg-based investment company, said in a semi-annual report the net income to June 30 was $3,051,934, or 34 cents a share.

Net income for the same period in 1967 was $2,860,557.

"It is encouraging to note that the investment climate improved during the first six months of this year, despite several unsettling developments at home and abroad," he said.

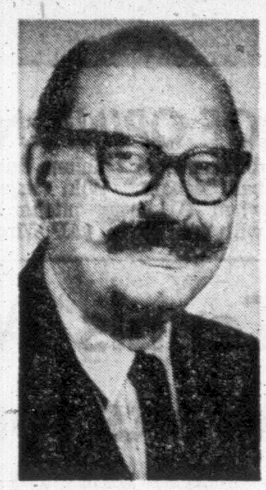
"The fact that by mid-year interest rates were starting to ease from record high levels is a particularly favorable trend."

Mr. Atchison said the company has declared a 20-cent dividend payable Sept. 30 to shareholders on record Aug. 30. The dividend brings the total so far this year to 40 cents a share.

The report said assets under the company's management totalled $1,510 billion, a record high campared with $1,423 billion a year ago.

Imperial Life Co.

The Imperial Life Assurance Company has announced that the $2½ billion mark in total life insurance protection was passed in July. The $2 billion milestone was reached in December, 1965.



NAMED president of the newly-founded Association of Professional Economists of British Columbia is Dr. John Rienstra of Vancouver, vice-president of Joseph B. Ward and Associates (International) Ltd. Dr. Rienstra, who is also chairman of the Port of Vancouver Development Committee, said the group will first establish a code of ethics and qualification standards.

Ford Delays Head Rests

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. announced it has not decided whether to install head rests in its 1969 line of automobiles in advance of the Jan. 1 federally-dictated instalment date, John Naughton, vice-president of Ford and general manager of Ford Division, said.

American Motors Corp. and General Motors Corp. both have indicated they will put the new safety idea—the head rest—on all their 1969 cars, even those built months in advance of the federal deadline.

Chrysler Corp. confused the picture somewhat last week when it announced it would have the head rests as an extra-price option until Jan. 1 and would make them mandatory after that date.

What this means, in effect, is that if GM and AMC announce their new car prices in mid-September they apparently will have to include the estimated $20 to $25 head-rest cost in the price ticket on new cars from the beginning of the model run.

Chrysler's decision meant it would not have to include the head rest item until Jan. 1 in the price of its cars. In other words, Chrysler would have an original price advantage since it would not be including the head rest and could come up with an amended price Jan. 1.

Canada's Torrid Trade Pace

By JAMES NELSON
Fourth of a Series

OTTAWA (CP) — If Canada maintains for the next two years the torrid pace of exports it has attained in the last two, it will far exceed the 1970 trade goals set by the Economic Council of Canada.

The council said in its first annual review of the economy, after being established five years ago, that exports should rise to $10,500,000,000 by 1970, from the 1963 level of about 7,000,000,000.

Canada came near that mark in 1966, exceeded it last year, and exports for this year are in stride with the government's present objective of $12,300,000,000 for 1968.

The council's first report, in January, 1965, set goals to bring Canada to the full realization of its economic potential by 1970, and said this about trade:

"Periods of sustained economic growth and prosperity in Canada have historically and almost invariably been associated with dynamically expanding exports and imports. . . . A large rise in exports is necessary to attain our potential output target in 1970."

●

Imports, of course, would also be expected to grow dramatically, and they have. From about $6,600,000,000 in 1963, they climbed last year to $10,900,000,000, which is almost the council's $11,000,000,000 target for 1970.

The council noted that in the past during periods of boom, imports have tended to increase more vigorously than exports.

This happened in 1965 and 1966, reducing the merchandise trade surplus, but last year's big boom in exports more than exceeded the gain in imports. The council said that by 1970, Canada's traditional surplus of goods exports over goods imports might be converted into a deficit.

In non-merchandise transactions between Canada and other countries—travel receipts and expenditures, payment of interest and dividends, freight and shipping charges and the like—the council expected that Canada's usual deficit might widen.

The council's targets for 1970 in both merchandise and non-merchandise trade would result in a deficit of about $2,000,000,000 in Canada's over-all balance of international payments.

Canada usually runs a current-account deficit, but much more modest than this figure. It is covered by the inflow of foreign capital, mainly from the United States, in long-term investment.

●

But the council was not alarmed at the size of the balance-of-payments deficit projected for the end of the decade. It said the level of domestic savings would be relatively high when Canada reached the fullness of its potential, and added:

"Sustained massive foreign capital inflows are not indicated as being necessary to finance the high levels of investment required to attain such output in 1970."

The council said that to achieve the export goals it set forth, it would be essential that Canada's exports of manufactured goods "rise at a very rapid rate." The growth rate should be 10 per cent a year.

The Canada-U.S. Auto Free Trade Agreement has added a fillip to Canada's exports of manufactured goods. Exports of motor vehicles and parts climbed to $1,753,000,000 last year from $100,000,000 in 1963.

Exports of aircraft and parts have almost tripled, to $314,000,000 from $108,000,000, and shipments of chemicals and fertilizers have gained one-third, to $390,000,000 from $268,000,000, in last year's export figures compared with those of 1963.

Exports of all other manufactured goods, apart from processed raw materials such as wood pulp, newsprint and metal products, climbed to $1,461,000,000 last year from $886,000,000 in 1963.

Economists and government officials have worried about Canada pricing itself out of world markets.

Of the world's leading trading nations—Canada, the United States, Japan, Germany and the United Kingdom—the growth of Canadian trade between 1963 and 1967 ranked second only to Japan, according to international statistics compiled by the 22-member Organization for Economic Co-operation and Development.

The Dominion Bureau of Statistics' index of export prices shows a nine-per-cent gain between 1963 and 1967, with a further three-per-cent increase in preliminary figures for April this year.

On the import side, the price of Canada's purchases abroad—or the export prices of the countries with which Canada trades—has risen only three per cent between 1963 and 1967, with a further 2.5-per-cent increase in preliminary figures for the first four months of 1968.

U.S. Imports Own Goods

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States trade surplus — money in the bank from the goods and services sold abroad — may be a thing of the past.

American affluence and its appetite for foreign goods ranging from autos to typewriters, cameras and exotic foods may be on the verge of turning the country into a chronic importer of more items than it sells.

But instead of slipping into the same dilemma as Britain, for example, which now lacks the money to go on buying more than it sells, the U.S. in increasingly a coupon clipper.

It owns the factories abroad turning out many imported items.

U.S.-owned assets total more than $90 billion around the world.

Moreover, foreign investors tempted by the profit-making capacity of American corporations are increasingly active in the U.S. stock market. That's another source of strength as the U.S. continues to battle its dollar drain —the seepage of more gold and dollars abroad for defence, overseas investment, tourism or foreign goods than it takes in.

Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler touched on some of these points recently in describing how the dollar drain for April, May and June was down sharply to about $150 million compared with $660 million for the first three months of 1968.

Assistance from U.S. exports in the fight against the dollar drain was a mere $13 million compared with such whopping annual trade surpluses as $6.6 billion in 1964. The surplus was down to $3.5 billion last year.

Big but admittedly one-shot contributions came from Canadian and West German agreements to convert holdings of U.S. dollars into special non-marketable American government bonds. Canada's conversion, part of her Feb. 29 exemption from the curbs on U.S. foreign investment flows, was $500 million.

BUY U.S. STOCKS

More important, Fowler noted, were purchases by foreign investors of U.S. securities and debentures worth $1.056 billion. Fowler called this the "highest in history for any single quarter."

He said money from this source, reflecting confidence in American economic power and strength, has been growing for 18 months by deliberate U.S. urging.

One reservation among some economists is that such investment can reverse itself quickly and may contribute instability to the U.S. economy.

On the trade side, American-owned factories abroad benefit from lower labor costs, it is argued, and it may make more economic sense to import goods from American plants than to continue producing them in the U.S.

Gold Holdings Remain Stable

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government's official holdings of gold for foreign exchange reserves remained unchanged at $926,300,000 at the end of July the Bank of Canada reported Friday.

Holdings of gold and U.S. dollars, as previously announced, were $2,514,600,000 at July 31. This was a decline of only $59,400,000, despite the return of $125,000,000 to the United States, borrowed earlier in the year to help defend the Canadian dollar against a run.

CPA Seeks Special Rate For Elderly

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific Airlines said today it is seeking federal approval for a special fare for persons 65 and over—50 per cent of the regular fare but on a standby basis.

The airlines said the fare will apply to Canadian residents on domestic routes. It will not apply to first-class seats.

The company said it has applied to the federal air transport committee to introduce the special fare, similar to the company's standby youth fare, effective Oct. 27.

Once accepted for travel, the passenger would be confirmed through to his destination but would fly only when space, not occupied by full-fare passengers, became available.

Clay 'Bugged' By U.S. Agency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The justice department says five conversations of former heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay were "bugged" by an unidentified U.S. government agency, one of them in connection with the collection of "foreign intelligence information."

But the electronic eavesdropping happened more than two years before he refused to serve in the United States armed forces, the justice department said Friday.

The "bugging" was not aimed specifically at Clay, the department said.

"He just happened to be in the wrong company, I guess," one government official said.

That Clay, who prefers his Black Muslim name of Muhammed Ali, was the accidental victim of electronic eavesdropping was revealed by a justice department memorandum to the U.S. Supreme Court.

The memorandum, filed Friday, was supplemental to a brief filed Aug. 6 in which the department opposed the boxer's appeal against a five-year jail sentence and fine for refusing induction into the military.

GAVE NO REASON

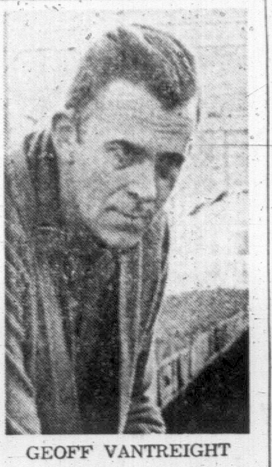
The justice department did not say why the memorandum was filed since the "bugging" does not pertain to the current case. Presumably, however, it was done to offset any possible defence attempt to capitalize on it.

Use of the word "eavesdropping" also seemed to indicate the conversations did not involve telephones.

The eavesdropping incidents were in March, September and October, 1964, and in April and June, 1965.

Besides seeking a ministerial exemption from military service, Clay asked that his status of conscientious objector, based on his beliefs as a member of the Black Muslim faith, be respected.

His appeal, along with the justice department's objections, was expected to go before the Supreme Court following the summer recess.



GEOFF VANTREIGHT

Geoff's Prize Blooms

By STEWART LANG

From his lofty office, which might remind you of an airport control tower, Geoff Vantreight directs 86 per cent of B.C.'s daffodil export.

As a grower of flowers, no one should suspect his main interest centres on racing cars—especially modifieds on the Canadian-American Modified Racing Association circuit.

Vantreight first became interested in the sport when, in 1937, a cousin was driving on the old Langford Speedway oval.

★ ★ ★

Sharing the same interests, two Victoria brothers, Al and Roy Smith, pilot cars under his sponsorship. Al just happens to be the foreman of Vantreight's farm system.

The enthusiasm generated by Vantreight has rubbed off on his family as well as his employees. Five daughters are ardent race fans and the oldest son, 17-year-old Ian, is already involved in building cars—and almost ready to start driving them. Another son is still a little too young to have caught the "bug" from his brother and sisters.

★ ★ ★

In addition to sponsoring cars, Vantreight has donated two of the most-sought-after trophies on the CAMRA circuit.

The Strawberry Cup, which was won by Jim Roberts of Eugene, Ore., late last May, was put up by Vantreight.

Perhaps a little further up the desired list is the Daffodil Cup—named for obvious reasons. The history of the cup race is an interesting feature in itself.

★ ★ ★

Eight years ago, Western Speedway was in trouble financially. In order to drum up business, track officials put up all the money they had in the bank as stakes for one race—about $3,000.

With that kind of cash on the line, which was almost unheard of for a race of the sort in those times, drivers flocked from far and near. In response to the big name entry a crowd of approximately 8,000 spectators arrived to make the gamble pay off.

Now ranked second on the CAMRA circuit behind the Gold Cup race in Edmonton, which was held two weeks ago, the Daffodil Cup will be offered again on Monday at Western Speedway starting with time trials at 7 p.m.

★ ★ ★

Both Al, who has come out of a short retirement, and Roy are expected to be competing.

Al's car is now in the process of being repaired after his spectacular crash into a retaining wall while two laps ahead of other competitors in the Gold Cup classic. The builder, Dick Midgley, is expected to have the job completed in plenty of time.

But local boys can expect plenty of competition, with six of the top 10 CAMRA drivers coming to try their luck and skill.

★ ★ ★

Bob Gregg of Vancouver and George Robertson of Louiston, Idaho, join Al as being the only drivers who have competed in all the Daffodil Cup races to date.

Bill Crow, of Boise, Idaho, is another man coming out of retirement to try for the cash and glory.

A local favorite, although from out of town, Roberts is planning to try to take both cups that Vantreight donated in the same year.

The race will be 150 laps with the top 24 cars from the time trials starting off.

RACQUET CLUB SET TO ADD CURLING RINK

The board of directors at Victoria Racquet Club approved drawings and specifications for a new eight-sheet curling rink and other facility improvements Thursday.

Tenders will be called for the construction shortly, and facilities are expected to be ready for use by January.

'Enforced Exclusion' Charged by Rhodesia

BULAWAYO (Reuters)—Rhodesia has dropped plans to send a team to the Olympics in Mexico City, a leading Rhodesian Olympics official said Friday.

Douglas Downing, president of the National Olympic Committee of Rhodesia, said in a statement that Rhodesia had accepted "enforced exclusion" from the Games.

Rhodesian sports officials previously were pressing ahead with plans to send a team to the Games, despite the non-arrival of an official invitation to attend from the Mexican organizers.

Earlier this month, a Mexican official said United Nations sanctions ruled out Rhodesia's participation.

"In accepting enforced exclusion from the 1968 Mexican Olympics we express the hope that interference—authorized or assumed—by the United Nations in the affairs of the international Olympic movement will not create that type of unity between sportsmen which currently exist between nations," the staetment said tday.

Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith announced last month that Rhodesia planned to send a 17-man team, including two Negroes, to the Games in October.

When the lists of the countries expected to compete was issued in Mexico City Aug. 17, Rhodesia was not on it.

A DIFFERENCE OF OPINION

Sixth-inning scene in Little Rock, Ark., ball park may or may not remind you of recent Democratic convention in Chicago. Like Democrats, players from Little Rock and Memphis teams shared a difference of opinions during Texas League baseball "debate." Wild scene was touched off Friday when Arkansas pitcher clipped Memphis batter with wild pitch. (AP Wirephoto)

Margaret Grant scored a 59 to win the "A" division of a "throw out" competition at the Royal Colwood Golf Club. Winner of the "B" division was Alice Fraser, while Dolly Williamson and Marion Coxford shared "C" laurels.

Swim King Leads Record-Breakers

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP(— Don Schollander, king of the 1964 Olympic swimmers, led a trio of world record breakers in the three opening events Friday night of the U.S. men's Olympic trials.

Schollander lowered his own world record of 1:55.7 for the 200-metre freestyle to 1:54.8 in the preliminaries and then swam 1:54.3 in the finals.

Records also fell to Mark Spitz with 55.6 in the 100-metre butterfly and to Charles Hickcox with 4:39.0 in the 400-metre individual medley finals.

Winner of four gold medals at the Olympics four years ago in Tokyo, Schollander indicated he is both stronger and faster this year.

BEST IN FINAL

Spitz, 18, of the Santa Clara, Calif., Swim Club, placed second to Doug Russell of Arlington, Tex., in the qualifying heat but beat him in the last 10 metres of the finals.

Hickcox, an Indiana University swimmer from Phoenix, Ariz., bettered the pending world record for the 400-metre individual medley in the morning at 4:43.3 and came back to shatter that by more than four seconds in a duel with Greg Buckingham of Santa Clara and Gary Hall, a 17-year-old high school swimmer from Long Beach.

Buckingham was timed in 4:40.25 and Hall in 4:40.63 as the first five finishers in the race bettered the official world record of 4:45.4 by Californian Dick Roth in 1964.

Tennis Audience Waits for Pancho

FOREST HILLS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.S. open tennis championships, which have been playing to empty seats, get a shot in the arm today when Pancho Gonzales takes the stage.

Pancho Gonzales now is 40 but he still serves at 113 miles an hour and sends electric impulses through tennis galleries.

Returning to the center court where he won the last of his two National crowns in 1949, the Mexican-American makes his debut in the Open against Colin Stubbs of Australia.

It's a second-round match, both having drawn first-round byes.

The third day's program also features appearances by Tony Roche of Australia, No. 2 seed and runner-up to Rod Laver at Wimbledon; Tom Okker, the Dutchman who knocked over the pros at Bournemouth, England, in the spring, and Bob Lutz of Los Angeles, runner-up Sunday to Arthur Ashe in the U.S. amateur championships at Brookline, Mass.

OLD PROS WIN

If Gonzales fears that age may militate against him in his debut, he should get some comfort from another pair of old U.S. Davis Cuppers who came through admirably Friday.

Vic Seixas, celebrating his 45th birthday, won over Tom Gorman of Seattle, Wash., 8-6, 6-4, 6-3. Chuck McKinley, 1963 Wimbledon champion, took on back-breaker from Bill Tym of Peoria, Ill., 6-3, 8-6, 2-6, 3-6, 6-1.

Seixas and McKinley meet in the second round.

Pro John Newcombe of Australia, 1967 U.S. winner and seeded fourth, crushed Allen Quay of South Orange, N.J., 6-1, 6-3, 6-3. Seventh-seeded Clark Graebner won a slugging match from Premjit Lall of India 6-3, 1-6, 7-5, 6-4. Marty Riessen, seeded 15th, topped young Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia 11-9, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Top-seeded Rod Laver, the Wimbledon Open champion, makes his start Sunday against Tomas Koch, Brazilian Davis Cupper.

A former Scottish night club singer, Joyce Williams, upset seventh-seeded Mary Ann Eisel of St. Louis 5-7, 6-2, 6-4. Mrs. Ann Haydon Jones of Britain, Judy Tegart of Australia and Virginia Wade of Britain, all seeded, gained the second round, only Miss Wade being carried to three sets.

O'Keefes Prep Against Wests

Victoria's O'Keefes meet tough UBC Thunderbirds in their Pacific Coast Soccer League opener Sept. 7, and the team is preparing for the major battle.

To sharpen up their moves, O'Keefes tangle with Victoria Wests of the district league in an exhibition match Sunday.

And to sharpen up their finances, club officials will offer season tickets at $12 for 15 home games during the match.

Earl's Punch Helps Check Oriole Threat

Baltimore Belted 9-1 by Tigers In Showdown Series' Opener

By The Associated Press

Detroit's Earl Wilson, who lost his pitching edge by leading with his chin, has found it again by swinging his bat.

Wilson hurled a four-hitter and drove in four runs with a homer and single as the American League-leading Tigers shook Baltimore's pennant hopes Friday night by jolting the second place Orioles 9-1 in the opener of a three-game show-down series.

The loss, third in a row for the Orioles, dropped them seven games off the pace. They were only four out last Tuesday.

The home run was the fifth of the season for Wilson, 12-11, who won 22 games for Detroit last season but has been sidetracked this year by fire-line drives he couldn't dodge.

Three of them resulted in shoulder, knee and heel injuries that knocked him out of the starting rotation.

In Friday night's other AL action Washington Senators trimmed Boston Red Sox 5-1; Minnesota Twins nipped Chicago White Sox 5-4 in 11 innings; California Angels beat Oakland Athletics 5-3 and New York Yankees split a doubleheader with Cleveland Indians, winning 1-0 before bowing 3-2 in 10 innings.

Wilson, who stopped Detroit's four-game losing streak last Monday with a 3-0 six-hit triumph over the White Sox—and drove in two of the Tigers' runs to boot—crashed a three-run homer in the second inning and punched a run-scoring single in the third to cap a five-run wrap-up burst.

SPORTS

Editor: Doug Peden

He's Only Eight Away From Record

His 31 career homers are eight less than the all-time mark for pitchers, held by former Cleveland right-hander Wes Ferrell.

"They pay me to pitch," said the 6-foot-4 right-hander. "This is the first time I've had this much of a lead this year."

A crowd of 53,575—largest to see a game in Tiger Stadium since 1961—watched Wilson retire the first 11 Orioles he faced and send Detroit ahead to stay with his three-run blast off Tom Phoebus.

Bill Freehan was hit with a pitch for the 23rd time this year, tying the AL record set in 1956 by Chicago's Minnie Minoso, and Tom Matchick singled before Wilson unloaded in the second.

Don Buford ruined Wilson's bid for a second straight shutout with a bases-empty homer in the sixth.

The Senators, trailing 1-0 in the ninth, capitalized on successive throwing errors by Dalton Jones and Russ Gibson in a five-run comeback that beat Boston's Gary Bell.

A walk, followed by the two errors on bunts by pitcher Joe Coleman and Del Unser, tied the game. Ken McMullen's infield hit scored another run and Frank Howard doubled home two more before scoring on Mike Epstein's single.

Coleman held the Red Sox to six hits, including Ken Harrelson's 33rd homer.

Seaver Spoiled Mets' New Custom

Tom Seaver, once of the precocious New York Met pitching staff, moves to the back of the class today. He gave the St. Louis Cardinals two runs.

Seaver pitched seven perfect innings against St. Louis Friday night, extending to 25 the string of zeroes dealt the Cards by Met pitchers this week.

Then he blew up and surrendered three hits and two runs for an 8-3 victory. That almost won't do for the Mets, who became accustomed to shutting out the Cards when Jim McAndrew and Dick Selma produced consecutive blanks earlier this week.

Elsewhere in the National League Friday, Chicago Cubs dropped Houston Astros 5-3, Philadelphia Phillies took Cincinnati Reds 7-4, Atlanta Braves shut out Pittsburgh Pirates 2-0 and Los Angeles Dodgers shaded San Franciseo Giants 5-4.

Seaver, 13-9, retired 21 consecutive batters before Orlando Cepeda broke the spell by dropping a leadoff double to rightfield opening the eighth inning. Mike Shannon's run-scoring double and Lou Brock's ninth inning single were the only other hits off Seaver.

Meanwhile, the Mets had built a wide bulge against loser Nelson Briles with a six-run fifth inning, climaxed by Art Shamsky's grand slam home run.

Ron Sando drove in all five Chicago runs with a pair of home runs as Ferguson Jenkins, Chatham, Ont., native, beat Houston for his 16th victory.

Santo, who has 22 homers for the year, connected with two on in the fourth and again with one man on in the sixth.

Police Probe Race Betting

VANCOUVER (CP) — Police and race track officials are conducting a gambling investigation at Vancouver's Exhibition Park.

A number of jockeys and a minor track official have been questioned, officials said.

CHARGING INTO THE SPIRIT OF THINGS . . .

Punchless Dallas Blanked by Royals

(Times News Services)

Dallas Tornado suffered its 13th shutout of the North American Soccer League season Friday night, 3-0, at the hands of Vancouver Royals before 1,711 fans in the Texas city.

After a sterling defensive performance when Tornado had numerous scoring opportunities during the first 30 minutes of the opening half, the Royals turned on the heat with Cheung Chi Wai kicking in a short goal for a 1-0 lead at 39:22.

Within two minutes early in the second half Vancouver put the match on ice with two quick goals as the Tornado defence folded.

Bob Cram got the second goal at 51:19 on a 20-yard kick that skipped through Terry Adlington's outstretched arms. Gerrit Lagendijk headed in a free bounce off the top of the goal at 53:44 to account for the final Royals score.

SPURS ROLL ON

Kansas City Spurs have tightened their hold on first place in the Gulf Division.

Manfred Rummel's first half goal gave the Spurs a 1-0 victory over St. Louis Stars, their closest pursuer, in a vital game on the St. Louis pitch Friday night. The victory gave the Spurs seven points and increased their lead over the Stars to 12 points.

Chicago defeated San Diego 2-1 in the league's only other game.

A second half goal by John Kowalick, the league's leading scorer, provided the margin by which the Mustangs edged San Diego in Chicago.

Island Track Meet Draws Top Field

Victoria track buffs have a chance to watch some Olympic calibre competition at Centennial stadium Monday.

Vancouver middle-distance runner Barry Cunningham will attempt to reach the qualifying Olympic standard for 800 metres during the Vancouver Island track and field championships, reports Victoria's Optimist Spartans' coach Ollie Sarakannas.

Cunningham, who must run 1:50 to qualify, has missed the standard by only a few tenths of a second in several meets already, and this is one of his last chances to qualify for an Olympic berth.

The Vancouver Optimist Striders' star has been granted special permission to run in the closed Island championship, Sarakannas said.

"I can't see any reason why he shouldn't be able to run 1:46 or 1:47, and if he has any help at all he'll easily make the standard," Sarakannas said.

"But there just aren't any runners of his calibre on the Island right now, and I doubt that he'll be pushed very hard."

Outstanding distance man John Cliff of the Optimist Spartans is scheduled to compete in one and three-mile events at the meet. That means the University of Victoria's Charlie Thorne and Cliff's teammate Norm Patenaude will have some blistering paces to contend with.

Cliff blazed his way to a time of 13:37 in the three-mile earlier this season, and Sarakannas rates it one of the best times for the distance in Canada this year, and one of the all-time bests in Canadian distance running.

Competing in age-class events will be Cowichan CeeVacs' Gail Turney, and the Optimist Spartans' Lindsay Jack.

Miss Turney is a top-notch sprinter over the 100 and 220-yard distances who recently returned from the Canadian Olympic trials. She has a wind-assisted 10.9 clocking for the 100, and at the age of 15 has to rank as one of the country's top prospects.

Versatility is the name of Miss Jack's game, and she currently holds a Canadian age-class crown in the pentathlon.

Heats for events begin Monday morning at 10 on the Centennial Stadium track.

NFL OGLES MONTREAL AS EXPANSION ENTRY

BUFFALO, N.Y. (UPI) — Football commissioner Pete Rozell said Friday the combined National and American Football Leagues have talked to Montreal representatives about possible placement of an AFL or NFL expansion franchise in Montreal.

Rozell added, however, that he doubted the move would come about. He said he feared the movement of the leagues toward Canada would harm—if not destroy—Canadian football.

MURPHY STILL HOT

Cash Collecting Becomes a Habit

CLIFTON, N.J. (AP) — Bob Murphy spent the month of August making almost $42,000 and looks like he'll start September the same way.

His four-under-par 68 gave him a two-stroke lead over 12 others in the first round of the $150,000 Thunderbird Classic Friday.

Murphy, 24, who joined the tour in January, had won only $23,000 entering August.

Then he cashed a check for $1,020 with a tie for 24th in the American Golf Classic, picked up $20,400 for a second-place tie at Westchester and won $20,000 with his first tour victory last week at Philadelphia. The winner of the Thunderbird gets $30,000.

George Knudson of Toronto was disqualified. Officials said he did not sign his score card.

Included in the pack at 70 was Gary Player, rookie pro Jerry Abbott, Billy Casper, Bruce Crampton, Steve Reid, Lou Graham, Homero Blancas, Lee Elder, Dudley Wysong, Bert Weaver, Chi Chi Rodriguez and Mason Rudolph.

Defending champion Arnold Palmer and Canada's Al Balding were tied with nine others at 71 and pre-tournament favorite Jack Nicklaus was one of 18 players at 73.

Hot Finish Helps Bruce To Top Spot

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Scrambling Bruce Fleisher birdied two of his last four holes on the way to a one-over-par 71 Friday and stormed into a two-stroke lead after three rounds in the 68th U.S. amateur golf championship.

The 19-year-old junior college student from Hialeah, Fla., was four under par through 54 holes with a 214 total and in excellent position to capture the U.S. crown in his first try.

His closest rival in the field of 62 was Hubie Green, the Alabama amateur king who shared the halfway lead with Fleisher. Bob Barbarossa of Osseo, Minn., a 20-year-old University of Houston student who shot an even par 70, was three back at 217.

British amateur champion Michael Bonallack carded a 75 for 219 and a share of fifth place.

Gary Cowan, the 1966 U.S. amateur champion, shot 73 for a 54-hole total of 226. Eric Hanson of Toronto had 83 for a total of 234.

Mann's Game A Sub-Par One

CALGARY (CP) — Carol Mann, a tall swinger from Buffalo, N.Y., displayed 34-36—68 form Friday to take the first round lead in the Willow Park women's invitational open golf tournament.

Good for a one-stroke lead over Sharon Miller of Battle Creek, Mich., Carol's five-under-par performance was the kind of golf that has made the six-foot, three-inch blonde the leading money winner on this year's pro tour.

Carol, who has won seven tournaments and more than $42,000 since late April, was in and out of sand traps on three holes and missed six birdie putts, including a four-footer.

On the par-three, 180-yard 18th she hit into the trap on the right of the green then blasted across into the one on the left. Once on the putting surface it took her two more for a five, two over par and her worst hole of the day. Two strokes off in third place was Kathy Whitworth of Dallas, Tex. Miss Whitworth, who recently won $10,000 and first place in the Ladies World Series of golf, shot nines of 35 both front and back.

Murle Lindstrom of Fort Wayne, Ind., and Shirley Englehorn of Caldwell, Idaho, produced brilliant 32's on the back nine after weak starts to finish at 71, tied with two others for fourth.

ALSO FIRE 71s

Also at 71 in the $15,000, 54-hole tourney were veteran Betsy Rawls of Spartanburg, S.C., and Peggy Wilson of Fallbrook, Calif.

Marilyn Karch of Calgary, the lowest of seven amateurs, was in a five-way tie for fourth at 72. Barbara Turnbull, an amateur from Saskatoon, had a 77 and Marilyn Dahl of Calgary an 80.

Sandra Post, the only Canadian professional among the 41 entries, had troubles with her putter on the front and went to a 39, two over par. The 20-year-old tour rookie from Oakville, Ont., regained her form on the back nine, shooting a two-under-par 34 to finish at 73.

Parker's Role One Of Suspense

By The Canadian Press

British Columbia Lions are looking for a key situation before they take the wraps off Jackie Parker, their newest quarterback, says coach Jim Champion.

But it still looks like he will get into the lineup sometime during Monday's game when the Lions visit Calgary Stampeders, the leaders in the Western Football Conference.

"We'll certainly be using Parker," Champion said Friday. "As to when and how we're not saying.

"This is a pretty good situation for us because it's going to keep the Stampeders on edge, wondering just when we're going to throw Parker in there. And they've had to spend time preparing for him."

But it doesn't look like Parker will be behind the centre the first time the fourth-place Lions get the ball as regular Pete Ohler's ankle is showing signs of improvement.

"Pete looked a lot better in practise and it looks as though he'll be ready to start," said Champion.

In the other Labor Day contest in the West, third-place Edmonton Eskimos play in Regina against second-place Saskatchewan Roughriders.

Both games are key contests as the Stamps and the Roughies battle it out for the WFC leadership and the Lions and the Esks try to move closer to a playoff berth.

The Calgary-B.C. game will be shown on the CTV network, starting at 2:30 p.m., PDT.

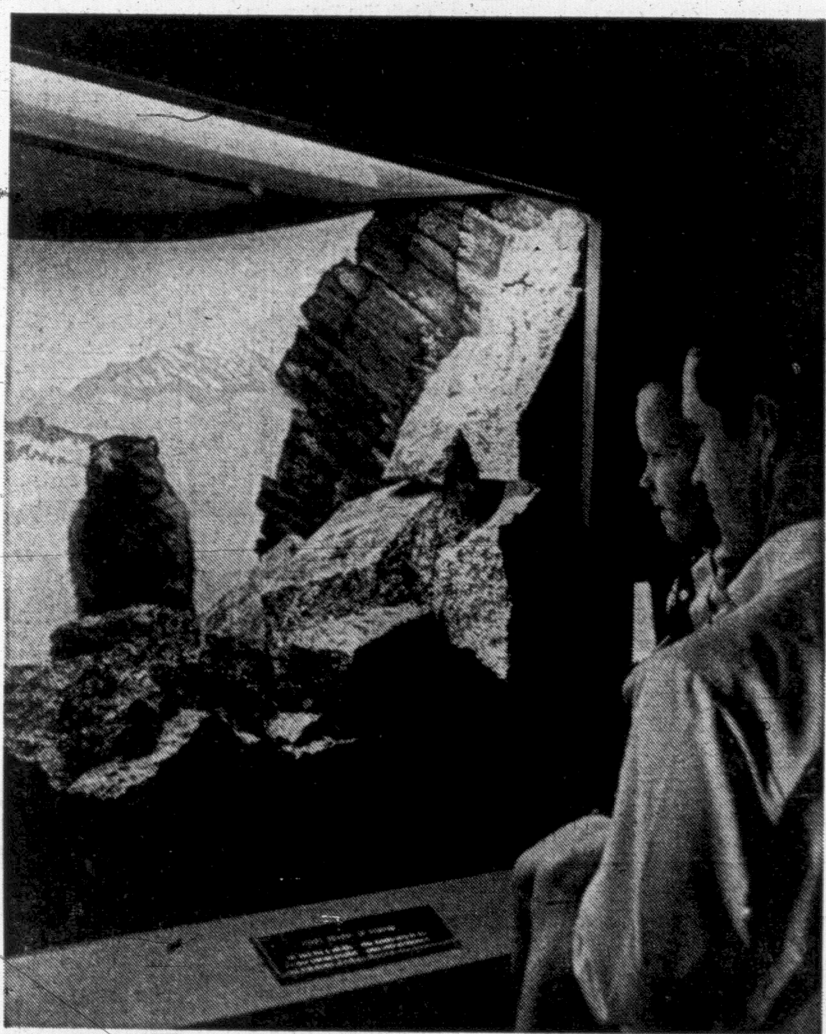
HERD INSTINCT is strong in the caribou and they move about the northern half of British Columbia in large numbers, favoring high altitudes. They live on lichens and other grazing delicacies.

BIGGEST BIG GAME in British Columbia is the moose and he ranges all over the mainland. His noble antlers are sought as trophies for dens but he'd prefer to remain in a spruce swamp.

A Fortune in Knowledge and It Doesn't Cost a Nickle



ROCKY HOME of marmot is created by museum artist in three-dimensional diorama which employs special lighting. Protected by glass, nature displays are expected to last much longer.

Which is larger, the moose, the elk or the caribou?

What's that hanging under the moose's chin and what's it's purpose.

Why do they call a marmot a whistler?

Is the grizzly becoming extinct?

Even if you know all the answers—and all B.C. residents should—a visit to the new provincial museum at Heritage Centre is the thing to do on rainy days in Victoria.

It's not only engrossing—it's free. And if you take the kids, their interest is astounding. Should they ask those questions above, here are some answers from museum director Dr. Clifford Carl.

The moose is larger than the elk and the elk is larger than the caribou. The party growth under the moose's chin (rarely seen on the female) is called a bell—and nobody knows its purpose.

They call a marmot—that's one far left centre—a whistler because he sits in rocky places in the high country and he whistles. The Indians once used his pelt for robes but he has no commercial value today except for entertainment.

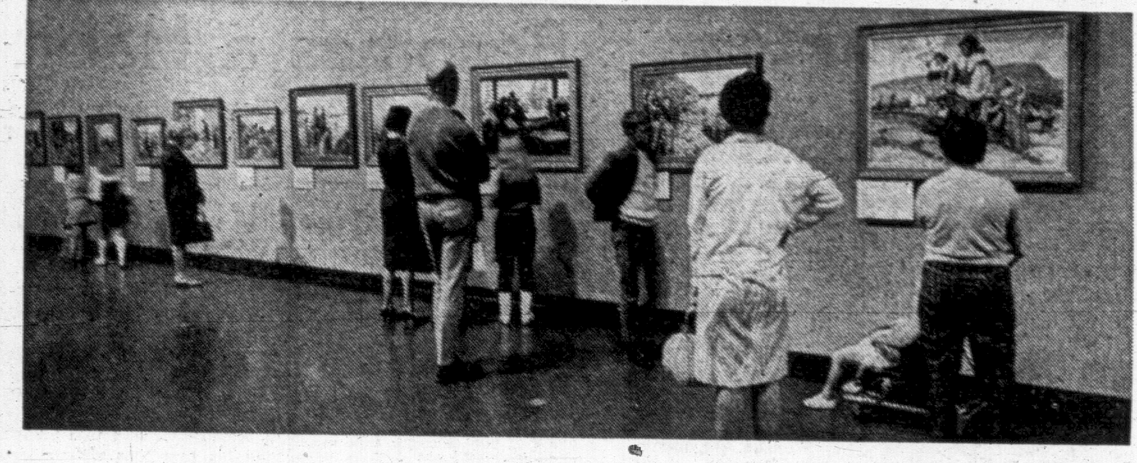
He'd do fine on television because he sleeps for seven months out of the year and wouldn't suffer from overexposure.

The grizzly, below left, is a favorite exhibit and if things keep on as they are for grizzlies, this may soon be the only place you'll see one. He lives in mountainous areas of the mainland but his breed is fast reducing in numbers.

Big game hunters come here from all over the world after grizzlies which is probably one reason he is known as a nasty customer.

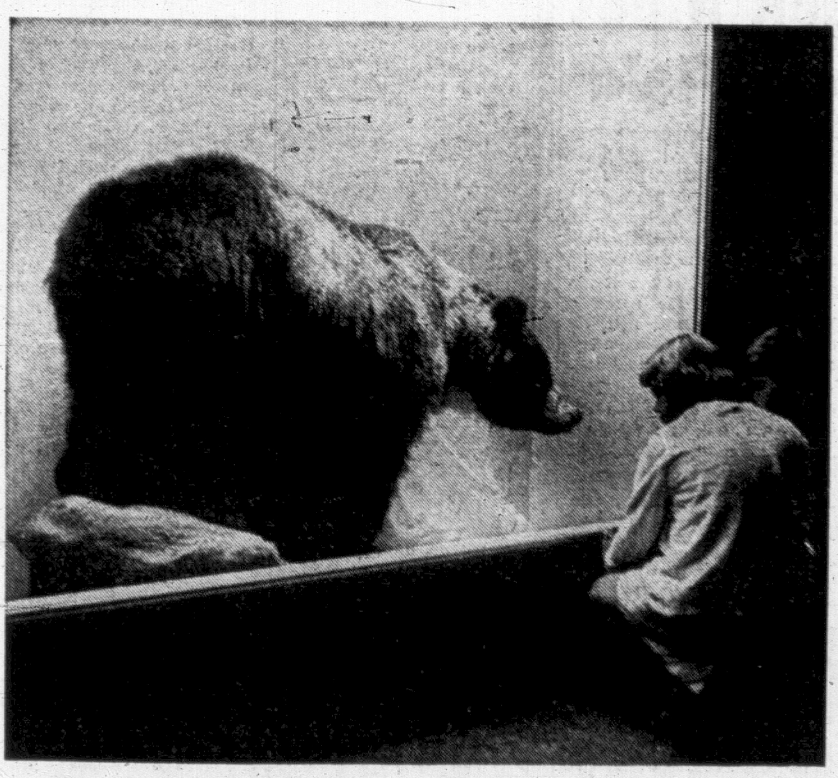
Dr. Carl and his staff are expert in answering questions on museum displays and they say they'll be preparing new displays on a regular basis.

"We have a program of installations sufficient to keep us busy for years," he states. He said the museum has been crowded far beyond expectations since it's recent opening. "They have been coming through by the thousands."

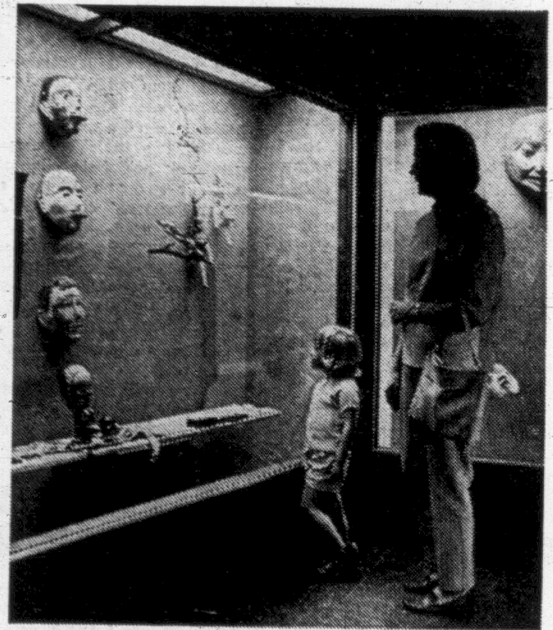


CANADIAN HISTORY comes to life in this travelling art show loaned by Confederation Life. Such art displays were out of the question until new museum was built.

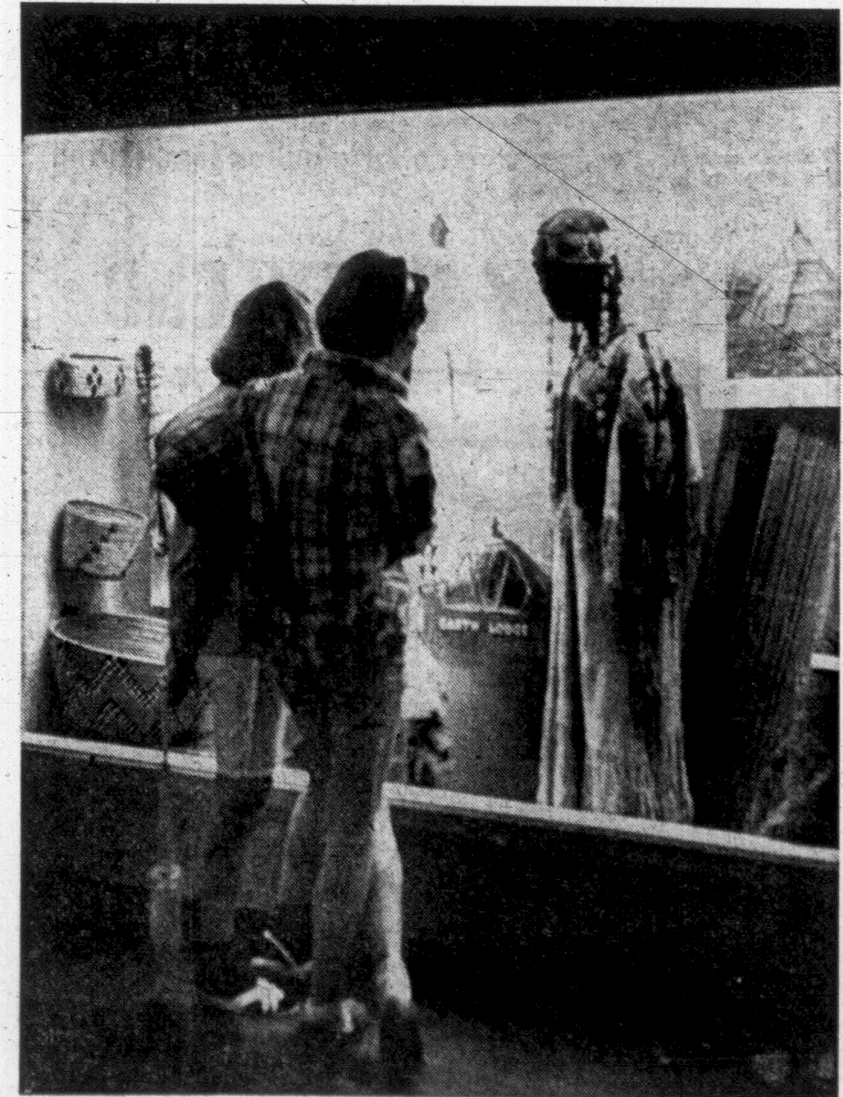
Photographs By Bill Halkett



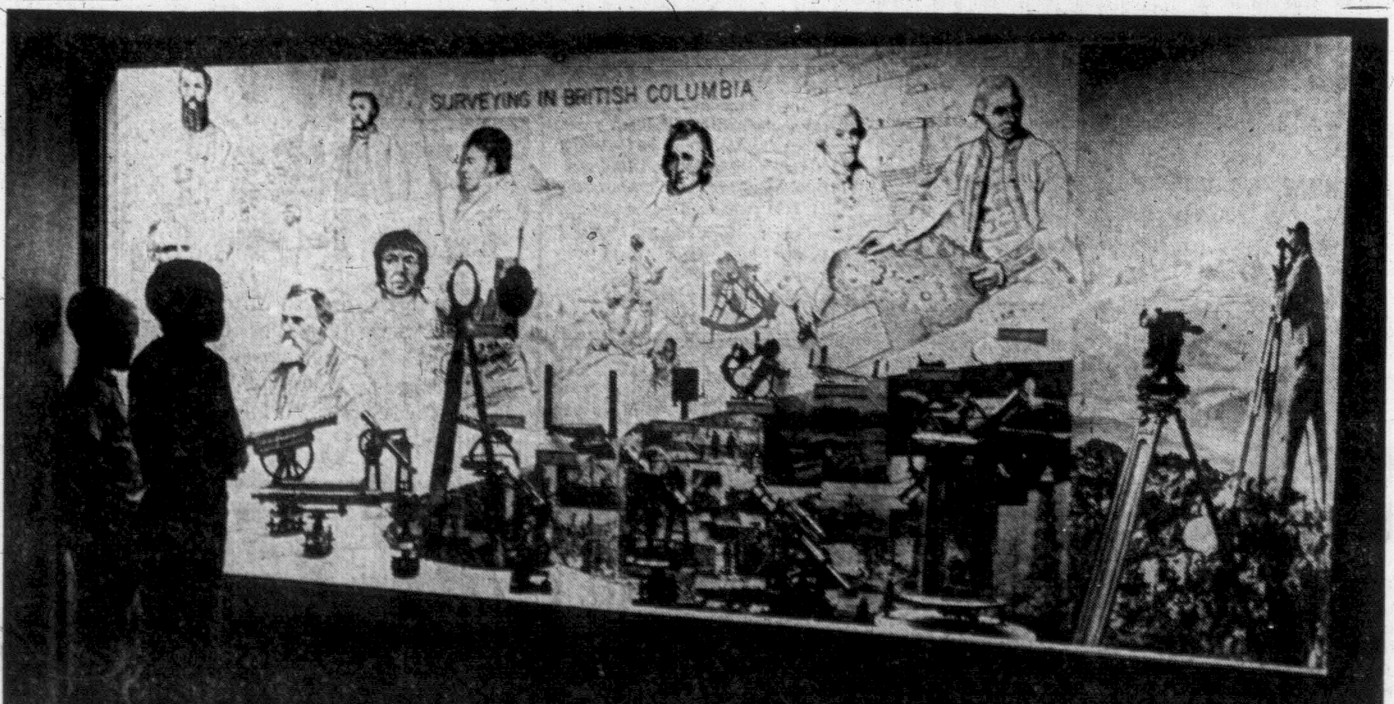
NEVER SEEN ON ISLAND, the grizzly bear has a bad reputation with campers in the Interior, but he attracts wealthy hunters.



BASEBALL FANS criticizing an umpire? No, it's rare collection of valuable Indian masks.



BUCKSKIN BELLE shows backwoods fashions of Indians of the interior of the province. The earth lodge centre is also a design used by interior tribes. On the coast lodges were built of wood and off the ground.



EARLY SURVEYORS, the trail-blazers of pioneer British Columbia, are honored in this display which shows the types of instruments used when railway was stretched across mountains and international boundary was finally ironed out. Pictures of early mapmakers are shown. Civil engineers of tomorrow, those two at left perhaps, find this exhibit entrancing.

Electrician Sparks Home Meetings

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — A new junior choir is being formed at Duncan Trinity Lutheran Church.

The first practice is to be held in the church hall Saturday morning, Sept. 14.

Conductor of the boys and girls nine to 13 years will be Mrs. George Bechtel.

Pastor Baldwin Camin said this week, "it isn't the idea the juniors will replace the senior choir but take part in services ocassionally and allow a little more versatility."

Mr. and Mrs. Camin are to attend the Lutheran Church's district missionairies and new clergy conference at Jasper, Alta., Sept. 16 and 17.

Kees Guldemond is to head a committee which will seek to raise at least $1,000 to replace the present Trinity Church organ.

HOME MEETINGS

Electrician John Bargus s hoping sparks will fly when he preaches at St. Peter's Quamichan, Sept. 15, to launch a two-week series of home meetings within the combined parish of Quamichan and St. Andrew's, Cowichan Station.

Mr. Bargus is chairman of the stewardship committee on which the other members are Stan Mouncey, Ben Dyer and Ron Bruce.

Each evening during the two weeks 14 hostesses will convene meetings in their homes at which parishioners will discuss such topics as church union and integration and, closer to home, combined services within the parish.

Meanwhile, the rector, Rev. Neil Robinson, is busy with plans for a year's exchange with the Rev. Robert Sansom of Derbyshire, England.

The exchange is coming about as a result of conversations between Mr. Robinson and North Cowichan municipal engineer John Sansom who is a member of his congregation and a brother of Robert Sansom.

Mr. Sansom will take his first services in the Quamichan parish Oct. 6.

A pot luck supper is planned by St. John's congregation, Duncan, for Oct. 12.

This will be the occasion for all members to return the $2 talent money which was distributed in June.

Rev. Alan Kerr is hopeful that the congregation has made the money multiply.

Rev. Hewel Jones of St. Mary's, Oak Bay, is to be guest preacher at St. John's and St. Mary's, Somenos, Oct. 13.

Former Cowichan Leader editor Will Dobson, who has been a member of St. John's all his life, is to preach there Sunday at the 11:15 a.m. service and at St. Mary's at 10 a.m.

Mr. Dobson leaves shortly for Vancouver where he will study at the Anglican theological college.

Membership Party

The choir of Christ Church Cathedral will hold a membership coffee party in the lounge of the Memorial Hall, 912 Vancouver St., Monday, Sept. 9.

Richard Proudman, organist and choirmaster will host the evening.

"Anyone interested in joining the choir is welcome," he says.

'Bedroom Trespassing Just a Fad'

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
Church Editor

How long will the Peeping Tom movies last?

"As long as moviegoers enjoy trespassing in other people's bedrooms," says Rev. Albert E. King, an executive of Greater Victoria Council of Churches.

"That is what it comes to. Nothing is sacred any more. The cameras sail right into the bedroom and show almost everything they get their lenses on.

"I believe this is a phase and that it will pass."

Mr. King added that he has great admiration for modern movie techniques and thinks films are generally more artistic than they have ever been.

MORE A TRAGEDY

"I enjoyed The Graduate," he said, "but it struck me as more of Greek tragedy than a comedy."

In Edmonton a few years ago, Mr. King stood alone against a church council which voted to ban the film, Room at the Top.

"To me this was a film with a purpose," he said. "It was the story of a man who came out of the war and said he was going to get what he wanted by fair means or foul.

"He would stop at nothing. And, inevitably, that man finished up walking alone. The film taught a great lesson in life, and was finally released for showing in Alberta."

FEED IMAGINATION

Mr. King says he does not object to the sex movie so long as it leaves something to the imagination.

He agreed that the Danish film Seventeen is light hearted, warm and witty but regretted that it seemed to take all the mystery and romance out of love between a man and a woman.

Mrs. Zena Cherry, writing in the Toronto Globe and Mail, said:

"We all know there is no absence of passion, violence and sensuality in Shakespeare and in the Bible itself. But for all playwrights, until the past few years, certain acts were suggested rather than portrayed.

"They were obscene, i.e., off scene. No one thought it necessary to show Anthony physically making love to Cleopatra."

In Victoria, Mr. King said:

"The strength of the Bible and of Shakespeare is that they relate life as it is. But they don't do it with any thought of rousing passion.

"They are recording passion, not rousing it. And they use stories of illicit love to show that this can happen to anyone. David was a good man but he was seduced by Bathsheba.

"They don't need to be illustrated with bedroom closeups."

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

'God Controls Man'

Russia will invade the Middle East, says Maurice Stewart from Los Angeles, Calif.

He will expand this belief in an address to Victoria Christadelphians at 901 Kings Road, Sunday at 7:30 p.m.

"Mr. Stewart's intentions are purely religious," says Robert Easson for the Christadelphians. "He will vindicate his theme from scripture to show how God controls the destiny of man.

"Mr Stewart is an able and experienced lecturer and Bible student who recently returned from a speaking tour in Australia and New Zealand."

Admission at the Kings Road hall is free and there will be no collection.

Rev. Dr. Kenneth Prior, a former agricultural missionary in Africa, will be guest speaker in First United Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

He will speak on his experiences in the Caribbean countries and on the crisis in Nigeria.

H. Dennis Selby-Hele will share in the service with Rev. Robert G. Thompson.

W. H. Gregory will be soloist with Leonard Lythgoe, First United's Christian education director, at the organ.

The congregation will join with Metropolitan United at the evening worship.

★ ★ ★

Rev. Robert Morris, minister of First United, is in Kingston, Ont., as a commissioner to the 23rd general council of the United Church of Canada.

He will return to Victoria Sunday, Sept. 15.

★ ★ ★

The Man Who Works will be the subject of a Labor Sunday sermon by Very Rev. J. Lewis McLean, DD, in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday at 11 a.m.

At this service Dr. and Mrs. McLean will be celebrating 30 years at St. Andrew's. The church will observe its 102nd anniversary on Sept. 9.

Rev. Bruce Molloy will conduct the evening service and preach on the theme Life's Forever Fever.

★ ★ ★

The philosophy of work in terms of modern conditions of life will be discussed by Rev. A. G. McLeod in his sermon in the Church of St. Aidan, 3705 Richmond Road, Sunday at 11 a.m.

"I shall also consider the hippies and the so-called dropouts," Mr. McLeod said.

Wendy King will be soloist.

Sunday school registration will take place in the church Saturday, Sept. 7, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. The first Sunday school rally will be held Sunday, Sept. 8, at 11 a.m.

★ ★ ★

Rev. Alexander Calder will speak on The Dignity of Labor at the 11 a.m. Sunday service in Oak Bay United Church.

Choir and congregation will sing the hymn, When Morning Gilds Ye Skies.

The UCW will begin their regular monthly meetings next Thursday at 1:30 p.m. in the church parlor. There will be a fall fashion show Wednesday, Sept. 18, at 2 p.m. and 8 p.m.

Christ Given Second Billing in New Creed

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Several commissioners to the general council of the United Church of Canada Thursday criticized a proposed new creed that has no reference to the virgin birth, crucifixion, and resurrection of Christ, nor to hell.

"What we've got here is a difference in emphasis," said Rev. Hugh A. Rose of Toronto in an interview after a session of the council which began a nine-day meeting here Tuesday.

The new creed would not replace the Apostles' or Nicene creeds, the traditional statements of Christian faith.

It was referred to the general council executive and may be included in the service book to be published this fall. There probably would be changes.

Mr. Rose, chairman-elect of the committee which recommended the creed, said he hopes its experimental use will stimulate criticism that would lead to revisions.

THE NEW CREED

The creed:

Man is not alone: he lives in God's world.

We believe in God: who has created and is creating, who has come in the true Man, Jesus, to reconcile and renew, who works within us and among us by his Spirit.

We trust him.

He calls us to be his Church: to celebrate his presence, to love and serve others, to seek justice and resist evil.

We proclaim his Kingdom.

In life, in death, in life beyond death, he is with us.

We are not alone; we believe in God.

Rev. Randolph C. Chalmers, professor of systematic theology at Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, said the creed is inadequate because it has no reference to Christ's virgin birth or to His resurrection.

He called for a redrafting that would produce a "more adequate expression of the gospel for our time."

Rev. Bruce Underhill of Kitchener, Ont., said he is "deeply disturbed" with the creed's failure to mention Christ's resurrection.

Rev. George Johnston, principal of United Theological College, Montreal, said the new statement of faith "does not appear as a specifically Christian creed." It was a defective non-Christian creed.

Rev. Joan Huntley of Stroud, Ont., said there should be a reference to the crucifixion in the creed "to bring out the meaning of the cross."

John Wilson, a lay commissioner from Halifax, said the proposed creed is "worth keeping in its present format."

A report Thursday from the board of world mission called on the church to ask its members to pay more taxes and suffer economic inconveniences if that were necessary to give underdeveloped nations a chance at progress.

A resolution from the committee suggests that church members use their influence in industry and government "to counteract complacency and indifference in the face of human need of the poor countries."

OFF to St. John, N.B., goes Major Robert McKerracher, for two years commanding officer of Victoria Salvation Army Citadel. He will take over the public relations office. Major John Wood of Oshawa, Ont., will succeed Major McKerracher in Victoria.

Sands Exclusive service for those who travel . . .
A collect call to Sands, at a time of emergency, brings one of our service vehicles (or charter aircraft) out to you anywhere in the Pacific Northwest.
You are spared the distress of having an unfamiliar funeral director in another city arrange for removal to Victoria, and at a cost which far exceeds our special service. Sands relieve you of all anxiety at a time when it is comforting to have friends attending to your needs rather than strangers.
Sands gives forethought to funeral costs . . .
A service of dignity and beauty can be arranged regardless of financial circumstances. The selection of casket to suit every financial need is made possible through Sands' economical practice of car-load purchasing . . . savings which are served with those we serve.

Cultural Boycott

PRAGUE (CP) — A leading Czechoslovak intellectual, Jan Prochazka, who charged that the Russians had gone back to "the diplomacy of the Cossacks" today appealed to the world to implement a cultural boycott of the invading Warsaw Pact countries.

COURSE OF DEBATE CHANGED BY EVENTS

By CHRISTINE EADE
The Manchester Guardian

LONDON — The Lambeth conference of Anglican bishops opened five days before the papal encyclical on birth control, and closed five days after Russian tanks entered Czechoslovakia. In each case, the events of the outside world pressed down on the conference, and changed the course of its debate.

In each case, the 467 bishops of the Anglican communion could do no more than debate. On birth control, they had the ready-made answer, tailored by Lambeth '58, saying that it was the parents' responsibility to decide the size and spacing of their family.

The answer served to drive the Anglicans further from reunion with the Roman Catholics, when unity was one of three main issues for debate.

CAN DO NOTHING

Over Czechoslovakia, the bishops could only spend extra time in prayer and debate, putting the crisis in the same category as Biafra, the bomb, hunger, poverty and race.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Michael Ramsey, summed up the conference's worldly pronouncements at a closing press conference by saying: "We found that things that were worth saying were said with the awareness that there was no point in saying them, unless you could do something."

The doing—the legislative authority which comes from Lambeth—is non-existent. The resolutions which were passed in the final week merely act as guidelines to bishops as they go home to widely differing diocese.

And in many cases, the solutions were debated and diluted, until they left any dissenting bishop with enough water to steer clear of them.

The bishops of poor Anglican churches, especially those where another religion predominated over Christianity, were the liberals of the conference, welcoming resolutions which set out special circumstances when members of different denominations could take Holy Communion together.

Meanwhile, their graces of the Church of England, distinguished themselves as old-style reactionaries, failing to put off a vote favoring Anglican-Methodist unity in Britain, but succeeding in shelving the issue on women in the priesthood. Therefore, the liberalizing influence of Lambeth '68 will be more felt in Asia and Africa than in certain dioceses in England.

The conference itself, taking renewal as its theme, spent the first week divided into 32 subcommittees, which were grouped under the larger headings of Faith, Ministry and Unity.

FACED OBSERVERS

Then for the first time in 101 years of Lambeth conferences, the bishops came out into the open at Church House, Westminster, to face observers from other churches, religious scholars who had been the bishops' consultants and the press.

The plenary sessions without an agenda were disappointing: The bishops did not take the opportunity to bring up controversial issues, but preferred to send messages of greetings to forgotten parts of christiandom, telling them they were not forgotten.

In the second week, observers and consultants almost took over the conference with their criticism and advice on the rough drafts of the three final reports. The Anglicans found themselves torn between a Congregationalist, telling them they were holding up the cause of unity by not ordaining women; and a Roman Catholic telling them they would destroy any dialogue on unity by ordaining women.

But when the outsiders were silent, few personalities emerged from the Anglican arena.

The most memorable character was the Bishop of West Missouri, Dr. Edward Welles, who won the sweepstake for addressing the conference more than anyone else. He called the Archbishop of Canterbury "most beloved first among equals."

The suffragan and assistant bishops who were invited for the first time to give African and Asian countries a larger representation made only a small contribution to the debate.

LENIENT CHAIRMAN

Dr. Ramsey was a lenient chairman, allowing debates to meander before touching his bell and saying: "I think this debate is becoming repetitive."

His generosity was a mystery to the American and Canadian bishops, the organization men of the conference. Out of such a love of organization sprung the Anglican consultative council. It still has to be approved by a two-thirds majority by the synods of the individual churches.

But it seems likely that the churches—especially the large white churches—will welcome a democratic organization made up of bishops, priests, laymen, women and people under the age of 28 to meet every two years.

It is, however, unlikely to supersede Lambeth. For one thing, the bishops enjoy it too much, and the Archbishop of Canterbury said it was "very likely indeed" that there would be a Lambeth '78.

"But it won't be here, but in another part of the world," he added. "And there may be bishops with us who are not defined as Anglican bishops, but as bishops with us all the same."

SINGER-POET Margaret Hurdon Keifer will be soloist in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church Sunday at 7:30 p.m. In the morning she will form a quartette with Georgina Harper, Steve Kramer and William Kramer. A collection of Mrs. Keifer's poems is now being sold in Victoria and across Canada.

INSIDE CITY HALL

Regional Plan Seminar Topic

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

Minister of Municipal Affairs Dan Campbell was at his dapper best Thursday sporting a red rose presented him by an attractive young lady.

Unlike Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau who carries his flowers in his teeth, Mr. Campbell wore his on his lapel. And he was smiling his happiest smile.

Hume

Could it be that he was contemplating the effects of his planned two-day Cranbrook seminar to discuss the development of regional districts?

Always a man of action, Mr. Campbell is no slouch when it comes to political manoeuvring, and the timing of the Cranbrook regional district seminar would indicate that he hasn't lost his touch.

At the Union of British Columbia Municipalities convention scheduled for Sept. 18-21 there will be at least 13 resolutions on the agenda questioning one or more aspects of the regional district concept.

This could indicate a stormy session on the convention floor if things run a normal course.

But this is where the shrewd minister of municipal affairs enters the picture.

TWO-DAY SEMINAR

His two-day seminar in Cranbrook is scheduled to be held just a few days before the delegates convene in Vancouver for the UBCM slugfest.

Never one to back away from a fight, Mr. Campbell prefers to disarm the opposition before it throws the first punch. And the betting is that during the two days in Cranbrook that's just what he will do.

By the time those 13 proposed resolutions reach the UBCM convention floor more than a handful of delegates will be suggesting withdrawal.

Spiking the guns is the old military phrase for the action.

Talking of regional districts, that wasn't a bad decision our own board made earlier this week when they decided that to communicate effectively on the multi-million-dollar hospital bylaw scheduled for the fall they should hire a communications expert.

Private business learned long ago that it needed help when it came to getting a message across. Federal and provincial governments learned the same lesson, but municipal governments have been noticeably reticent to admit that there was often a deficiency in their methods of communication.

Victoria city council may have finally learned its lesson 10 days back when it botched the unveiling of the CPR plan for a convention centre.

As was said a week ago the plan itself appears sound and sensible and is certainly the best to date.

TIMING WAS BAD

But the timing of the presentation couldn't have been worse.

It's hard to convince the elected officials, but had they announced the plan a week before it went to city council for nominal endorsation they could have avoided a great deal of the suspicious reaction they have received by ramming the thing through in a space of four hours.

Things to look for as negotiations between the city and the CPR continue and the final draft of the agreement between the two is hammered out:

- A switch in the land lease arrangements which will see the city actually purchase the convention centre site from the CPR for a very nominal sum.
- A big change in the parking facility arrangements with the CPR picking up a larger share of the tab or maybe taking that phase over entirely.
- And an offer for services it will be difficult for any other private group to come close to matching.

One further point while on the subject of the CPR offer.

There appears to be some confusion as to the extent the city and the CPR will shuffle the deck when it comes to disposition of the Crystal Garden.

Briefly, the CPR will be willing to purchase the Crystal site at the going market rate — roughly half a million dollars. But that does not mean that the city is prepared to sell to the CPR.

In other words, the CPR has committed itself to purchase the Crystal site and erect, within five years, two high-rise buildings. But the city is not committed to sell the site to the CPR.

In fact, when the time arrives to sell the site, it will go to the highest bidder with the soundest plan.

Treat Sewage; Biologist Urges

A stream of waste injected into any waterway will turn it old before its time, says a University of Victoria biologist.

Dr. Alan Austin conducts the only biology course at a Canadian university dealing directly with the effects of all kinds of pollution.

"It's absolutely totally out," he says of the practice of dumping raw sewage into the sea.

"It's only a matter of time before you change the nature of that waterway."

An effect of polluting water is that the enrivonment ages — may grow shallow, thick with plant life, in time even swamp-like — eons before nature might turn it that way.

ENVIRONMENT VITAL

It's vital that environment be kept intact, he adds, because it effects the well-being of everyone and everything within it.

Economics puts blinkers on us, he feels, when ways of disposing of sewage are considered.

But the economics of a situation have a way of changing rapidly and what appears impractical today turns out to be not only practical but routine within a decade or two.

People scoffed at the introduction of the automobile and swore they'd stick to the horse and carriage. But within 20 years came the first traffic jams and the fate of horses was sealed.

Same thing with the aeroplane, says the acquatic biologist. At first no one would give it a chance against cars.

Dr. Austin predicts that 20 years from now sewage treatment will be routine. Not just primary treatment, which means screening out the solids, but the ultimate tertiary treatment which leaves effluent clean enough for a swimming pool.

Increasing treatment of sewage will spur researchers to develop even better methods, he suggests. But treatment right now is essential because man's environment simply cannot continue to take the pollution punishment it's been getting.

LOCAL RESEARCH

With his assitants, Dr. Austin is researching the different approaches which can be taken in water biology surveys. This has involved studies in Elk Lake and Portage Inlet.

Of Elk Lake, the water supply for a large part of the Saanich Peninsula, he says there is algae present but he cannot detail in what quantity.

The whole subject of pollution has made certain terms common but they project an improper picture of the biology involved in the question, he says.

Given the opportunity nature processes all materials to complete cycles of life, death and regeneration.

"There's no such thing as waste,"

Dr. Austin's biology of pollution course is a half-year program for fourth year students. Enrolment has doubled to a dozen this year.

The course complements other studies in biology, he says, gathering together a flood of information on environmental alteration. He suggests one academic challenge in the next decade is illustrating for young people the challenge to be found in the environmental sciences.

Biology, he believes, can act as a bridge between the pure and the social sciences.

The invasion of Czechoslovakia has postponed a conference of the International Association of Water Pollution Research at Prague which Dr. Austin was to attend.

He left today for other meetings in a European round, including a marine congress at Arcachon, France, and an international conference in Spain.

Choristers Organizing New Season

Alan Clapp has been elected president of Victoria Choral Society for the coming year.

Percy Sands is vice-president; Frank Cowley, secretary; Muriel Smith, treasurer; Theo Tarn, publicity; Joan Hanning, social convener; Ken Cummings, committee member.

Rodney Webster will continue as musical director, with Richard Proudman as accompanist and associate chorus master and Vera Harvey as assistant accompanist.

The society will present Handel's Messiah in Christ Church Cathedral in mid-December and Mendelssohn's Elijah in May. It will join with Victoria Symphony in a performance of Kodaly's Mass in March.

The first rehearsal and social get-together will be in Christ Church Memorial Hall Tuesday, Sept. 10, at 7:45 p.m.

"All city choristers will be welcomen" Mr. Clapp said, "as we are anxious to increase our membership."

Police Urge Rainy Season Adjustments

City police are concerned that intersection congestion caused by motorists who ignore or disobey traffic signs will lead to an increase in fatal accidents this winter.

They are worried because of the slaughter that took place between Nov. 14 and Dec. 5 of last year when five pedestrians were killed on city streets.

There has been only one fatal accident in the city this year but that was also the situation before Nov. 1967.

One intersection in particular — Blanshard and View where four no left turn signs restrict eastbound traffic between 4 and 6 p.m. Monday to Friday, is becoming a major problem.

Inspector Richard Berry said "too many" tickets have been given to erring motorists. Hundreds of warning tickets were issued when the signs were first posted.

Normally only one sign is used at a corner restricting turns but police have added three more to this one with the hope of curbing the offences.

With winter officially here soon police recommend pedestrians wear light-colored clothing at night and carry a flashlight or wear a fluorescent arm band.

Marked crosswalks should be used and pedestrians should wait for signals and not dart out between cars.

Police suggest defensive driving for motorists including reduction of speed in rain, an increase in the distance between cars and clean car windows.

"Pedestrians should give motorists the same consideration they expect," added Insp. Berry.

Superport Rail Issue Dismissed

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark, a member of the British Columbia harbors board, Friday dismissed criticism of the route chosen for the rail link to the deep sea port at Robert Bank, south of Vancouver.

"If the railway moved somewhere else, we'd just have another group of baying hounds," he said.

The criticism was levelled at the British Columbia Hydro and Power Authority railway at a public hearing last week in Richmond, B.C., a Vancouver suburb.

The proposed railway would run from Cloverdale, B.C., to the port site, a distance of about 18 miles. Many groups said the link should follow the southern arm of the Fraser River.

Mr. Loffmark said the protestors are the same people "who were urging me three years ago to bring the superport project to reality."

NECESSARY

"They were writing me letters saying this was necessary for the development of Richmond and Delta."

Mr. Loffmark also replied to criticism levelled by Gordon Dowdning, a New Democratic Party MLA who said a cabinet order last spring made the government — not the hydro railway — responsible for the rail line and its route.

"Mr. Dowding should not go around looking through keyholes," he said. "I attach no credence to what Mr. Dowding says or to the other people who are now criticizing."

Munn Road Condition Protested

Residents Friday criticized Saanich council for failing to improve Munn Road from Prospect Lake Road to the municipal boundary.

Malcolm McSorley, 2100 Munn Road, spokesman for the group, said council allocated this year $10,000 for removal of hazardous curves and trees, but failed to carry out its program.

"All it did was to improve the entrance to Francis Park," he said.

Saanich portion of the road extends from Prospect Lake Road to 1½ miles past Francis Park. The remainder of the road is an unorganized district.

B.C. Hydro, he said, was prepared to extend its school bus service two miles along Munn Road if Saanich would improve the roadway, he said.

At present the bus service stops at Prospect and Munn roads, and some children have to walk two miles to the bus stop, he claimed.

"All that's required is the removal of a few trees which obstruct the view and some curves, he stated.

Mr. McSorley said residents plan to protest to council for the lack of action on the matter.

"The government has improved its portion of the road," he said. "Saanich should complete its section."

Church Union Move Started

A move towards union of the Anglican and United churches of Vancouver Island will be taken Oct. 9 when representatives of both churches meet with Dean Brian Whitlow, DD, at Christ Church Cathedral.

Rev. L. C. Hooper of Chemainus is convener of the United Church group. Other members are Rev. Albert King, Rev. Dr. H. W. Kerley and Mrs. W. Spearman of Victoria and Mrs. Allan Heyd of Tofino.

PNE Open Sundays?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Pacific National Exhibition directors have voted to ask city council to amend a bylaw which bans Sunday opening at the fair. A PNE spokesman said it is not expected games of chance will operate if Sunday openings are granted.

Chicago War Protest Product Of Policy Change Planning

By ARCH MacKENZIE

CHICAGO (CP) — The violence threatening to stamp the concluded Democratic national convention for history is product of forces taking shape months ago.

The unpopular Vietnam war became the main spark. Fears here of another uprising among the city's 1,000,000 Negroes never materialized.

Militant opponents of the war began planning last year on a convention campaign to change the course of American policy in Vietnam. Several planning meetings were held.

And Mayor Richard Daley, hard-nosed mayor of this 3,500,000-resident city which calls itself the convention capital of the world, began lining up extraordinary security precautions.

The upshot was provocation and a reaction by Chicago police that, despite the mayor's heated denials, includes proven police brutality. Television videotapes, assaults on non-protesters and eyewitness testimony all verify that fact.

The mayor, the Chicago police department and other officials now are engaged in a publicity campaign attempting to tar the news media—and particularly the major television networks—with responsibility for what happened.

NEVER AGAIN?

"May America resolve tonight that never, never again will we have seen what we have seen," Vice-President Hubert Humphrey said Thursday night in launching his speech accepting nomination for the U.S. presidency.

Police edginess reached the bizarre when Hugh Hefner, proprietor of the lush Bunny Hutch that serves as the headquarters of his Playboy empire, was clubbed on a late-night stroll.

Hefner reported he was walking with Max Lerner, a syndicated political columnist, and cartoonist Jules Pfeiffer when they were accosted by police from a squad car who drew their revolvers and then hit him.

Daley said Thursday "colossal propaganda" colored TV reports about convention planning. He said: "For weeks and months the press, radio and TV across the nation have revealed the tactics and the strategy that was to be carried on . . . during the convention week by groups of terrorists."

Tuesday night, 17 reporters and camera men were assaulted by police as they sought to cover police action moving protesters out of a North Chicago park with billy clubs and tear gas.

Thursday, a district court ordered the Chicago police department to stop harassing news men.

The main violence came Wednesday night in another anti-war protest in a park fronting the Conrad Hilton Hotel, serving as convention headquarters.

WITNESSES REACT

More than 400 persons were arrested and more than 300 injured. Police said 83 of their ranks had been hurt. Police clubs, tear gas, Mace, a chemical irritant spray, and other physical force was used. Rocks and bottles were thrown—some from protesting eyewitnesses in the hotel watching the repeated police assaults on demonstrator ranks below.

The protesting forces have been a mixed bag—ranging from New Left people who regard the Communists with contempt as right-wingers to more moderate elements such as the National Mobilization to End the War in Vietnam and something called the National Conference on New Politics. Another was the Coalition for an Open Convention—meaning non-rigged.

After the Wednesday bloodletting, increasing numbers of youngsters participated from the forces of peace candidates Eugene McCarthy of Minnesota and George McGovern of South Dakota, plus followers of the late Senator Robert Kennedy.

By Thursday night, hundreds of well-dressed adults joined a protest led by Negro comedian Dick Gregory, who went to jail eventually with about 80 others. They included convention delegates.

There have been self-proclaimed hippies, with long hair, head bands, tattered attire, weird hats and the unscrubbed look of teen-age boys and girls sleeping outside for several weeks.

SOME WERE PROS

There are some Negroes, some Communists, some professional agitators.

The National Mobilization to end the War—called MOB—is a coalition of about 100 anti-war groups which played a leading role last October in the march on Washington's Pentagon, where more than 600 were eventually arrested.

There are Students for a Democratic Society and the Yippies, the Youth International Party which arrived here with a pig as a presidential candidate. They call police "pigs", oppose the military draft and some urge "revolution".

Earlier this month, one New Left objective was outlined by Tom Hayden, who in 1965 defied the U.S. state department to visit Hanoi. He also has played a role in one of the North Vietnamese releases of captured American pilots and takes a dim view of violence on one hand and Senator McCarthy's "children's crusade" on the other. The New Left distrusts the entire existing political system.

"Our goal is not to influence the convention delegates," he said. "We want to assert the presence and vitality of the anti-war movement which has been confused and relaxed by the Paris peace talks and the McCarthy campaign."

Press officer Frank Sullivan of the Chicago police department calls Hayden a Communist—Hayden says he is far left of the Communists—and thereby justifies what the Chicago police have been doing to the demonstrators.

'BEATINGS UNJUST'

Senator McGovern, after viewing some of that action, said youngsters were being "savagely beaten simply because they are on the street demonstrating against policies about which they have had little to say."

Newspaper columnist Jimmy Breslin, slugged in the stomach by a police billy, called Wednesday's action "the worst I ever have seen."

"Chicago cops, who had been misdirected all day, were completely without supervision now. They were running into young kids and beating them."

There was criticism voiced about Chicago policy leading inevitably to violence. Assorted applications were made for permits to hold anti-war protests in Wrigley Field and other facilities.

Mayor Daley refused to grant permits for such events or for the marches on the fence-surrounded convention hall that protesters requested.

Instead, they were permitted to use the system of parks beside Lake Michigan—in some cases only up to the normal closing time of 11 p.m. Thereafter, they had no place to go.

IT'S ALL OVER . . . LITTER-ALLY and clean-up crews pick up the pieces in Chicago after the delegates, celebrities and police depart. It was one of the stormiest political conventions in U.S. history. (AP Wirephoto)

FBI Computer Speeds Information on Crime

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Baton Rouge, La., policeman halted a car for running a stop sign last month.

Before the officer finished making out the traffic ticket, a routine check by a new computer hundreds of miles away in Washington, D.C., reported that the driver was wanted in a $500,000 New York bank robbery.

Unusual? No longer, said the FBI in reporting on the first 18 months of operation of the National Crime Information Centre.

The FBI called the centre, located near its headquarters in the United States capital, "the greatest advance in law enforcement in 25 years" and said it's responsible for 500 or 600 arrests or recoveries of stolen property each month.

The big computer is the guts of the centre, which serves as a warehouse of facts on 186,000 wanted men, stolen cars, missing guns and hundreds of other items bearing serial numbers.

SYSTEM IS GROWING

The centre provides almost instantaneous information to more than 700 police departments in 43 states, the District of Columbia and Canada.

Hawaii will be hooked up to the system Aug. 9 and by the end of the year all 50 states will "subscribe".

The FBI said notices of stolen cars or descriptions of fugitives and missing property are fed electronically by police agencies into one of 62 terminals. These terminal points relay the information to the $1,000,000 centre in Washington.

The FBI said police in the smallest communities may benefit from the computer. All they need is a teletype unit and somebody who can type. Whatever information they have, or require, is sent by teletype message to the nearest terminal, and an answer from the bank can be flashed back in seconds.

The FBI envisages more uses for the computer.

Already being researched is a system whereby fingerprints could be identified at the push of a button.

And a boon to banks and those companies dealing with stocks and bonds would be an instant identification process of such serialized paper assets.

"We can foresee the day when a bank teller, for instance, would be able to have identified as legal or stolen any money order or draft presented to her over the counter for cash—and in only as long as it takes for the customer to sign his name," the FBI official said.

Restrictions Make Children Accident Prone

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (CP)—Children who have been subjected to excessive restrictions at the hands of parents are the most accident-prone at school, says survey by the Auckland Education Board.

Headmasters reported that those most likely to meet accidents are children who have not had sufficient freedom to express themselves in adventurous play. Emotionally immature and disturbed children were also very liable to accidents.

Synthetic Marijuana New Worry

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new cloud of worry is swirling up over marijuana.

The concern is whether underground chemists will succeed in making synthetic or artificial marijuana. If they do, then a few drops of the liquid "pot" could transform an ordinary cigarette into a potent reefer.

Such altered cigarettes might easily pass inspection. Smugglers and pushers might find dozens of new tricks for transporting the concentrated chemical.

American and Israeli chemists a few years ago discovered practical ways to synthesize the active ingredients of marijuana — chemicals knows as tetrahydrocannabinols, or THC.

In normal scientific fashion, they published their findings. Some THC now is being made for legitimate research studies to pin down more knowledge about the psychological and health effects of marijuana, including any effects from using it regularly for long periods of time.

Recipes for bringing up children are a dime a dozen, but the other day I listened to a father who has evolved a new and interesting approach. I would like to introduce him, but to do so might spoil his foxy little racket.

"You know why so many young teen-agers run away from home?" he asked. Then he proceeded to answer his own question.

"Because they haven't got anything to rebel against, and that can be terribly frustrating to adolescents. They've been given everything they ask for, except maybe the feeling that their people don't care enough about them to tell them 'No' and make it stick."

He poured water into his coffee, which had come from the restaurant urn at a rolling boil.

"They have nothing to struggle against," he continued, "so they go adrift, and sometimes they run away."

And how do they handle matters in his home? He was prompt with his answer.

"We give them something solid to rebel against. Like piano lessons, and a firm no-smoking rule, and getting up early, and making their own beds.

"So when they reach the age of rebellion, they will have somthing to rebel against. It's a wonderful cathartic, and if more parents tried it, there'd be fewer runaways."

Interesting, yes. But I hope to talk with Papa X later, when his young have crossed over into adolescence, and his theory meets the test. If by then he can still speak with such positive conviction, I'll pay for the coffee!

Today I stand corrected, and with reason, by R. D. Blagrave of 1547 Mount Douglas Cross Road.

"Probably I'm too fussy about accuracy in the use of words," he writes, "but the phrase 'Pacific Northwest' (used recently in this column) puzzles me.

"I can understand the logic when applied to the states of Washington or Oregon by Americans . . . it is the northwest corner of the United States. But southwestern British Columbia is neither the northwest corner of the United States nor of the continent. Nevertheless, press, radio, television and publishers have unconsciously fallen into this error."

Precisionist Blagrave challenges us chaps of the media to "promote" a new catchphrase to describe this lucky corner of the country," and I for one intend to oblige.

How about Southwest Bennettopia?

Note to Sally:

In this matter of school overcrowding, the blame lies squarely on a provincial government that boasts about its annual surplus and "tax-free" status, but has consistently short-changed B.C.-dwellers and their children where education is concerned.

I hope your resentment will carry over until you are of voting age, at which time you can plunk for a better deal.

Meanwhile, if your friend's principal is willing to take him back as a part-time student to complete his failed courses, encourage him to go ahead and do so. (If he's a loafer, he may be out of luck, and if 19 or over at the start of fall term, this will indeed cost him).

One of these weeks, drivers proceeding through Tweedy country along Oak Bay Avenue are going to be startled by two well-shined brass doors of handsome design and impressive size.

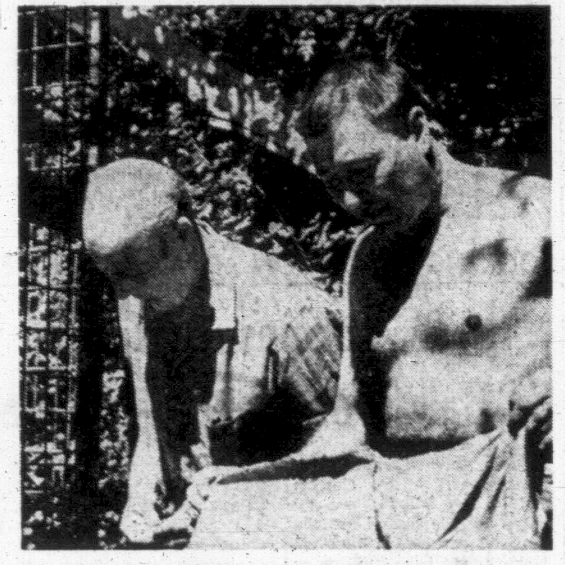
The butcher shop they will grace belongs to meat maestro Garth Graham, and the doors once added dignity to a public room of the old Hotel Vancouver. The pair, which weigh 700 pounds each, lay in storage for years across the water before Mr. Graham happened on them and promptly bought them for his new establishment.

That's it, and now, for a couple of weeks, goodbye. Fishes, have at you!

ONE SHIRT . . .

. . . DIVIDED IN TWO . . .

. . . IS HALF FOR ME . . .



. . . AND HALF FOR YOU.

Ripping Good Time At Zoo

By DON VIPOND

Moral of this story is — monkey around and you can lose your shirt.

For the better part of an hour recently the truth of it kept a crowd at Rudy's Zoo on Durrance Road convulsed.

Victim was Hilton Doucette, a visitor from Newfoundland. Villains were chimps Jill and her baby. The prize — Mr. Doucettes' shirt.

It was Jill who reached through the bars to snatch the shirt draped over the victim's arm. The entertainment warmed up as she and her baby raced about in a game of tag, then took to expertly modelling the shirt.

"Ha, ha," said Mr. Doucette, joining manfully with the crowd.

He crossed the safety fence to the cage and Jill immediately offered the shirt through the grill. He reached for it and Jill quickly pulled it back.

Photos by Dave Hancock Island Research Centre

"Ha ha," said Mr. Doucette but it was lost in the howls of the audience.

Three times Jill led him to different corners of the cage using the shirt as bait. Each time as he lunged it was snapped away at the last second.

"Give me back my shirt."

That kind of a bellow can be heard even over a chorus of laughter.

When Jill hung the shirt out next time, Mr. Doucette wasn't about to be fooled again. So the wily chimp left it there and climbed the cage above it.

Seeing his chance, the victim lunged. But Jill's feet are really just another pair of hands. One of them flicked the shirt out of reach.

"You damn stupid ape!"

● ● ●

Belly laughs from about 75 people by now couldn't drown that cry of exasperation.

In time the inevitable happened. Victim and villain each got a grip on the shirt.

Rrrrrriiiiipppppp!

Jill tried on her half, curled a lip in disgust and tossed it through the bars.

Along came zookeeper Rudy Bauersachs to console the baffled victim and present Jill with a cigarette for her fine performance.

Jill likes the last move in any argument. She took a long, long drag, curled up her massive lips and blew a barrelful of smoke right in Mr. Doucette's face.

Turner Backers Awaiting Signal

By JOHN MIKA

Justice Minister John Turner reaches his Rubicon Monday evening when he attends a Liberal reception in the Hotel Vancouver.

That's when he'll have to show by word or deed whether he'll cross the bridge into provincial politics.

A "draft Turner" movement is ready to go if he agrees to become available for the B.C. Liberal leadership race in Penticton in October.

Preparations for the move by his friends include a couple of public opinion polls which some insiders have indicated show B.C. is ready for a major improvement of Liberal strength.

That indication is reported to be so strong that it inevitably would tempt a young and dynamic man as Mr. Turner is described by his enthusiasts.

But there also are negative results produced by the private polls from the viewpoint of the group wishing to start the draft movement.

It has been suggested that the prospects of the party have been painted in such rosy colors by the survey that the feeling is hardening for home-grown efforts to capture the expected gains.

That may have been behind the announcement by Barrie Clark, MLA for North Vancouver-Seymour, that he endorses the only declared candidate — Dr. Pat McGeer, MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey.

'OBVIOUS CHOICE'

"There are some who are saying we should have a large number of candidates vying for the office of party leader," Mr. Clark announced, perhaps significantly using provincial Liberal party stationery.

"As far as I am concerned, when there is an obvious choice I do not find it necessary to seek alternatives," he said.

There also is a rumor spreading among party workers that "certain quarters in Ottawa, including Prime Minister Trudeau" frown on the idea of Mr. Turner resigning from the federal cabinet to try his hand in B.C.

And departing Liberal leader Ray Perrault — who was studiously overlooked in this week's appointments of parliamentary secretaries to cabinet ministers — could be expected to redouble his support of Mr. McGeer against a federal cabinet minister.

AT BAR MEETING

Prime Minister Trudeau and Mr. Turner will both be in Vancouver for the Canadian Bar Association's annual convention opening Tuesday.

Both will be in Vancouver Monday attending receptions and it is certain they'll be closely watched by Liberals for some sign of Mr. Turner's probable future.

Student Didn't Appeal Ruling Of Faculty

Uvic student John Thomas who won a scholarship for his first-year studies last year, was barred from returning to the university as a disciplinary measure, registrar Ron Ferry said Friday.

Mr. Ferry was commenting on the Thomas case as detailed by columnist Arthur Mayse in Friday's Times.

The suspension is for a year only and could have been appealed, said the registrar.

In his column Mr. Mayse reported Thomas, 23, told him he had registered as a new student a year ago, ashamed to report the failure of two previous years at Uvic in 1963-64 and 1964-65.

The university's calendar, which lists information about the university and is widely available publically, says in a section under 'unsatisfactory standing':

NO CREDITS

"A student who, in the course of his academic career, recieves no credit in any two academic years, whether they be consecutive or not, will normally be required to withdraw permanently . . ."

Mr. Thomas said today he knew of that rule when he registered as a new student a year ago but understood he could return to the university after his failure following an absence of a year or two.

The one-year suspension from the regular university session levied against Thomas was a move taken by the faculty council with powers it has under the Universities Act, said Mr. Ferry, who is also secretary of the council.

The decision was made last February and Mr. Thomas was notified then, he added. It could have been appealed to the senate.

Permit Value 'Doubles'

Victoria building permits issued in August nearly doubled the value of permits issued in the same month last year.

The total is $1.86 million compared with $948,998 a year ago.

Despite the dollar increase, the number of permits issued dropped from 581 to 529 for the month.

At the end of the first eight months of 1968, 4,238 permits worth $16.33 million have been issued.

Included are permits for 57 single-family dwellings, six duplexes, 22 multiple dwellings and three hotel or motel constructions.

To date, no permits have been issued for schools or churches.

Some 679 permits, valued at $673,338, have been issued for alterations or repairs to residential buildings.

Man Drank Gas Instead of Wine

A 47-year-old Saanich man was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday night when he drank some gasoline, mistaking it for wine.

A hospital spokesman said today the man was in satisfactory condition.

Loffmark Statements 'Just Half-Truths'

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today B.C. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is stating half-truths about the Sept. 28 sewer consolidation referendum.

"For a minister of the Crown to shoot off his mouth in this way is, to say the least, discouraging to Saanich," said Mayor Curtis.

"It's an ill-informed half-truth and on the very touchy subject of sewage, the health minister, of all ministers, should know his facts in complete detail before he gives public statements so freely."

APPROVAL NOT ASKED

Mr. Loffmark said Friday that Saanich council has not asked for health department approval as required by the provincial Health Act and that the "law is clear that these things cannot be done legally until they have my approval."

He also said that every sewer bylaw put to a vote must have a preamble that the health department certificate has been obtained.

At public meetings and elsewhere, Saanich spokesmen have said the vote is concerned only with creating one sewage collection system. Additional disposal, by whatever method, resulting from future expansion of the system will require approval from the B.C. Pollution Control Board and the B.C. health department, they have said.

COVERED BY LAW

Mayor Curtis said that the authority for the Saanich bylaw is contained in two pieces of enabling legislation, one passed by the legislature in 1967 and the other in 1968 "and Loffmark is a member of the House."

"Saanich knows very well the procedure it has to follow both before the enterprise vote and subsequent to that in the construction of new sewer extensions," he said, recalling that they were pointed out as recently as a public meeting last Tuesday night.

He said Mr. Loffmark has shown that he "simply doesn't understand" the purpose of the Saanich vote in spite of the fact that copies of the bylaw and supporting material have been left with him.

"His glossing-over of the Saanich issue is harming the bylaw in Saanich and to no useful purpose," he said.

The proposal going before Saanich ratepayers Sept. 28 is for creation of a single sewer area, called a sewer enterprise, with a common charge per property for the service.

The enterprise would replace the present half-dozen individual sewer areas and 45 different rate structures. To this would be added an adjacent area which Saanich will sewer in the next five years.

Approval of the enterprise would facilitate expansion of sewer services and provide a fair distribution of costs, Saanich officials have explained.

Mistreatment Charges Dismissed

SPCA charges that 11 horses kept at Long Beach and rented out for trail rides had been mistreated were dismissed Friday by Magistrate Ian McLorie of Tofino.

The dismissal will be appealed, SPCA spokesman Fred Straman of Port Alberni said today.

Charges were laid after an American tourist told the SPCA that the horses, belonging to Corrie Vis of Port Alberni, were suffering from lack of food, water and shelter.

The society took the horses to Port Alberni where they were stabled, fed and given veterinary treatment.

Magistrate McLorie said today the prosecution left him no alternative but to dismiss the case heard at Ucluelet.

"In my opinion, the SPCA failed to prove that the horses were not fed, not watered or not sheltered," he said. Mr. Straman said the SPCA had 30 days in which to begin an appeal.

Curtis Opposes Merger

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich disagreed today with municipal assistant planner, Keith Birch, that amalgamation — directly or indirectly — will come to Greater Victoria municipalities within 10 years.

The mayor promised firm resistance to any such merger.

Mayor Curtis said local autonomy will remain where it works best and regional authority will operate where it works best. An example of the latter was trunk sewers.

"Amalgamation is an extinct word," he said. "It is really only raised by those not familiar with the regional process now proceeding in B.C."

It was essential to leave power with individual municipal councils because one large amalgamated area can result in difficulties for residents in getting in touch with elected officials.

"Where you have regional problems you solve them on a regional basis," he said.

'Some Strides Overlooked'

"I think in some of his comments Mr. Birch has overlooked some of the strides made on regionalization and the close co-operation that there is by elected and appointed people in the various municipalities.

He noted that regional government has grown since the last time Saanich voters turned down amalgamation with Victoria some years ago.

"There is no question of it that regionalization will continue to grow and expand and this is a good thing where the regional approach is the correct approach," he said.

He supported bringing the Capital Region Planning Board under the regional district umbrella but did not think that local municipal planning should follow the same course because it was not in the interests of the various municipalities.

Mayor Curtis said Saanich and Victoria planning departments work closely together and if they didn't he would make strong objections.

The McRae Estate was purchased by Saanich which is also building recreational facilities and both took account of needs and services beyond Saanich boundaries.

He said he will "firmly resist" amalgamation of fire and police departments in Greater Victoria.

There was good co-operation in both protections — a fire at the University of Victoria will see Oak Bay and Saanich departments called; Victoria was at the Mount Douglas fire in Saanich; and Saanich was at the Government House fire in Victoria.

Police, Fire Can't Be Improved

The "first-class" police department could not be improved by amalgamation with a larger force. There was co-operation and free exchange of information and this was essential.

Mr. Birch said the necessity for total area planning will bring the amalgamation of the four main municipalities.

"You can't plan in isolation," he said.

"You have to plan in a total environment, not a pocket. You can't stop your thinking at a municipal border.

"I don't know how soon it will come. Soon, I hope. But I think in 10 years' time we may wake up and find we have amalgamation in practice if not in theory."

Mr. Birch, who is leaving Saanich at the end of September to return to England, said amalgamation can come in two ways: The provincial government may force the issue or it could be voluntary.

He pointed out that Alberni and Port Alberni merged voluntarily and that in Burnaby, Mayor Emmott was proposing amalgamation with Vancouver.

In Greater Victoria, however, "the time is not ripe for it to happen politically right now."

He said all phases of all municipalities have to be looked at and consideration given to the total development of the community in the future.

He believed the regional district may take on more and more authority, gradually acquiring the necessary functions to plan on a metropolitan basis.

He pointed to the Simpsons-Sears Hillside shopping centre in Victoria as having a tremendous influence on nearby areas of Saanich just from changing traffic patterns.

Suburban sprawl, rapid population increases and higher-density accommodation were all problems which must be considered on an area basis.

"We're part of Greater Victoria and some of these areas are being planned to service a metro area without metro-wide studies," he said.

Sewered Land Shortage Hits Program

The shortage of sewered land is hitting a $700,000 Saanich low-rental housing scheme which is unique in British Columbia.

The federal-provincial-municipal scheme, initiated by Saanich and paid for by the senior governments, calls for acquisition of 50 older homes in different areas and renting them at economic rates.

Final approval came last September and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a federal agency, has been handling details.

COSTS TOO HIGH

Ald. Edith Gunning, driving force behind the plan when she was chairman of the health and welfare committee in 1966 and 1967, said the 50 houses have not yet been acquired because of the spiralling cost of houses and the restriction that the houses must be on a sewer.

She also said Saanich cannot take advantage of land assembly schemes through CMHC because of the shortage of sewered land. The existing sewage collection system cannot be expanded to cover a large enough area for land assembly.

Ratepayers are being asked Sept. 28 to approve a single sewage collection system which would extend sewers to adjacent unsewered land in five years.

The unique aspect of the low-rental scheme is that it seeks to scatter the houses in different areas rather than bunch low-income people in a single ghetto-like development.

HOT RETURN FROM STROLL

When Trevor Digby, his wife, four children and a dog returned from a stroll around Sidney Island, they found their 25-foot $6,000 cabin cruiser Glen L burned to the waterline.

Mr. Digby, 3099 Gibbons Road, Duncan, today said "It was quite a shock."

Friendly passers-by took Mr. Digby to Sidney where he got another boat to rescue his wife, four children and dog.

Sidney RCMP report the vessel a complete loss and are investigating, though foul play is not suspected. No one was injured in the accident. The vessel was insured.

Ask The Times

Q. To whom could I write for information on importing a car from the United States?—J. J.

A. Information on how customs regulations pertain to a given case may be obtained by writing the Collector of Customs, 816 Government Street, Victoria.

Q. Has the site for the 1970 World's Fair in Japan been decided yet?—E. P.

A. The 1970 World's Fair will be held in Osaka, Japan. Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia each will erect a pavilion on the site. The $11,200,000 federal budget for Expo 70 includes about $900,000 for entertainment of all kinds.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

20,000 Honor Parole

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canada's parole system is 90 per cent successful.

Of 22,000 persons paroled from prison since 1959, only 2,400 have returned, says T. George Street, Q.C., chairman of National Parole Board in Ottawa.

Visiting Victoria today, Mr. Street said 1,852 were paroled in 1964 compared with 3,086 in 1967.

"In spite of this increase in numbers, the success rate has been high. Ninety per cent have completed their parole without committing any offence or causing any trouble.

"It is also significant that most people on parole are working."

Mr. Street says employers are less prejudiced against people who have been in jail than they used to be.

"The public has realized that, if you don't give a man a chance to work, he will drift back to crime."

The conditions of parole are variable and are tailored to suit the persons concerned.

If a man has a drink problem, he is required not to enter licenced premises or take drink home during his term of parole.

Mr. Street visited the minimum security institution at William Head Friday and revealed that 19 of its inmates are in school improving their grades.

"The average educational level of inmates is Grade Six," he said. "They rarely reach Grade 12."

Coats and coat dresses for fall . . .

Maybe you think there's not much of a common denominator between Dublin and Hong Kong . . . but we've discovered at least one area where the twain meet . . . in producing beautiful clothes distinguished for their fine fabrics, imaginative styling and exquisite workmanship! . . . Drop into Wilson's real soon and see what we mean . . . Shipments have just arrived from Jack Clarke of Dublin and Dynasty of Hong Kong . . . hand-tailored tweed coats from the former . . . in the loveliest, softest color blends imaginable . . . styled with a real flair . . . the unexpected touches which set them apart from just any tweed coat . . . and we dare you not to fall in love with at least one of them . . . Then there are the ensembles and coat dresses by Dynasty . . . whose name has always been synonymous with luxurious silk costumes and lounge wear . . . and who are now doing equally exciting creations with fine woollens . . . One black and white diagonally striped costume shows the Spanish influence . . . with its ¾-length coat and sleeveless dress trimmed with black velvet . . . stunning! . . . The coat dresses are a very good weight for this time of year . . . one in a navy, gold and brown check, size 14, has a bit of a military look with its round brass buttons . . . Another chic coat dress is black and white herringbone with gold-buttoned side fastening, detachable white silk cuffs . . . see them at . . . W. & J. Traffic stoppers at M & E . . .

We wondered what was stopping traffic in Trounce Alley this week . . . Discovered it was the cute jacket dress in Madam and Eve's window . . . and if it will do that in a window, think what it will do for the girl who wears it! . . . The dress is grey English flannel with pleats from mid-hip . . . blue wool gabardine slightly flared jacket in the new long length, with sailor collar and grey flannel tie . . . A real honey, in size 11 . . . Inside M & E we saw two more of these . . . one with brown jacket, size 13, and the other with red jacket, size 7 . . . These are by Gordi, which speaks for their quality as well as their fashion rightness . . . M & E have a couple of new coats and dress ensembles, too, which we consider extremely smart . . . One, a size 8, consists of a sleeveless mauve wool sheath dress, and tweedy coat whose pink, white, blue, red and navy blend gives a lovely mauve effect . . . It's a Nehru style coat with Mandarin collar and low patch pockets . . . The other is bright red wool gabardine . . . eight rows of stitching forming a band under the bust and around the back of the coat, which fastens with antiqued gold buttons . . . same band of stitching on the sleeveless dress with slightly flared skirt . . . size 10 . . . Madam and Eve Shop, Trounce Alley, 383-7177.

High fashion footwear by Amalfi . . .

They were in the process of unpacking their fall shipment of Amalfi shoes from Italy when we visited Munday's this past week . . . so we were lucky and got a first look at several of the new models . . . Amalfi has always stood for high fashion in footwear . . . and you can't get a better-grade shoe at any price, Mr. Munday confided to us, with justifiable pride, because these beautiful shoes are exclusive to Munday's in Victoria . . . This year, Amalfi styles are really different . . . There's a very handsome, and unusual, pattern named "Veltro" which has a high-fitting strap with gold buckle, and broad, curved illusion-height heel . . . deep, round toe . . . This entirely new last comes in two tones of patent . . . black with green, black with wine, and black with truffle . . . "Chamonix," with lower heel, big self bow, comes in green, bronze and wine pearlized patent, as well as in plain black . . . "Trami" is a black or navy calfskin shoe with patent toe cap, small bow, and medium high heel . . . "Tiburtina" is the ultimate in high fashion . . . a high, very broad heel (higher than we've seen for a long time) . . . Black patent with high front and a tortoise shell ring trim . . . This shoe eptitomizes the new look for fall and winter . . . "Concetta," in black patent or brown calf, is a low heeled dressy pump with a big rosette centred with an amber bauble . . . Prices are from $29.95 to $33.95 at . . . Munday's, 1203 Douglas Street, 383-2211.

Apartment Dwelling Demands Adjustment to Meet Evolution

Mrs. Dorothy Bishop, the only woman member of the Ontario town planning commission, has recently moved to Victoria. As a planning consultant and apartment manager, she is very much aware of the problems posed by apartment living, fast becoming the only choice for many Canadians who can no longer afford to build their own homes. (Bill Halkett Photo)

"Personally, I don't think apartment living is the best way to raise a family, but we have to cut our coat according to our cloth.

"If people are going to congregate in urban centres, they must live in urban-type housing, and this means apartments. And, they must learn to accept and adjust to the fact that land and building costs make the single-family dwelling far too expensive for the average, or even above-average, income."

Mrs. Dorothy V. Bishop, property manager and planning consultant, was discussing some of the difficulties of apartment living.

She has observed them first-hand in Toronto, where, for the past 10 years she had her own company, and was one of the very few women apartment managers in Canada. She moved to Victoria in June, and finds our situation just beginning to follow the pattern which emerged in the northern suburbs of Toronto.

In this very necessary switch from private ownership of the single-family dwelling to renting accommodation in a multi-apartment, Mrs. Bishop believes we are going through a form of evolution which could be considered a minor revolution in our way of life.

One of the main problems felt particularly by Canadians is the loss of the personal pride in ownership, "an almost inherited thing with us, stemming from our background of pioneers who came to this country for freedom and land." Inability to buy land and build one's own house brings, she feels, a subconscious feeling of shame and failure."

"In addition, there is a lack of privacy in comparatively high-cost accommodation. This closeness to one's neighbors does not bring about a sense of belonging, but rather seems to breed aloofness, an abdication of responsibility to others, perhaps in an attempt to pretend they are not quite so close.

"This lack of responsibility also extends to the community as a whole. Apartment dwellers do not relate to the rest of the neighborhood, nor does the rest of the neighborhood relate to them. They are second-class citizens who weren't wanted in the first place."

But lack of responsibility also extends to the building, and vandalism is a major problem, Mrs. Bishop continued.

Adults have smeared paint over walls, ceiling and floor of an elevator. Broken plate-glass, missing elevator buttons, slashed carpets, pornographic drawings in halls and playrooms all add to the expense of upkeep for the owners.

"Often," Mrs. Bishop says, "this kind of vandalism increases following a rise in rents.

"The rent rise may coincide with a bad day at the office, a complaint from the wife that the people across the hall have a new living room suite or a new car, and the sense of frustration and discontent which all of us feel at times is heightened in a closely packed warehouse of humans."

Attempts have been made to give tenants a sense of community and pride in their building. Owners have provided pools, playrooms, games rooms, and have encouraged organized activities. Success, however, has been slow.

"We can try to improve facilities," Mrs. Bishop added. "The ideal apartment complex for the family unit should have larger bedrooms, where children could play; play areas inside and outside, which needn't be sophisticated as long as there is open space and substitute for the garden and recreation room of the private house.

"Space should be provided for a commercially run day-care centre, for the working mother is a definite fact of modern life."

But the problem returns in the end to two main points.

There simply is not enough land for private homes for everyone, even if they could be built economically. Cities cannot afford to service urban sprawl areas, and must accept the fact that medium and high-density populations must be housed in apartment buildings.

Secondly, the people themselves must accept the fact that this is all they can afford. They must adjust to the fact that they cannot live the way they were brought up.

"Unfortunately this generation is fighting the revolution. The next generation will accept this method of living, just as people in England and other countries have before us."

COOKING CAN BE FUN By MARY MOORE

Three Recipes that Can Be Baked at the Same Time

These three items—Italian Meat Loaf, Herbed Carrots and this one-bowl, one-egg cake—all are baked at the same temperature in the oven. Make and bake in order listed.

ITALIAN STYLE MEAT LOAF

(serves 8—good sliced cold)

Two cups soft bread crumbs, ½ cup canned tomatoes, ¾ cup chopped onion, 2 eggs, 1½ pounds ground chuck beef, 2 teaspoons horseradish, 2 to 2½ teaspoons salt, 1 teaspoon dry mustard, ¼ teaspoon rosemary, teaspoon oregano, ¼ teaspoon basil, ½ cup catsup (for topping).

Moore

In large bowl combine all ingredients in order given except catsup. Press into loaf pan, smooth top, spread top with catsup. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 50 minutes. Pour off excess fat before serving.

HERBED CARROTS

Two pounds tender small carrots, ¼ cup margarine (or butter), 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, ¼ teaspoon rosemary.

Scrub and scrape carrots and cut in halves lengthwise and then into two-inch lengths. Cook in one inch unsalted boiling water, covered, 8 minutes. Drain. Turn into baking dish, dot with butter, sprinkle with salt, pepper and rosemary. Bake covered at 400 deg. Fahr. 25 minutes.

ONE-BOWL, ONE-EGG CAKE

(light, soft, wonderful)

One and one-half cups sifted cake or all-purpose flour, 1 cup sugar, ¼ teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 1 teaspoon soda, ⅓ cup shortening (room temperature), 2-3 cup thick sour milk, 1 large egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Into a large bowl sift together flour, sugar, salt, baking powder, baking soda. Add shortening. Beat in shortening on "low", coaxing shortening into flour with rubber spatula. To milk add vanilla and then add a little more than half of this milk mixture to bowl. Beat two minutes in beater or by hand. Add egg and remaining milk and beat two minutes. Pour into 9"x9" square pan lined on bottom with buttered wax paper. Bake at 400 deg. Fahr. 30 minutes. Serve warm with fresh berries.

Every Woman May Now Quickly

LIFT HER FACE OUT OF SUMMER LINES, WRINKLES and Aging DRYNESS

. . . thanks to the "European Discovery" CEF 600

Helps Every Complexion Regain and Retain the Younger Look by Immediately Counteracting Effects of the Hot, Parching Sun

No matter if skin is typed dry, normal or even oily . . . no matter whether you tan gently or burn easily . . . the summer sun dehydrates, drains skin of water and deprives it of the necessary moisture that pushes skin up and out to keep it as smooth, firm and wrinkle-free as the day you were married. And now, on holiday when you particularly want to look your youngest best, the summer sun works overtime to dry out and makes your skin on face and neck flabby, sagging, rough and weatherbeaten. You look and feel years older than your age. And your husband . . . it makes him feel older too!

Your One and Only Chance For Quick Summer Youth

Medical journals have acclaimed the "European Discovery" known scientifically as CEF 600 and now embodied as the active ingredient in the cosmetic-like lotion named "2ND DEBUT".

Apply "2ND DEBUT" nightly before retiring and daily before make-up. Day and night, it is constantly carrying water into the skin . . . counteracting all the skin drying effects of the hot summer sun that parches, drys, wrinkles your skin and makes it sag.

How 2ND DEBUT Works Quickly

Once again skin is moisturized, fresh, dewey radiant. Once again those aging lines and wrinkles are pushed up and out. Once again skin on face and throat is smooth and years younger in appearance. No matter how tan your complexion may be, a youth-like color glows from within. Your complexion seems to have been born beautiful. Only 2ND DEBUT can bring about this fantastic skin youthifying miracle . . . in spite of the drying summer sun!

IMPORTANT TO REGULAR USERS OF 2ND DEBUT

Particularly in these summer months, in time will your skin revert to the lined and wrinkled condition it was, unless you keep using 2ND DEBUT day and night. Your skin is constantly exfoliating . . . old skin flakes off and away and new skin is constantly being born. In summer weather it is more important than ever that you keep applying 2ND DEBUT before retiring and before make-up if you want to retain your soft, smooth youthful looking complexion. Users of 2ND DEBUT with CEF 600 are urged to switch to 2ND DEBUT with CEF 1200 . . . double strength and to use it all summer long.

For Extra Dry Skin . . . or Mi-Lady In a Hurry . . . 2ND DEBUT with double strength CEF 1200

New DOUBLE STRENGTH 2ND DEBUT contains CEF 1200 instead of CEF 600. It acts much faster to smooth and flatten skin made scaly by the summer sun . . . and it works quicker to push up and out the more deeply seated lines and wrinkles.

Back-To-School Means Extra Work

By PENNY SAVER

The fatal weekend has arrived. In just three nights and two days the youngsters must return to school. Fortunately for me, all our back-to-school preparations were taken care of well in advance so the Savers, one and all, will be able to take it easy theis weekend. Many of my friends however, the usually efficient Gladys among them, are still up to their ears in last-minute details. One of Gladys' daughters, for instance, discovered late Friday that the clasp was broken on her lunch bucket and a new one was in order, while the other twin decided she just had to wear the dress that still needed hemming on the first day. Another neighbor had trouble getting her six-year-old to come to town to have his new school shoes fitted, while another put off buying supplies to the eleventh hour.

On top of all this confusion is the changeabe weather. Since the long range forecast promised rain and cloudy skies until mid-September, I decided I should invest in a good, rain-proof carry-all for each of the children. I was in luck! I discovered just what I was looking for at a special back-to-school price. The ideal school bag should be large enough cover a whole armload of books, and this one is. It measures approximately a foot and a half by a foot and expands at the bottom to take a good depth of text-book. The top is fastened by one of those plastic zippers that mend quite easily if too much strain is put on them. The bag itself is of transparent plastic. This bag will keep both rain and dust away from anything carried in it. While these carry-alls regularly sell for $1.29, they will be on special at 95 cents until the middle of September.

Cracked Mufflers Easily Mended

The new testing station is taking quite a number of elderly automobiles off the Victoria streets, I hear, but every now and then someone comes along who is determined to save theirs by hook or by crook. Mufflers can be quite a problem in any car, and many of my friends have given theirs a pre-test peek and discovered tiny cracks and rust spots that they didn't suspect were there. These cracks don't always mean a new muffler. For 98 cents one can buy a tube of muffler sealer that will solve the problem at a fraction of the cost. This liquid seals the small cracks that develop at weak points stopping exhaust leaks that threaten to asphixiate the driver. It is versatile too. One man I knew had some left over after he had finished the car so he used it to seal the cracks at the joints in the hot-air ducts from the furnace.

One mother of small children I know found her fingers became awfully sore from sewing patches into elbows and knees of garments. At last she discovered a fabric-mending fluid that let her make her own patches but not have to sew them in place. This plastic-mending fluid comes in 69-cent tubes and can be used to mend almost every fabric under the sun. It can be both washed and ironed. The package suggests many interesting uses, such as mending the fringe on a rug, or upholstery in a car. My friend found she could also use it for home-made appliques.

Please call me at 382-3131 if you would like to know where to shop for these items.

India: Women Rule Homes

By RAM SUNDAR

BOMBAY (CP) — Who wears the pants in Indian households?

The stock answer is: The men. Hindu women are generally regarded as submissive to the point of utter self-effacement.

But any one who has watched two recent Hindu festivals would have doubts about this notion.

On Nag Panchami—the Fifth Day of the Holy Serpent—Hindu women virtually seized control over their homes. Conceived some 2,000 years ago, the festival showed that the female in tradition-bound India is a true mistress in many respects.

As the men sat at office desks or ploughed the fields, their wives, daughters and sisters sang and danced and let themselves fly high on improvised swings in the garden.

Rural women virtually took over their villages.

Nag Panchami was soon folowed by Raksha Bandhan, which means the Bond of Protection. On this day Hindu men pledged "eternal love and affection" for their women. And the women tied bracelets of silver and gold thread and gorgeous flowers round the wrists of their men to show their appreciation.

One Bombay merchant spent $7,000 on gifts to his wife, two daughters and two sisters.

"This shows who wears the pants in the house," he said. "More than half of what I earn goes to buy presents for my wife and daughters."

The widespread notion in the West that Hindu women play an utterly subservient role to their men seems to have arisen because, except in the cities, women generally remain homebound.

But, as one Bombay professor explained in an article in a Marathi-language magazine, "inside the home it is the woman's voice which counts." He said this was more important than emancipation outside the home.

Many Indian husbands hand over their entire pay envelopes to their wives on pay day. The women decide on their husbands' pocket money.

Realty Business No Hobby

OTTAWA (CP) — Selling houses is a fine career for women, but Mrs. J. R. Midwinter of Ottawa cautions that it is no part-time hobby and requires energy.

One of 160 women in the real estate business here, Mrs. Midwinter says women tend to have a good understanding of what people look for in a house.

"The most rewarding thing is to get repeat business from a happy client."

Mrs. Midwinter became interested in the field after her husband, who works for the trade and commerce department, was transferred back to Canada in 1964 from a three-year posting in Chile.

She was with an Ottawa firm for five months, however, before selling one house. "But suddenly everything started to roll and I have been at it ever since."

Mrs. Midwinter, mother of two sons and daughter, had always known she would get into a business career eventually.

"Mother ran her own stationery business for 50 years. My most vivid memories are of her rushing to cook dinner with her hat on."

A native of Vancouver, where members of her family settled in 1886, the then Sally Heard graduated from the University of British Columbia in commerce and spent her summers working at a variety of jobs, including a stint as an airline stewardess.

In 1954 she married Mr. Midwinter, a Rhodes Scholar who had just completed his master's degree at Oxford, specializing in politics, philosophy and economics.

THIS AUTUMN
It's a cavalier season, rather dashing and suave looking. It's a time for humour and a touch of nostalgia, dipping back into the forties, the thirties, Victoriana, Regency.
It's precious furs used like fabrics, fake furs looking very de luxe. It's jolly British tweeds and woodsy leathers and vinyl you'd swear was leather.
There is no length. It's mini, midi, maxi. There's a costumy look of luxury and elegance. It's the embodiment of narrow shoulders, belted waists, moving pleats.

A WOMAN'S VIEWPOINT

By Pat Dufour

Tuesday will see the beginning of another school year for Victoria students. While some of them may not be overly ecstatic with the prospects of another brain-stretching session there is at least one section of the community that's impatient to begin exercising its brain cells. These are the thousands who will be enrolling in the Greater Victoria School Board's adult education night school program.

Many mothers, having recovered from launching Junior into another school year, will be free next week to study the school board's adult education program. Deciding what to take will be no easy task. Each year the list of subjects gets bigger and bigger. This year is no exception.

Several newcomers will be included on this year's faculty roll. The subjects they'll be teaching suggest that Victoria households will soon be run by some of the most efficient housewives in Canada.

Victoria Homes in for a Treat

Homes will certainly be in for a little modernistic face-lifting if they're owned by students of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Cripp, who will be teaching the techniques of plastic casting.

Anything from coffee tables and room dividers to lamps and ash trays can be created by this process which involves the pouring of liquid resin and hardener into molds. Individual touches can be added by the addition of color and glitter. What a perfect way to replace articles that have suffered the pummelling of a growing family!

Mrs. Roberta Henrich will be helping Victoria women to become fashion plates without denting that complaining family budget. Her course in fashion design is geared to make women develop a sense of fashion and an awareness of its importance in everyone's life. Her students, as part of the course, will find themselves sketching their haute couture special, and from it making first a paper pattern, then a muslin one with which they can experiment, and finally the finished garment.

A graduate of the University of of California, Mrs. Henrich has not restricted her designing to the realm of female fripperies. At one time she was a volunteer designer for Sonoma State Hospital in California, a hospital concerned with the treatment of physically and mentally handicapped children. Co-operating with doctors, nurses and therapists, she designed clothes which even the most helpless of patients could handle, introducing shoulder-opening and wrap-around skirts to replace hard-to-handle zippers, hooks and eyes, and normal-sized buttons.

This newcomer to the night school faculty feels that her course will also help women who are interested in the theatre. "Victoria has a wealth of theatrical ability and fashion design plays an integral part in the costuming of plays and other productions."

Another new faculty member, Mrs. Sheila Vaidya, feels that her course on Indian cooking will be as valuable to her as to her students. "I've only been in this country for a short while and it will help me to understand my new country better. There's no better communication than cooking."

Daughter Helps Canadianize Mother

Her daughter, Leena, is a student at Victoria Senior Secondary School and has done her part in the family's integration program by instructing her mother in the dishes she's learned at home economics classes.

This will not be the first time Mrs. Vaidya has taught. A graduate from the University of Bombay, she lectured in her own country. Also, while her husband, a retired naval officer, was with the Indian high commission in England, she participated in a good-housekeeping exhibition in London.

Among the other cookery courses offered is one guaranteed to win approval of any budget-conscious male. This one will have Mrs. Muriel Conroy showing how to satisfy gourmet tastebuds on an average budget.

Having long ago lost the temerity to choose ties for my husband, I'm tempted to enroll in the course on batik and tie dyeing, to be given by Mrs. Sonia Matthews. On graduation, I might once more be brave enough to include ties on my gift list, secure in the knowledge that I could always re-color any catastrophes!

For those who have set their hearts on visiting Expo 70 in Japan, Mrs. Michiko Warkentyne has been persuaded to teach a course in conversational Japanese. If you prefer to head in the direction of South America, Mrs. Maria Sottovla will get you in trim with a course in elementary Spanish.

Women of a more practical bent may be interested in courses that instruct how to paint a home or understand what makes the family car tick.

And, for mothers still shaking from the traumatic experience of summer holidays, there's always the practical psychology course of Alan Posthuma.

B.C. Government Cuts Help

The Registered Nurses' Association of British Columbia this year tripled the number of bursary loans for nursing education awarded to B.C. nurses. Miss F. Kennedy, director of education services, announced today that 21 bursary loans, totalling $19,000, have been awarded instead of the usual seven.

The increase was made necessary because of an emergency situation, she said.

"The amount of federal money made available by the provincial government for training bursaries for nurses was drastically reduced this year," Miss Kennedy explained, "although the amount of money available to the province from the National Health Training Grant program was not reduced."

The Registered Nurses' Association of B.C. and the B.C. Hospitals' Association will join in urging the provincial government to fully reinstate the National Health Training Grant assistance program in British Columbia, in view of the serious need for improving the qualifications of nurses in senior positions.

A delegation representing both groups will meet with B.C. government officials in an attempt to remedy the situation, Miss Kennedy said.

Two awards for master's program study were among the 21 bursary loans. Awards of $2,000 each were made to Miss Gertrude Lake of Burnaby, who is taking her degree at the University of Calfornia, and Mrs. Ethel Smith of Vancouver, who is studying at the University of British Columbia. Two Victoria nurses also received awards.

Miss Lake will take a master of science degree in psychiatric nursing and plans to teach psychiatric nursing or become a clinical specialist in this province.

Mrs. Smith is a 1956 graduate of Vancouver General Hospital and obtained her bachelor of science in nursing degree at UBC in 1957.

Miss Marilyn Baines and Mrs. Florence Lillico of Victoria were awarded bursary loans for baccalaureate study. Miss Baines will take her degree at the University of British Columbia. Mrs. Lillico will take her degree at the University of Victoria.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Tell Mom to Skip Surprise Trip

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I suppose you must get a lot of fake problems but this is the real McCoy.

I am a first lieutenant in an infantry outfit in Vietnam. I am due to go on R and R the end of this month, and planned to meet Judy, my fiancee, in Hawaii.

Tonight I received a letter from Judy telling me that my mother is planning to go to Hawaii and "surprise" me on my R and R. My mother and Judy are rather close, but I'm sure this wasn't Judy's idea.

Believe me, I love my mother, but I am 25 years old and Judy is 22 and the last thing I want right now is my mother on my R AND R (Rest and Recuperation) with me.

How do I tell her to stay home without hurting her feelings?

STARS AND STRIPER.

DEAR S AND S: If your mother and Judy are "rather close," your mother probably knows Judy is meeting you in Hawaii so Mother may think you need a chaperone. Unless you want to be the dummy in a three-handed honeymoon bridge game, better tell Mom you were "surprised" already to hear of her intended visit, so to please skip the trip.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are frantic and don't know where to turn. I'll get right to the point:

Last night I found a small corn cob pipe in my teen-age daughter's room. It had been "smoked" and still contained a small portion of something that looks like tobacco, and yet it isn't tobacco. We fear it's some kind of drug or dope.

When my husband confronted our daughter with this pipe, she said she didn't know what it contained—that a boy had given it to her. We don't believe her.

Where can we go to have the contents of this pipe analyzed without a lot of unpleasant publicity? If we discover it is dope, then what do we do?

DEAR FRANTIC: If there is no private chemical laboratory where you live, get in touch with your local police department and ask for their assistance. Do not disregard this because you fear "unpleasant publicity." If it's not serious, you've lost nothing. If it is, you had better put your daughter into the hands of a competent professional counsellor. The lines of communication between you and your daughter are obviously not open, and she desperately needs help.

DEAR ABBY: I was engaged to a wonderful boy. We were to be married in June. Five weeks before the wedding he was killed in Vietnam. What I want to know is, what should I do with my engagement ring?

I'd like to keep it because it's just about the only thing I have to remember him by. But since it is a family heirloom and there are younger boys in the family I thought maybe his parents would be expecting me to give it back.

I want to do what is best but I'm not sure what it would be.

TENNESSEE.

DEAR TENNESSEE: The best way to find out what his parents "expect" you to do is to ask them. But the ring belongs to you, and there is no reason why you should not keep it.

More Patients Survive As Lungs Strengthened

By KEN KELLY

MONTREAL (CP) — Patients with lungs damaged by diseases like emphysema are being taught to breathe with the unharmed parts of their lungs in oxygen-enriched atmospheres of special rooms.

A 17-per-cent higher survival rate in these patients was reported in a five-year study presented this week to the fifth international congress of physical medicine by Dr. Albert Haas of New York University.

Dr. Haas, director of the cardiopulmonary laboratory at the university's Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, said the researchers aren't sure whether the better survival picture really results from the learn-to-breathe program.

Nevertheless, when compared with control groups, the participants had a better survival record.

For four to six weeks, the patient with obstructive pulmonary diseas like emphysema or chronic bronchitis lives in a room where the oxygen content of the air is about double that of the outside world.

This helps break the breathing pattern of his outside life. His damaged lungs no longer gasp for air, triggering by the effort an increased need for still more air and finally putting a fatal strain on his heart.

His sence of panic gone, he takes physiotherapy and exercise in the oxygen-enriched room to learn what his damaged lungs will sustain without touching off the vicious breathing circle again.

EXCESS TISSUE

Lung tissue damage is irreversible but man has six times more than he needs to sustain normal life "so he may be able to adapt if there's no further tissue damage."

That means stopping cigarette smoking and activities that boost the breathing rate too greatly. But with will-power, "and the help of a nagging wife," a man can do it.

If the lung damage was caused by a progressive infection which can't be controlled, little can help him because finally the tissue damage outbalances what healthy tissue is left.

But for the substantial portion of the 13,000,000 Americans suffering from obstructive pulmonary conditions that are non-infectious, learning to breathe anew and adapt to the handicap may help them live longer.

Hemophiliac Pregnancy End Advised

MONTREAL (CP) — A Canadian Hemophilia Society committee would like to see laws enacted to end pregnancies which could lead to inherited hemophilia.

Mrs. Lois Bedard, chairman of the committee for birth control, abortion and sterilization, outlined the proposed brief Thursday at the last session of the Congress of the World Federation of Hemophilia.

"I now ask each province to present a brief to its executive and membership for discussion and ratification," said the Toronto teacher, "so that the 1969 annual meeting may come forward with a Canadian Hemophilia Society position on birth control, abortion and sterilization."

A hemophiliac is one who is lacking an essential blood-clotting factor. The condition causes the patient to bleed spontaneously and profusely at the slightest injury or even through emotional upsets.

Drug Use Alarms New Zealand

By EVELYN FALCONER

WELLINGTON (Reuters) — New Zealand has had a rude awakening from its belief that young persons were safe from the drug menace affecting other parts of the world.

A new report presented to Parliament by the health department expresses alarm at the growing illicit drug market and increasing drug addiction among young persons in New Zealand.

Warnins given by doctors and police in the lest two years were virtually ignored by the New Zealand public who believed "it can't happen here."

The report expressed concern at the number of burglaries from drug stores, doctors' cars and offices which resulted in drugs reaching the illicit market.

With the increase in burglaries there was a "concurrent increase" in persons aged 16 to 25 admitted to psychiatric hospitals suffering from drug addiction or after drug experimentation, the report said.

The health department suggested tougher security measures for storing narotic or depressant drugs.

CHARGES DOUBLE

At a recent press conference here, the national head of the Criminal Investigation Department, Chief Supt. R. Walton, said drug charges and the number of persons involved in them more than doubled in the first quarter of this year.

He said the increase in the proportion of young persons involved in drug use and possession is especially serious.

"Well over half of those appearing on drug charges are 21 and under. This is a new trend in the last 12 months."

However, "because the drug problem is only starting here compared with that prevailing in some other countries, we have a unique opportunity of stopping it," Walton said.

A special committee on drug dependency and abuse was set up earlier this year by the board of health at the suggestion of Health Minister Donald McKay.

CAR CHECK PURSUED BY POLICE

Twenty-one warning tickets were issued, six drivers were charged with minor offences and 48 cars were directed to the provincial government motor vehicle testing station for inspection.

Kidnap of Czech Girl Well-Planned

By KARL E. MEYER
The Washington Post

LONDON — The apparent abduction from Britain of a teen-age Czechoslovak girl may figure as a strange footnote to what may yet be seen as one of the most throroughly planned political blunders of the century.

The girl is Nada Bilak, 17, who until last Wednesday was one of 13 youngsters working in a youth camp in the serene lake country of Cumberland, England.

Nada's father is Vasil Bilak, chief of the Slovak Communist party and one of the leaders accused of being a collaborator with the Russians.

Nada learned of the Russian invasion last Wednesday morning and she was upset by the news. That same morning she was suddenly visited by a middle-aged man and a younger blonde woman, who both spoke English with an accent.

The visitors told Nada that her mother was ill and urged the girl to come to London to get news of her mother. Nada packed her things and was taken to the train by the mysterious couple.

Driving them to the station was Robert Taylor, a schoolteacher, the leader of international voluntary service work-team engaged in a flood-prevention project near Carlisle. Taylor described the couple as "completely charming." But another youngster also a Czech girl—noticed that they spoke Russian to Nada.

Nada has not been seen anywhere since.

Last Saturday, Nada's friends received a note from her written in English, which she hardly spoke, saying "I am all right." The letter was postmarked Notting Hill Gate in London, the area in which both the Russian and Czech embassies are located.

Nada's friends at the youth camp are hoping she is really all right. She is a dark-haired girl, about five foot five inches tall, and is described as extremely quiet and polite.

Weddings

Lougher-Goodey—Beaubien

At one o'clock on July 6th, in Ottawa, a marriage of interest took place between Miss Constance Fay Beaubien, daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Paul E. Beaubien, Ottawa, to Captain Mervyn Duke Lougher-Goodey, Corps of Royal Canadian Engineers, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Lougher-Goodey, Victoria.

The wedding was a contrast of the old and the new. The demure white three-layered sheer accordion pleated full length crepe dress, with its wrist-length sleeves was reminiscent of the early Victorian era, worn by the radiant bride as she entered the very modern twentieth century, "Resurrection Church" on her father's arm, to the strains of Handel's Wedding March. Lieutenant-Colonel Bineau officiated at the double-ring ceremony, which was conducted in French and English. The three solos sung were "O, Perfect Love," "O Vierge Marie," a beautiful French song, and "Wedding Prayer." The happy pair walked down the aisle after the service to "Trumpet Voluntary," by J. Clarke, made popular at Princess Margaret's wedding.

The maid of honor, Miss Elaine Ball of Montreal, daughter of Major-General Ball, stationed in West Germany, a close friend of the bride, wore a charming full length, slender empire waisted, two-toned sheath, sleeveless with cowel neckline, top of pale turquoise with matching scrolls of daisy-trimmed scalloped frills on the simple white skirt. Miss Denyse Lavalee, the bridesmaid from Montreal, a cousin of the bride, wore the identical dress but contrasted with pale yellow. The embroidered trim giving these dresses an old-fashioned charm to the otherwise stark modern line. They carried smaller versions of the bride's bouquet of white shasta daisies encircling a posy of yellow sweetheart roses.

The mother of the bride wore a silk coat and sleeveless dress in sapphire blue, with a matching organdy hat, her accessories were in white. The groom's mother chose a mint green brocade ensemble with tulle hat and satin shoes the same shade, with white accessories.

The best man was Captain K. P. Ambachtsheen. The ushers were Conrad Beaubien, brother of the bride, and Captain A. Vermeersch. The honor guard were as follows: Captain R. Beattie, Captain J. F. Lott, Captain N. Loveland, Captain R. Roclofen, Lieutenant T. McGinty and Lieutenant T. Williams.

A reception was held at the Bruce MacDonald Hotel. Toasts were proposed by Captain K. Ambachtsheen and Captain A. Vermeersch. Telegrams were received from the United Kingdom, Montreal, Victoria and Trail, B.C. Guests came from Toronto, Kingston, Montreal, Quebec and the Maritimes. Among the many guests were friends of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. I. B. Simpson and their daughter, Mrs. P. Paul, formerly of Victoria, and her husband; Miss A. Sudbury from England also attended.

Over fifty close friends and relations returned to the bride's home for buffet supper before the newlyweds returned to Montreal to fly to the Caribbean for their honeymoon. The bride's going-away outfit, was a white sleeveless linen dress with brown and white figured coat, a white straw Bretton hat edged with ribbon, toning with the coat. She wore white shoes and carried a white handbag.

On the eve of the wedding, the groom's parents entertained the rehearsal party at a private dinner in the Chateau Laurier.

Captain and Mrs. M. D. Lougher-Goodey now reside in West Germany.

Riggs—Ashbee

St. Barnabas Church, Victoria, was the scene of a pretty wedding on August 23rd, 1968, when Maureen Clarice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Ashbee of Saskatoon, Sask., exchanged vows with Mr. Robert Thomas Riggs, Jr., son of Captain and Mrs. Robert Riggs of Victoria. Canon Page officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was radiant in an Ilse of Victoria model gown of white crepe empire styled, with slight train and carried a bouquet of yellow roses and larkspur. Attendants Miss Norah Robertson, Mrs. Marilyn Pitman, and Miss Bonnie Riggs wore identical gowns of blue peau de-elegance complemented by bouquets of yellow and white daisies. Mr. Glen McConnell was best man, and ushers were Messrs. Alan Ashbee, and Kenneth Ashbee, brothers of the bride.

At the reception, held at The Inn, Cook St., Mr. George Hill proposed the toast to his niece. A telegram was read from the bride's maternal grandmother, Mrs. L. Phillips, England.

For her going away outfit the bride chose a green and white check suit with forest green hat and patent leather accessories. Before leaving for a honeymoon trip to Seattle, the new Mrs. Riggs presented her bouquet to her paternal grandmother, Mrs. H. Ashbee of Victoria.

Out of town guests included Mr. A. T. Byrne, Mrs. R. G. Sullivan, Miss Lynda Sadler, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. K. Phillips, Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. L. Novits, Courtenay.

Madu—Duncan

Baskets of white chrysanthemums and yellow gladioli decorated St. Luke's Anglican Church for the double-ring ceremony of Margaret Isabelle, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Duncan, of Victoria, and Mr. Arthur Neil Madu, second son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Madu of Salmon Arm, B.C. Doctor Kenneth King officiated at the afternoon ceremony on Saturday, August 24th, 1968.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was lovely in a floor-length gown of Swiss cotton brocade with small satin bows at hemline of dress and sleeves. She wore a gold locket, gift of the groom, and carried her mother's prayer book topped with yellow daisies and trailing stephanotis. The bouffant three-tier veil misted from a headpiece of pearls. Attendants Mrs. Joanne Williamson of Seattle, and Mrs. Irene Proulx of Victoria wore identical gowns of yellow floral chiffon with headpieces of yellow tulle and daisies. Robbie Duncan, small brother of the bride acted as ringbearer. Best man was Mr. Gordon Sorenson and ushers were Messrs. Bruce Madu and Craig Duncan.

Mr. E. Brynelsen, North Vancouver proposed the toast at the reception following at the Royal Victoria Yacht Club. The young couple left for a honeymoon trip up Island and afterwards will reside in Vancouver, both being enrolled as students at UBC.

Zalite—Revfem

A lovely wedding was solemnized between Randi Ann Revfem, daughter of Captain and Mrs. Erik Revfem, and Lieutenant Peter Roman Zalite, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Zalite of New York, at St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, on Friday, August 16, 1968.

Reverend J. A. Robertson performed the marriage ceremony and later at the reception at the bride's parent's home, 3320 Upper Terrace, proposed the toast to the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, chose a floor-length gown of white silk. She was attended by Mrs. Caroline Spotswood and Mrs. Pam Webber. Best man was Lieutenant Erik Revfem, brother of the bride. Lieutenant M. Spotswood was usher.

The bridal couple left for Halifax, N.S., where they will make their new home.

Vincent—Herron

Reverend Robert Morris of First United Church officiated at a lovely ceremony on August 3rd, 1968, at 7:30 p.m. when Kathleen Ann, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick L. Herron, of Victoria, became the bride of Mr. Larry Leroy Vincent, only son of Mr. A. L. Vincent and Mrs. Florence Wallace, both of Victoria.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was radiant in a floor-length gown of white satin accented at sleeves and bodice with a heavy lace border. Matching lace trimmed the train, which fell from the over-top in soft folds. Her chapel-length veil was caught into a dainty arrangement of lace, seed pearls and crystal droplets. A bouquet of bronze dahlias and ivy tendrils provided a rich color accent.

The bride was attended by Mrs. Bill Wellburn as Matron of Honor, and Misses Donna Moore and Lynda Vincent as bridesmaids. They were attired in identical floor-length gowns of aqua satin fashioned in a semi-fitted "A" line style and carried bouquets of bronze dahlias and wicker bells.

The mother of the bride wore a lovely off-white and beige ensemble consisting of a slim sheath dress in brocade with a matching coat. She wore white accessories and a corsage of yellow roses to complete her ensemble. The mother of the groom chose an ensemble in silver and white with matching blue accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds.

Mr. Terry Duncan was best man.

A reception was held at the Holyrood House were Mr. Dell Pettinger gave a toast to the bride. From here the happy couple embarked on a motor trip through B.C. and Alberta. For her going-away outfit the bride chose a walking suit in turquoise and lime tones with bronze accessories.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. Ekstrom, Mr. and Mrs. A. LeBranch, Mr. and Mrs. T. Herron and daugher Kathy, Mrs. Bill Herron and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Thom, Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Morley, Mrs. F. Howe, Mr. Lorne Erickson, Mr. and Mrs. Doug Morris and Mr. Terry Duncan.

Jenia—Campbell

A pretty wedding took place July 27th, 1968, at noon, at St. John's Catholic Church, Virginia, Minnesota, when Father Stephen Toporowizc united in marriage Margaret Ann Campbell, daughter of Mrs. W. A. Campbell, formerly of Virginia, now of 2987 Green Road, Duncan, B.C., and the late Mr. W. A. Campbell, to Mr. Frank Daniel Jenia, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Jenia of 215 First Street North, Virginia.

The bride, given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Arnold Montgomery, Winnipeg, Man., chose a ballerina length gown of silk organza and chantilly lace and a shoulder length veil. Miss Rachel Jenia, sister of the groom, was maid of honor. Mr. Hugo Mariucci was best man.

After the ceremony, a reception for 125 guests was held in the church parlors. The bride and groom left for a two-week honeymon trip to Vancouver Island. They are now making their home in St. Paul, Minnesota.

McGillivray—Baldwin

A pretty wedding was solemnized on August 17, 1968, at 7 p.m. in Our Lady of the Rosary Church, Langford, B.C. between Linda Margaret Baldwin, daughter of Mrs. Baldwin and the late Mr. B. R. Baldwin, and Mr. Angus Anthony McGillivray, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McGillivray. Father Dowd officiated.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Harry Baldwin, of 29 Palms, California, the bride was radiant in a traditional wedding gown of white nylon organza, appliqued in Valenciennes Lace. She carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses and stephanotis. The matron of honor, Mrs. Simon McKenzie, sister of the groom, was attired in turquoise peau de Shane. Miss Janice Stevenson, cousin of the bride was bridesmaid and her gown was of lemon yellow peau d' elegance. They carried Colonial bouquets of pink carnations and sweetheart roses. The flower girl was Miss Elizabeth Butterick, who had a floor-length gown of pink nylon-sparkle organza and carried a nosegay of deep pink rosebuds.

The groom was attended by his brother-in-law, Mr. Simon McKenzie, and guests were ushered by Mr. Michael Kinlan, nephew of the groom.

Mrs. B. R. Baldwin, mother of the bride, wore a dress and coat ensemble of willow green, with matching hat and shoes. Her corsage was of Talisman roses. Mrs. John McGillivray, mother of the groom, was gowned in Peacock blue brocade, with a corsage of white roses.

For going away the bride was attired in a dress and coat ensemble of white and coral linen. Her corsage was of white rosebuds.

The reception was held at 798 Goldstream Avenue, Langford, B.C., following which the bride and groom left for a trip to Las Vegas and other points in the Southern States. On their return they will reside in Victoria.

Fawcett—Bastin

Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey Bastin of Metchosin are pleased to announce the marriage of their daughter Sydney Frances to Mr Stephen Philip Fawcett of Victoria, on August 29, 1968. Reverend Leonard Simcoe officiated at the ceremony.

Quayle—Oldnall

MacDonald—Mather

A double ring ceremony was solemnized on August 21st, 1968, at 7:30 p.m., in the Wilkinson Road United Church when Reverend E. W. MacGurrie united in marriage Winifred Ann, daughter of Mrs. A. K. Mather and the late Mr. Mather, to Mr. Neil Robert MacDonald, son of Captain and Mrs. R. G. MacDonald.

Given in marriage by her brother, Jack Mather, the bride chose a floor length Empire sheath of peau de-elegance over which she wore a alencon lace cathedral coat with yolked back and full train and featuring lily-point sleeves. Her Chapel length veil was held in place with a dainty headpiece of organza roses and pearls. She carried a horse-shoe shaped bouquet of yellow rosebuds, lily of the valley and stephanotis. The bride's only attendant Miss Arlene Pearce wore a floor length sheath of pale yellow peau d' elegance enhanced by a short lace top and full length chiffon panels flowing from the shoulders, complemented by a pearl tiara. She carried a Cascade bouquet of white daisies with yellow centres. Best man was Mr. Grant MacDonald, North Vancouver, brother of the groom. Mr. Roy Passmore and Mr. Stephen MacDonald ushered the guests.

The reception was held at Surfside 62. Mr. S. H. Walt proposed the toast to the bride. The cake was cut with a mother-of-pearl-handled silver knife which had belonged to the bride's maternal great grandmother.

For her going away outfit the bride chose a yellow wool dress topped with a short military jacket trimmed with navy blue, complemented with navy accessories. After a honeymoon in the interior of B.C., the happy couple will reside in Calgary, Alberta.

Out of town guests included the groom's grandparents Captain and Mrs. M. F. MacDonald, Burnaby, Mr. and Mrs. I. A. MacDonald and family, Langley; Mr. and Mrs. H. McCondach and Kim, North Vancouver; Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Little and family, Richmond; Mr. and Mrs. C. F. MacDonald and family, Lake Cowichan, Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Ward and Miss Joan Ward, Mill Bay.

Proulx—Palmer

Given in marriage by Mr. Jim Bolding, the bride was radiant in a floor length gown of white satin and guipure lace; the floral headpiece held a three tiered veil of illusion net. She carried a Colonial bouquet of Talisman roses set in gladiolus with ivy tendrils. The maid of honor Miss Dianne McMaster and bridesmaid Miss Donna Proulx wore identical gowns of orange peau d' elegance. Their headpieces were orange peau d'elegance roses and they carried Colonial bouquets with peau d'elegance rosettes. The flower girls, Miss Lisa Le Brun and Miss Laurie Good, wore orange print dresses and carried baskets of flowers.

Best man was Mr. Andy LeBrun and Mr. Bob Palmer ushered guests.

A reception followed at Bonsor Recreation Centre, Burnaby. The three-tiered wedding cake was made and decorated by the bride's mother. Mr. G. Bishop proposed a toast to the bride. After the reception the happy couple left for a motor trip to Banff, Alberta.

Dusseldorp—Casilio

A small family wedding took place in Victoria at 3:30 p.m. on August 23, 1968, when Carol Anne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. V. Casilio, 3404 Cedar Hill Road, Victoria, was united in marriage with Mr. Guido Johannes, son of Mr. Karel Dusseldorp of Brussels, Belgium, and Mrs. A. Dusseldorp of Melbourne, Australia. Following the ceremony a wedding dinner was held at Executive House followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents. The bride wore a short brown dress of georgette trimmed with velvet and a wide brimmed velvet hat in burnt orange. She carried an arm bouquet of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums. Her only jewelry was an heirloom pendant of garnets given to her by her maternal grandmother. Mr. and Mrs. Dusseldorp will make their home in Vancouver, B.C.

8 CARD OF THANKS

W. E. Ferriday and Family, 1323 Harrison St., wishes to express our sincere thanks to the many friends, neighbours and relatives for their kind expression of sympathy in the loss of our dear beloved sister, Mrs. Edith Rimmer. Special thanks to Dr. J. F. Higgins and Dr. C. B. Henderson, also the staff and nurses at the Jubilee and St. Joseph's Hospital and pallbearers. Thanks to McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel.

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbours to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our husband and father, Reginald A. Clarke. We especially thank the nurses and staff of the Veterans Hospital and members of the Royal Canadian Legion, Britannia Branch.—Mrs. E. Clarke and family.

We wish to think all the friends who have sent messages of condolence and for the many kindnesses following the loss of a beloved husband and father, George Conrad, also the pallbearers, Mr. W. Lucas, Mr. L. Sigurdson, Mr. T. Arason, Mr. P. Doran, Mr. R. Knight, and Mr. K. Clarke, and our Minister, Rev. C. E. Lonsdale, organist, Mrs. S. Eirikson and the choir and all who helped us through a sad time. —Mrs. Myrtle Conrad and family.

The gratitude in our hearts can never be fully expressed, but we want our friends, relatives and neighbors to know how much their kind words and expressions of sympathy have meant to us during our recent time of sorrow in the sad loss of our dear little son. Special thanks to Rev. Leighton Streight and McCall Bros. Funeral Chapel.—Mr. and Mrs. E. Knapp and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FULTON — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Agnes Maud Fulton, who passed away Sept. 2, 1957.

Deep in the heart lies a picture
Of a loved one laid to rest;
In memory's frame we shall keep it
Because she was one of the best.

—Ever remembered, husband Jim, son Charles, daughters Dorothy, Phyllis and Irene, and grandchildren.

CROFT — In living memory of a dear mother, Elizabeth Maud Croft, who passed away Sept. 1st, 1967.

DEAR MOTHER, we miss your sweet smiles and cheerie words. —Sadly missed by your loving daughter Helen and sons Goldie and Blake Croft and brothers Ben and Arthur Golding and in-laws.

BRIDGE LESSON

By OSWALD and JAMES JACOBY
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Our old friend Vic Gaudette of Springfield, Mass., is back at the card table after a year off due to illness.

Vic sends us this hand from the New England Spring Regionals. He says that most pairs failed to reach the laydown spade slam and wonders how it should be bid.

His own suggested bidding is shown in the box and has considerable merit. North has 19 high card points, but, more important, they are almost all in aces and kings so he bid a trifle stronger than he would with a collection of queens and jacks and the same total.

South merely bid three no-trump at his second turn but was encouraged to go into Blackwood when North showed spade support.

Some of our modern bidders would get to the slam by a simpler line. North would bid four spades instead of three clubs to show a very big hand with no singleton. South would decide that his kings would now be of great value and move right into Blackwood.

This same set of modern bidders would not be able to try three clubs with the North hand because that bid followed by a spade raise would guarantee a singleton heart.

An even simpler way to get to slam would be to go back to 1931 Culbertson. North would open two no-trump with his five honor tricks plus a jack. South would bid three spades and jump to six after his partner raised him to four.

Strangely enough, an expert would worry about the play. There are no problems the way the cards lie but experts worry as a matter of habit. Probably the line adopted would be to lead a heart from dummy at trick two and assuming West ducked, to return a heart. This would allow two heart ruffs if necessary.

WONDERFUL WORKING CONDITIONS FOR MAN AND WIFE
IN FAST-GROWING AREA
Exciting Business

This is one of Victoria's cleanest retail outlets. Just over three years old. It is in a very distinctive shopping centre. With good management, it is possible to make about $9-$10,000 this year in profit and wages with one partner only working full time. Hours are from 9-6 p.m. daily and Friday til 9 p.m. Closed Sundays and holidays. It is just like operating a nice drug store but without a dispensary. The volume is growing about 20 per cent a year but expenses remain very constant. All the growing pains are gone!! The owners reluctantly must go to their family in Vancouver. Asking only $9,500 for business and fixtures on an audited statement plus stock of about $21,000. We will gladly arrange the trade of any property or business you may wish to use for dollars. Call CROWN and ask for F. WILLS, Crown Realty, G. D. Peaker Holdings Ltd., 1405 Douglas St.

A KING'S RANSOM Worth Every Penny

You will agree with this gorgeous 3 or 4-bedroom, 1600 sq. ft. gem. Did you say 1600 sq. ft.? THAT'S RIGHT, 1600 sq. ft. and different too. BRIGHT, roomy dining room with sliding glass doors to one of two sundecks. DE LUXE kitchen with built-in oven and range, cupboards galore, lots of extras, doorway to other sundeck. GRACIOUS living room, wall-to-wall carpet, more sliding glass doors to the huge sundeck. 2 bathrooms on main and third in full high basement with 4th bedroom or den with fireplace. All kinds of room for development. I should mention that the upstairs is so planned that there is a dandy in-law suite layout with separate entrance. Now surround this immaculate home with circular drive, almost a ½ acre of parklike grounds, room for boats, trailers etc. and you won't believe the asking price is only $33,500. Clear title so we can really offer terms to suit, also QUICK POSSESSION. Call 385-8731 and HURRY.

BRENTWOOD
BEAUTIFUL SEAVIEW
$32,500

This is a home to suit the most discriminating purchaser. From the delightful entrance hall with its slate floor through the comfortable living room with its outlook towards Brentwood Bay, into the dining room with sliding doors to a secluded large sundeck, into a modern bright kitchen with built-in oven and top, to the utility room with dryer and automatic washing facilities, then to the two large bedrooms with more than ample cupboard space, and finally to the vanity bathroom with sliding door on bath. This home simply sparkles and beautiful wall to wall carpeting enhances the main floor. You'll simply love the exciting large, large rec. room with view, the third bedroom or den and the professional dark room with sink and the vanity sink in the downstairs area.

ALL THIS WITH A DOUBLE CARPORT. SORRY, I NEARLY FORGOT THE EXTRA LOT 75x140 WHICH MAY BE PURCHASED SEPARATELY WITH SALE OF HOUSE.

10 MILE POINT
UNUSUAL—ATTRACTIVE

This attractive home built with a high regard for Japanese architecture also uses the best functionalism of Western architecture to produce better living because — it is located in the 2nd best area (Uplands is first) — the lot is large 74x220 — it's treed, offering you a natural park of your own. The privacy extends also to the home. The living room is peninsular with a separate entrance (howmany times have you crossed through a living a room or dining room to get to another room — A living area should not serve as a passageway. Between the living room and the large dining room is a fine standing stone fireplace — serving both rooms and it soars to the full height of the open beamed roof. The wall between the dining room and kitchen is translucent and has a Japanese design. The lighting from either room through the panelling adds a most interesting feature to these rooms. The kitchen has black walnut cabinets that only Tech Designed Homes would produce. This is a room that most ladies will not be able to resist. The bedrooms are large, 2 have feature walls and special lighting and there are two full bathrooms. In addition there is a large rumpus room finished in yellow cedar with a floor to ceiling fireplace. There are many more features. The price is $39,500 and there is a 8½ per cent mortgage available. Before the Magistrate

A 19-year-old youth who took a pair of pants from a store without paying for them Aug. 22 was given a suspended sentence Friday.

David Petrie, 734 Lampson, was placed on a $250 one-year good behaviour bond.

At an earlier hearing court was told the accused put the pants on underneath his own in a change room at the store and left.

Fined Friday for careless driving were:

Patrick Hourigan, 23 Helmcken, accident on Hillside Aug. 2, $35; Frederick Stalker, 4262 Springridge, hit traffic sign on Admirals Aug. 6, $35.

R. F. Beadnell, 2031 Casa Marcia, was fined $10 Thursday when he pleaded guilty to a contravention of a city fire bylaw.

Court was told the accused, manager of a drive-in restaurant on Douglas Street, burned articles in an incinerator after sunset August 7. He told the magistrate he had a fire permit but had not read the fine print which said burning after sunset was not allowed.

Another man, James Boughey, 4067 Tracey, was fined $15 for burning in his home outdoors incinerator without a permit July 30.

Two men were given suspended sentences Thursday and placed on good behavior bonds on charges of theft.

Patrick Wilkinson, 5038 Rocky Point, earlier pleaded guilty to taking a floor jack worth $89 from an Esquimalt garage in March. He was ordered to post a $500 one-year bond.

Floyd Stanley, 1441 Gladstone, was placed on a six-month $250 bond. He had pleaded guilty to taking two $10 bills from a wallet handed to him in Beacon Hill Park by a man who had found it.

William Harvey, 18, of 427 Hillside, was committed Friday for trial on a charge of assaulting a police officer to resist his own arrest.

Harvey, who is represented by lawyer John Meyer, now faces a trial by a judge without a jury. Bail has been set at $500.

John Dowhy of Vancouver was jailed for 20 days Saturday when he pleaded guilty in central court to being impaired while having care and control of an auto.

Oak Bay police checked him early Saturday on Cadboro Bay Road. Dowhy admitted to a conviction for impaired driving May 30.

Charles Butt, 1020 Empress, was fined $400 and had his licence suspended after pleading guilty to impaired driving. He drove on the wrong side of Government early Saturday, forcing an oncoming police car to the side of the road.

Inquiry Set Into Drowning

DUNCAN—A coroner's inquiry is to be held into the drowning death of William George Elliott, 64.

His dead body was recovered from the Cowichan River Friday. He was a member of the Cowichan Indian Band.

He had been missing from his reserve home since early Wednesday morning when he left to go fishing.

DUNCAN — Mark Poulsen, 2, of Ladysmith, is in satisfactory condition in Cowichan District Hospital after suffering a skull fracture Friday.

Mark was playing at the side of the road near Riverside Farm when he was struck by a car being driven by Kanagawa Kurokawa of Duncan.

The car passed over the boy.

MAPLE BAY — The two-day Maple Bay Yacht Club regatta will wind up Sunday with a 15-mile race to Tent Island.

The winner will receive the George R. Pearkes Trophy from honorary club member Hunter Vogel.

Regatta chairman Mike Stone expects the Dragon class race to be a highlight of the weekend as one of the participating crews (skipper Steven Tupper, Vancouver; Tom Irwin, Maple Bay, and David Miller, Vancouver) will represent Canada during the October Olympics in Mexico.

DUNCAN — Several hundred spectators turned out to Cowichan Exhibition grounds Friday evening for the district's first cutting-horse contests.

Winner of the open and championship class was C. N. (Chunky) Woodward, owner o Dougla Lake cattle ranch.

He was riding last year's world champion cutting horse, Pepie San.

The next four places in the open event went to Art Graves on Zandy Zona; Tom Fox of Edmonton on India Rubber; Bob Grimshaw on Rock's Champ, and Dave Batty on Sanger Sal.

In the novice class the winner was Art Graves riding Velvet Boots.

Second place in the novice event went to Bob Grimshaw on Palone Dolcie.

A total of 17 riders took part and they put 70 head of cattle through their paces.

Show organizer Bob Batty praised the co-operation received from local farmers. He said, "Many cutting-horse shows have to be called off because the organizers can't get enough cattle but these local men gave us real co-operation. They gave us their own animals and borrowed off friends and neighbors."

He named Jack Lock, Ossie Doney, Matt Noble and Bob Bradshaw for helping in the supply of steers.

DUNCAN — Somenos Lake farm just north of here on the Trans Canada Highway has been plagued by thieves this summer but Thursday and Friday two of the culprits appeared in court.

James Russell Hoffman, 18, of Duncan, appeared Thursday and pleaded guilty to the possession of stolen property — five dozen cobs of corn.

He was fined $50.

In court Friday Charles Allen Hill, 22, of Old Koksilah Road, Duncan, pleaded guilty to a charge of attempted theft.

He was fined $200.

Hill was apprehended in one of the corn patches at the farm at 4.15 a.m. Friday and had a juvenile girl with him.

Farm owner Commander Guy Windeyer had kept an all-night vigil and when he saw Hill and the girl he telephoned Duncan RCMP.

Magistrate George Hallett, who presided at both cases, said this type of theft "is getting beyond a joke."

Forest fire hazards on Vancouver Island are expected to remain low to moderate over the Labor Day weekend, the provincial forest service reported today.

This week's rain, plus cool cloudy weather and heavy dew in some areas, have reduced hazards to a low, it said.

In it's weekly fire report, the service said 23 new fires were reported during the past seven days bringing to 53 the number burning in the province. Forty fires were extinquished in the seven-day period.

A total of $46,900 was spent on fire supression cost this week. The season total to date is $629,200 and the number of fires reported so far this year is 1,585.

Hardest hit this year has been the Kamloops district, which has experienced 766 fires.

At this time last year, 2,858 fires had been reported and supression costs totalled $4,655,880.

NORTH COWICHAN — Mayor Don Morton of North Cowichan said he had been approached by many local residents asking efforts be made to retain the daily Dayliner service on the E and N. He said the demand should be heeded.

He said that he agreed with Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell and Courtenay Mayor George Hobson that this one-trip-a-day passenger service should not be discontinued without much more investigation. "It would double its number of passengers per day if the route was reversed and people could get down to Victoria on it to do business and get back the same day.

At present, if up-Island folk want to do business in government or legal offices and they go down by train they have to stay over two nights in Victoria before they can get back again. No private enterprise that wished to stay in business would operate like this train is being operated, so we are left with the conclusion that the railway company is anxious to take it off."

* * *

NORTH COWICHAN — A Cobble Hill Ayrshire cow has the highest two-year-old record in Canada for the month of July Dougan's Jo-Boy Wendy, owned by Dougan Holdings, started her 305-day lactation at 2 years and 54 days, and completed it with 12,477 pounds of milk and 529 pounds of butterfat for a breed class average of 184 per cent for milk and 187 per cent for butterfat. This young cow was the daughter of Balme-Ayr Jo-Boy, a bull raised at Cobble Hill on the farm of John Balme, Lakeside Farm.

SECHELT (CP) — Skookum Cecil, the West Coast's runaway killer whale, seems to enjoy underwater waltz music — every time his would-be captors play it, he waltzes away through the waves.

Cecil, who escaped from a pen at Pender Harbor Monday, was still ploughing merrily through the briny deep Friday at Porpoise Bay, north of here, where his pursuers located him Thusdday.

Porpoise Bay is 30 miles north of Vancouver. A small fleet of fishing vessels has been trying to get nets over Cecil for for days, but no luck so far.

Curator Vince Penfold of Vancouver Public Aquarium which owns Cecil — if they even catch him again — tried mood music again Friday in an effort to lure the whale close to the boats.

"We tried taped whale noises, but they brought hardly any response," said Mr. Penfold. "Now we're trying ordinary music through an underwater speaker. It seems to be working better."

The curator said Cecil listens attentively, but keeps his distance.

"We're trying to woo him with food and sounds rather than annoy him," he said.

The whale chase continues.

Mayor Seeks Winter Works Alternative

Esquimalt Mayor Ray Bryant today demanded the federal government come out with an alternative to the cancelled winter works program.

"I had expected a reasonable alternative concurrent with the announcement of cancellation of the program," he said.

Mayor Bryant said the same officials who said at the Canadian Federation of Mayors convention that winter works could not go on indefinitely also said there would be an alternate plan put forward.

In addition to demands for clarification, Mayor Bryant said he intends to meet other mayors in the area as soon as possible.

Initial reaction to the cancellation announced Friday ranged from "wanderment" and alarm to shrugs and comments that it was not unexpected.

The lack of a winter works program is expected to effect some change in Esquimalt.

Mayor Bryant said; "Some projects which depended on winter works funds will have to be cancelled, but I cannot gauge the complete effect at this time."

Earlier, Victoria city manager Dennis Young had expressed the hope for an alternative from the federal government, but called the existing program a "costly and inefficient" way of spending public funds.

The Making of a Pearl

Pearls have long been one of the favorite souvenirs of Japan and quite naturally the area where cultured pearls were developed—and are still produced—has become popular among tourists to Japan.

Part of the thrill of going to the seaside village of Toba and Pearl Island a quarter of a mile offshore is the opportunity to watch amas—the girl pearl divers—demonstrate the harvesting of oysters from depths of five or six fathoms.

Most of the commercial pearl production is today centred around Ago Bay, about 15 miles south of Toba. At Pearl Island a workshop and museum have been set up where visitors may conveniently see the entire cultivation process as well as view the development of cultured pearls.

Toba is a short distance from Nagoya and Osaka in central Japan. Many of Japan Air Lines tours include a stop there. The JAL staff advises that one-day side trips from Osaka or Kyoto can be arranged easily if it is not already on the itinerary.

Three Irish Off-Season Packages

Irish International Airlines, in co-operation with Air Canada and selected Irish hotels and ground transportation services, is offering three special "off-season" package tour plans to the holidayer seeking a vacation at bargain prices.

Optional extras are offered under each plan.

One billed "Two Weeks in Ireland from $282," includes in the price air transportation from Montreal to Shannon and return, round-trip bus transfer between Shannon and Limerick, hotel accommodation with private bath for 13 nights (seven in Limerick and six in Dublin), a full breakfast each morning, round-trip standard-class rail transportation between Limerick and Dublin, half-day sightseeing tour of Dublin, a medieval banquet at 500-year-old Bunratty Castle near Limerick, and all hotel service charges and taxes.

ALTERNATIVES

The $282 tab, a group plan rate, is based on double occupancy in hotel rooms. Add $29 for single-room accommodation for the 13 nights.

If you would prefer to see less of Limerick and Dublin and more of other parts of Ireland, you are offered the alternative choice at additional cost of any one of four routings of the republic, taking in such places as Galway,-Cork, Killarney, Tralee, Kilkenny, Waterford, Sligo and Wexford.

The extra cost is for ground transportation: $25 for unlimited rail travel for two weeks, or $31 for unlimited rail and bus travel for the period.

For those who prefer to travel on their own and not with a group, there is an independent plan. The cost: $326 return out of Montreal, again on a two-to-a-room basis. This plan automatically includes standard class rail travel within the republic throughout the two weeks and the choice of staying in any or all of the cities listed under the optional extra-cost alternative in the group plan.

Group departure dates from Montreal are Oct. 5 and 12, March 13 and 31, and April 12. Those travelling independently may go and return on any Monday through Thursday between Oct. and April 30, 1969.

Travel in Canada—Booming

By The Canadian Press

The pattern of Canada's tourist business in year Expo-plus-one should surprise no one.

It is soaring in the Atlantic provinces. It is a record year so far in the west. In Ontario, business is up over 1967, and it is down within a 100-mile radius of Montreal.

As expected, the world's fair was a bonanza for Montreal during Centennial year, but the whole country has reaped the long-term benefit.

A Canadian Press Cross-Canada Survey shows that only Newfoundland, plagued by bad weather in early summer, has not shared in the country's good fortune.

George Fraser, deputy minister of tourist development for Prince Edward Island, says his province is having its "best tourist year ever—a real bumper year, considerably ahead of 1966, which was our best ever."

●

He reports ideal weather "has them staying longer and spending more," and that camping and trailer parks are "up, up, up." Visitors from Quebec, particularly, have increased, he says, because of advertising in both French and English.

Nova Scotia is having "a thundering good tourist season," even better than 1966, says Ron Kitley, tourist association directeor.

New Brunswick, with road traffic up 10 per cent over 1967, is becoming so popular with campers that a park official complains Fundy National Park is becoming "a big camp ground, and we don't want that."

More private parks are being built with government encouragement.

●

Why the increase on the east coast? A New Brunswick travel official summed it up:

"Expo hurt us last year. Man and his World doesn't seem to be hurting us."

Eastern Ontario, which shared Montreal's Centennial riches, also is tightening its belt this year, with sales figures as much as 25 per cent lower. But the rest of the province is back in business after a year in the doldrums. Even the eastern regions report brisker trade this year than in 1966.

Peter Klopchic, the tourism and informateion department's director of research, says hotels, lodges, cottages, cabins and other accommodation, including campsites, report bookings up 10 per cent or more over 1967.

"Only motels report fewer bookings," he says. "They were 75-per-cent full last July, and only 63-per-cent full in the same month this year.

"But this just shows what a good year motels had in Centennial year, when so many people were in Ontario just passing through on their way to Expo."

Mr. Klopchic says most regions of Ontario were hit by cool, wet weather in the early tourist months, "but from July bookings and predictions for August and the rest of our season should be our best ever."

What about Ontario's three biggest attractions? Niagara Falls reports fewer cars. Stratford businessmen say there are more visitors to the town's Shakespearean Festival. Victor Polley, Festival Theatre administrator, expects an audience of 350,000 this year, 25,000 more than in 1967.

And in Ottawa, Parliament Hill activity, usually a good gauge of visitor traffic, is down about 14 per cenet from 1967, but up 12 per cent over 1966. Changing-of-the-guard ceremonies are drawing 4,500 a day, down from 6,000 in 1967.

●

In the west, the Manitoba tourist department estimates a 20-per-cent increase over the 2,510,000 visitors last year, and a spokesman says visits are longer than the 1967 average of five days. "The camper-trailer trend is continuing to grow substantially."

In Saskatchewan, Roger Franklin, industry and commerce department consultant, reports bookings by both Canadian and American tourists are "way up," as are sales of camping equipment.

●

Alberta government officials say tourist traffic is about 14 per cent ahead of last year, when 3,00,000 tourists spent $65,000,000.

Calgary Stampede attendance was up seven per cent, and attendance is up in all provincial parks.

Vancouver is considered the barometer of tourist trade in British Columbia. Harold Merillees, general manager of the city's visitors' bureau, says tourists number about 14.5 per cent more than last year, but tourist spending is down because of a trend away from hotels to campers and trailers.

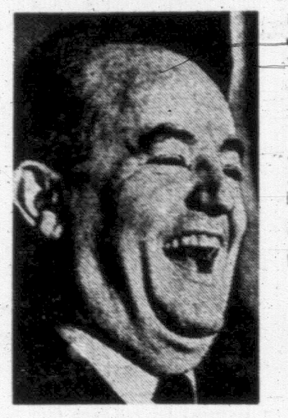
Dove in Hawk's Clothing

By AL FORREST



HUMPHREY
... out of LBJ's shadow

This week the 1969 model Hubert Humphrey was unveiled on our TV screens and President Johnson was no longer at the wheel.

"I am my own man," Humphrey declared between the lines of his acceptance speech.

"There's a new day and a new policy and that policy is law and order but it is also peace in Vietnam and equal justice for all citizens.

"In short, I'm a little bit of Nixon and a whole lot of Kennedy, McCarthy and McGovern."

It was — without a doubt — Hubert Humphrey the Third.

Hubert the First was a hotheaded idealist who pushed and prodded for civil rights long before it was politically expedient to do so.

Hubert the Second was known affectionately as Ol' Woodenhead or more bluntly ... Lyndon Johnson's puppet.

Humphrey was content to dangle because he needed Johnson's support to get the nomination but now has to repudiate Johnson to win in November.

●

As Humphrey himself tells the story: "As vice-president I was a member of a team. As president I will be captain of a team. There's a big difference."

Indeed there is.

And there's a startling differnce between Hubert the Second and Hubert the Third which can only be comprehended when one goes back to look at Hubert the First.

But right now the Kennedy clan and Sen. McCarthy don't want to look at Hubert the First or Hubert the Third.

They want Humphrey the puppet.

Sen. McCarthy and the late Sen. Robert Kennedy started their races for the White House by challenging Lyndon Johnson. It's Johnson they wanted to fight and Johnson they wanted to defeat ... completely and utterly.

When Lyndon quit they were disconsolate. He wasn't supposed to do that. He was supposed to stay there and be defeated like a man.

Johnson chuckled and called in Hubert to pinch hit.

But Johnson boxed Humphrey in by insisting that Hubert must not repudiate him or his policies.

McCarthy and the Kennedys then went to work to paste the "Made in Texas" label on Hubert and it was an onslaught as before.

Defeating Hubert would be defeating Lyndon, they argued. And so the attack continued.

It all ended abruptly when as assassin's bullet cut down Robert Kennedy.

Without him there was no way for the challengers to win. So the best they could hope for was to assure that Humphrey could not win either ... yes, in November as well as August.

This Week: Politics on TV

They succeeded admirably up to Wednesday night of this week.

All those people who weren't running this year were holding fast to principles — McCarthy, Johnson, Edward Kennedy, Sen. McGovern. Only Hubert, who had to face the reality of combat against Nixon, was working for a national consensus.

But squeezed, as he was, between the Doves and Lyndon Johnson there was just no way.

Until he GOT the nomination.

And then the squeeze ended.

Humphrey revealed that he was a Dove all the time and Johnson could lump it for all he cared now.

When Hubert said that on Thursday night, a lot of people got excited.

●

Sen. McGovern, who had said Thursday morning he would not support Humphrey, jumped up Thursday night and warmly shook his hand.

Far-out Dove Wayne Morse said he had been instantly converted to a Humphrey man and would campaign energetically for him.

McCarthy and Kennedy, who were not present, squirmed wherever they were. This is not to say that they are the villains of the piece. Far from it.

But it's a little annoying to discover too late that your second-worst enemy (after Johnson) is now your best friend.

Also it tends to fritz a lot of plans for that wonderful year 1972. And it was really the next election that many folks were fighting this summer.

But this is Humphrey's year, and if he can successfully pin the extremist label on Nixon, as he is desperately trying to do, and if he wins the endorsation of the Kennedy clan before November, he can still win despite the deep divisions within the party.

Hubert the Third has a 50-50 chance.

AT THE MOVIES

With NORMAN CRIBBENS

INSPECTOR CLOUSEAU

Amiable Comedy
Coronet Theatre

That very rare bird Inspector Clouseau was originally the centre of a comedy riot called The Pink Panther.

Peter Sellers played the inspector so successfully they made another film so he could play him again. And this gave us that delightful tale of crime in a nudist camp, Shot In The Dark.

Now we have the sequel to the sequel, Inspector Clouseau, but without the man who has identified himself with the part.

For some unstated reason, Alan Arkin has been substituted for Peter Sellers, and, while he is rich in talent, Arkin doesn't fit into the role as Sellers did.

So, where Pink Panther and Shot In The Dark were hilarious, Clousseau is mildly humorous most of the time with only a few really good belly laughs.

★ ★ ★

Arkin, of course, was tremendous in The Russians Are Coming, and he retains Clouseau's identity as the bumbling buffoon who captures criminals more by accident than design.

The character was created by Blake Edwards and Maurice Richlin, but this time the story has been written by Tom and Frank Waldman. It tells how Scotland Yard calls in Clouseau of the Paris Surete to track down a highly dangerous criminal gang.

Clouseau is soon outfitted with the very latest in crime-fighting equipment, such as inflatable underwear to prevent drowning and a cigarette containing a laser beam.

At a Scottish festival with police superintendent Frank Finlay and his portly wife, Beryl Reid (always delightful), Clouseau accidentally kills a member of the gang, and spends the rest of the evening fending off the amorous advances of Beryl.

The complexities and meanderings of the story line tend to limit the dramatic element, but it is often quite amusing and a fairly sharp pace is maintained.

Garden Club Planning Show

The Gordon Head Garden Club will hold its 14th annual fall show Sept. 7 from 2 p.m. to 9 p.m. in the Gordon Head Community Hall.

In addition to the display areas there will be a stall for sale of plants and garden implements.

Admission to the show is 25 cents for adults and children will be allowed in free. There will be a door prize awarded every hour during the show.

Blossoms Spotted, Streaked As Cool, Dull Days Arrive

By JACK BEASTALL

Jack

The cooler, duller weather of the past two weeks has resulted in certain conditions common to most gardens on southern Vancouver Island.

One concerns petunias. These plants are native to semi-tropical areas, revelling in sunshine and warmth.

Quite suddenly they have ceased making more blossoms, and blossoms that were already well developed have become spotted and streaked.

This is due to overcast skies, lower temperatures, and occasional sunshine striking flowers when raindrops are on the petals.

It is not caused by either disease or insects, therefore nothing is gained by applying poisonous sprays; in fact, sprays will do more damage than enough. Left alone, the plants will bloom normally as soon as the weather is suitable.

Tips for Home Gardeners

With both lower temperatures and lower light intensity, plants tend to make a lot of green growth, especially those in soils that have received applications of nitrogenous fertilizers.

The only way to stiffen and slow down this growth is to apply potash dissolved in water at the rate of one to two teaspoonsfu to the gallon.

Temperature and light are two important factors in plant growth, and the home gardner has to adjust his fertilizing program to conditions that prevail at any give time.

●

Years ago, before mixed fertilizers were on the market, the gardener purchased each chemical separately and learned to apply them according to the plants' needs.

While this is considered old fashioned by today's standards, there is no doubt that our parents had better results with their plants regardless of prevailing weather conditions, and less pest and disease troubles.

Today's trend is to save time and effort by piling fertilizer into soil before planting, and without regard to what type of plants may occupy the area. While it is the easy way, it also leads to a lot of troubles when weather decides not to follow a "normal" course.

Plant growth slows down in warm, dry weather, and it is then that nitrogenous fertilizers, judiciously applied, will be of benefit.

In cool, dull summer weather plant growth increases, even becomes excessive, and that is when fertilizers in general (aside from potash mentioned earlier) should be withheld.

These facts are worth remembering because one or the other has to be used every summer here on the coast.

Another condition brought about by summer rainfall on warm soil is the sudden appearance of Fairy-ring toadstools in lawns.

Toadstools are fungi, and warmth and moisture are ideal conditions for growth and spread of any fungus or fungous disease.

●

Before Fairy-ring can be controlled we need to understand its habits.

All fungi spread by means of fine white threads called mycelium (my-see'-lee-um). These are threads which the mildew fungus and Black-spot fungus put through tissues of leaves into the cells.

On the lawn, the mycelium of Fairy-ring extends for at least three feet beyond the circle of toadstools. This is important to note, because the ring of toadstools is the last phase of the fungous growth. Future trouble, the part that has to be controlled, is far beyond the toadstools.

This particular fungus is always present in the last stages of rotting wood. Its purpose is to carry out final conversion of wood to soil.

There we have the clue to the cause of Fairy-ring in a lawn—rotting wood beneath the turf.

This wood may be builder's debris, brush roots, or old roots of trees the gardener has cut down. Whatever the cause, the result is the same.

All this brings home the fact that we cannot be too careful in preparing a lawn area if we wish to keep out of trouble.

Going back to the mycelium or white threads. When these threads spread through the turf of a lawn they make the area of soil resistant to water—we might say it is "waterproofed."

Water applied on top will run off the area just as water runs off grease, and natural soil moisture from below is unable to rise to the surface in a normal way.

The result of this waterproofing is the brown patch of dead grass which always accompanies Fairy-ring.

The only controls are fungicides that are virulent poisons and must be handled with the greatest of care.

People, pets, and all living things must be kept off the treated areas.

Bulletins on these treatments are available from the Dept. of Plant Pathology, Douglas Bldg., Government St., Victoria—next to the new museum.

●

Aside from treatments, the home gardener can help conditions by spiking the affected areas, and three feet beyond, with a garden fork to allow air and moisture into the waterproofed soil.

Followed by light applications of complete lawn fertilizer well watered in, there is a good chance of decreasing the unsightly area of dead grass.

One warning—keep the fork tines clean because infested soil will spread the fungus to other areas of the lawn.

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q. Cucumber vines wilted and died or partially died, and those remaining are stunted, fruit small and crooked. Mrs. F.A.G., Cobble Hill.

A. There are several fungous "rots" which attack cucumber (and other vine crops) at soil level, but these are only encountered here in wet summer, or under wet soil conditions.

The old method of sowing the seed in "hills" (small areas of soil raised above the surrounding level) was designed to increase drainage and provide dry soil around the neck of each plant. You may be able to get bulletins on cucumber troubles from the B.C. Dept. of Agriculture, Douglas Bldg., Government St. Victoria, that will be of help for next year.

WEEK'S WORK

Plant crocuses, snowdrops, winter aconites, scillas and hyacinths. Use bonemeal in soil, and choose sunny spot sheltered from winter winds.

Start freesias in deep pots for winter bloom indoors.

Make last preparation by careful raking and levelling of lawn site for sowing next week.

Thin July sowing of carrots to two inches apart, and draw soil over crown to help prevent carrot rust fly infestation.

Begin collecting materials for big new compost heap. Layer cardboard cartons and newspapers thinly with all kinds of discarded garden refuse. Dampen layers and sprinkle with complete fertilizer and lime alternately.

Long blooming annuals like snapdragons, larkspur, zinnias, tall marigolds and asters should have faded flower stems cut off promptly, down to next lowest side growths or to a new flower stem.

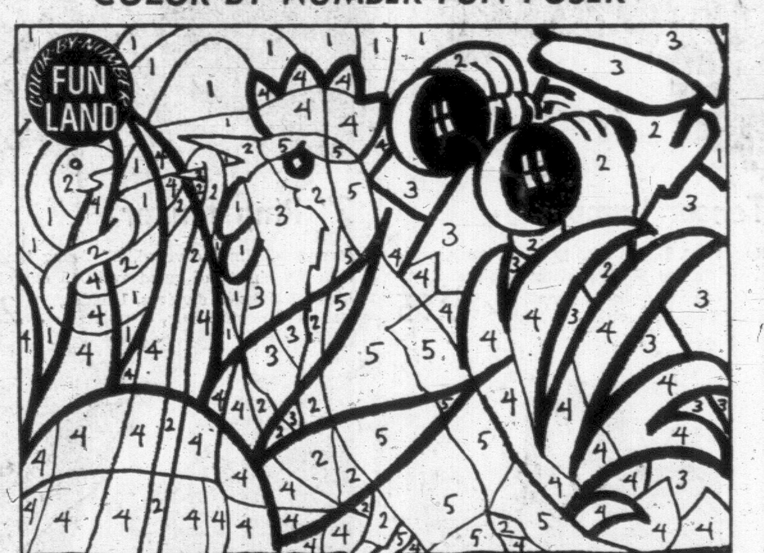
COLOR BY NUMBER FUN POSER



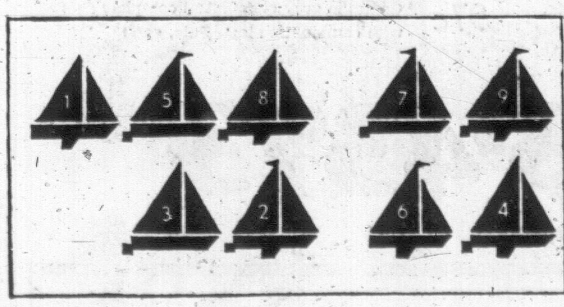
Reports have it that a certain fine-feathered creature has been sighted in Color-by-number Fun Land and the local bird-watching society is out in force. Keep this under your hat, but the creature is not a chicken as a quick view of the scene above might suggest.) What bird can it be? To find out simply apply crayons or colored pencils to the scene above according to these number indicators: 1 - Blue. 2 - Tan, 3 - Red. 4 - Green, 5 - Brown.

As for a clue to the mysterious visitor's identity: It is a common bird of North America; named by early settlers for a European relative.

After you've completed this coloring chore, you may wish to cut up the diagram for use as a jigsaw.

Answer: The bird is a robin.

SMART GALLERY



Nine sailboats are purposely arranged in two groups, above. If you multiply the numbers in each group—158 times 32, and 79 times 64—you'll discover they total the same. Now, for some mathematical juggling. How is it possible to rearrange the same group of boats (in other words, the same nine digits) so that separate multiplications will produce an equal product of a lesser amount? And, in another reshuffling, attain an equal product of a larger amount?

As you have undoubtedly noticed, not all of the sailboats are precisely alike. At a glance, see if you find two that are.

Answers: A smaller produce—38 times 158 and 46 times 79. A larger product—32 times 174 and 58 times 96. Twins are eight and four.

STRETCHING THE DEBT LIMIT

Here is a poser that crops up periodically in new trappings. Let's see if you recognize it in these:

"I had a strange experience the other day," said Mr. Gee Whiz. "I discovered a $10 bill in an old suit and decided to use it to pay my debts. This is the way I paid out of the money I owed to four of my friends":

Paid Tom $4 — held $6 change
Paid Ben $2 — held $4 change
Paid Tim $3 — held $1 change
Paid Mal $1 — held $0 change
Totals: $10 Paid — held $11 change.

"Maybe finding that $10 bill went to my head. But try as I could, I was unable to account for that extra dollar in change." Can you?

Answer: Mr. Gee Whizz rushed to a false conclusion in thinking that the money he spent must equal his change. Suppose he had paid the $10 to the first man and had received no change. Would $10 then equal $0? Obviously not.

LISTEN WORLD

Phrases now in common speech testify how widely persons have listened to, and perhaps been influenced by, certain men and women. Can you supply what's omitted here in a quotation from the past?

"That which makes the — of others unbearable to us is that which wounds our own." —La Rochefoucald, Maximes.

What six-letter word is missing? P.S.: It's a synonym for conceit.

Answer: The missing word is "vanity."

FUZZY EYE-CUE TESTER

At the Police Academy, the instructor picked up a pointer and asked Officer Jones to read off six consecutive letters (all capitals) of the English alphabet from a wall chart at the front of the room.

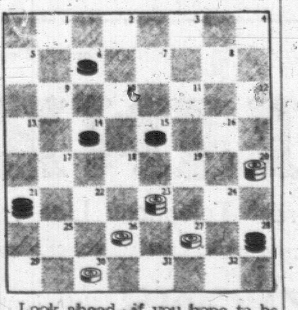
Officer Jones facing the rear of the room, gazed into a large mirror (simulating the rear-view mirror in squad cars), and answered the question directly. It so happened that the six consecutive letters looked in the mirror exactly as they did on the chart. what six different letters?

Answers: The letters T, U, V, W, X, Y, which appear the same in reverse. A, H, I, M and O, likewise read the same, but they are not consecutive.

TROOP CONCENTRATIONS

A funny thing happened to baseball star Homer Clout. Standing at the plate, he envisioned the oncoming ball as suspended in space with other baseballs clustered about it. How many balls, each of them touching the ball Homer saw, would be required to surround it?

Answer: A dozen. Six in a horizontal plane; three above, and three below.



Look ahead—if you hope to be proficient at checkers. How many moves ahead can you see in this game—three, four, five?

White side moving up the board, to move first and win in five turns is the challenge. Give it a try. Long-time checker king Millard Hopper provides the solution below.

Solution: White 30-25, Black 21-30, White 27-24, Black 28-19, White 23-16, Black 30-25, White 16-19, Black 23-16, White 20-11-18-9-2.

Politicians Argue Who Sits Where

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Liberals and Conservatives are jockeying over Commons seating in the new Parliament which opens Sept. 12.

Specifically, the two parties are fighting for possession of two front-row seats which both admit they do not need except for prestige purposes.

On Parliament Hill, there's nothing like status symbols to touch off a good political row.

Speaker Lucien Lamoureux may have to be called in to sort out this one.

There are 138 seats to the right of Mr. Speaker, the Commons position occupied by the government and its supporters.

There are 155 Liberals, meaning that 17 will have to sit in a rump immediately to the left of Mr. Speaker.

HELLYER
. . . on Trudeau's right

But the Liberals want a section of 22 seats, including four in the front row.

LOST BIG MEN

The Conservatives had 18 front-row seats in the last Parliament. Four front-benchers were beaten in the June 25 election and one retired. Gerald Baldwin, MP for Peace River, moves up to the front row as the new Conservative House leader.

This leaves the Conservatives occupying 14 front-row seats, the number so far assigned to them by the government.

The Conservatives concede that, in proportion to their Commons membership—72 against 95 in the last Parliament—14 front-row seats is fair.

But, one said: "How can we promote anybody to the front row? We can't move anybody back who was already in the front row."

The Liberals want 30 front-row seats, including the two in contention.

One Liberal said: "We have 155 members and the Conservatives have 72. Therefore we are entitled to more than twice as many front-row seats as the Conservatives — namely, 30."

STOP TALKING

The wrangle has reached the point where the two sides aren't talking to each other.

And it is holding up the printing of the seating arrangement for visitors to the public galleries. They're lost without a program.

Meantime, the Liberals have completed new setting arrangements for the cabinet in the section of the two front rows occupied by the treasury benches.

Robert Andras, minister without portfolio, makes one of the most spectacular leaps in status in recent years.

He goes from the fifth-row seat at the back of the chamber that he had in the last Parliament to the first row in the new Commons. He was first elected to Parliament only three years ago.

OTHERS PROMOTED

Others promoted to the front row are Trade Minister Pepin, Manpower Minister MacEachen, Finance Minister Benson, Energy Minister Greene, Northern Development Minister Chretien, Revenue Minister Cote and Fisheries Minister Davis, a cabinet newcomer like Mr. Andras.

Mr. Benson will sit on Prime Minister Trudeau's immediate left, Transport Minister Hellyer on his right.

The cabinet will take up 15 front-row seats and 13 in the second row.

Former prime minister Diefenbaker was considerably relieved to find that a rumor he would be seated beside Conservative Robert Thompson, former Social Credit leader, was unfounded.

The 21-member NDP group will sit to the left of the Conservatives and the 14 Creditistes to the left of the NDP.

The only independent in the Commons is Mr. Lamoureux.

Independents usually sit at the far end of the chamber but Mr. Lamoureux is expected to slip momentarily into an unoccupied Liberal seat before he is formally re-elected Speaker the morning of Sept. 12. The only seat he'll need after that will be the Speaker's throne.

Most Powerful Transformers Aim of Sweden

STOCKHOLM — Sweden will soon be able to build electric power transformers four times as powerful as anything in use in the world today.

Asea, the big Swedish-based electrical group, has announced a major expansion of its laboratories, factories and test rooms at Ludvika.

News Biased Against Socreds, Says Bennett

Premier Bennett Thursday said news media in Canada were conspiring to destroy his Social Credit government.

He charged at a press conference that they were "managing the news" to hurt his administration and help other political parties.

Mr. Bennett also claimed that Canadian news outlets favor the federal government but always attack his B.C. administration.

He did not name any targets of his criticism.

"The point I am making is that press services are managing the news," said the premier. "They always manage not to criticize the federal authorities but they find ways to criticize us."

Mr. Bennett cited the federal government's cancellation of a five-year school construction project in the Northwest Territories as a recent example of "managed news."

"We have hundreds of schools under construction in this province, while the federal government is stopping construction where it is badly needed—in the Northwest Territories," he said.

"B.C. is doing more for schools than any place in Canada, yet we get more criticism by the news services than any place in Canada. That is why I say we have managed news."

Premier Bennett was asked what he thought the motive might be for "news management."

"To try and build up other parties in this province and knock Social Credit, although recent surveys show the Social Credit government is stronger than ever provincially."

Mr. Bennett made the comments in a conference he called to disclose details of his upcoming trip to Europe. He leaves this weekend, will be gone for three weeks and plans to visit Britain, Holland, Austria, Spain and Portugal.

Russians Purge Czech Reformers

Invaders Tighten Grip on Country

Times News Services

PRAGUE — Liberals who controlled information, education and the secret police were reported on their way out today in a shuffle to make Czechoslovakia's Communist government more acceptable to Moscow.

Associated Press correspondent Carl Hartman reported that Soviet security men had moved behind the scenes to tighten the Russian grip on the country occupied 10 days ago by 350,000 Soviet-bloc troops.

Reuters correspondent Lionel Walsh said the Czechoslovak central committee scheduled a meeting today to elect a new 11-man presidium that would include pro-Soviet hard-liners.

Hartman wrote that the Russians were reported putting their own experts in all ministries and into the Czechoslovak Communist party's central committee building.

The Soviet press reported resistance to occupation troops in the countryside and said: "The struggle is far from being over."

(Meanwhile, in Moscow the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda called for the "liquidation" of resistance groups in Czechoslovakia, which are said to have more than 40,000 members.

("Liquidation" in Russia does not necessarily mean killing, though the world came to think of it this way during the Stalin era.

(As used by Pravda today, it apparently amounted to a demand to break up the resistance groups, without a clear indication of what punishment should be handed out to their members.

(In a report from Prague, Pravda said the Czechoslovak people's militia should give a rebuff "to the counter-revolutionary scum.")

The main figure reported on the way out in Premier Oldrich Cernik's government shuffle was Interior Minister Josef Pavel. Under him, the secret police had stayed in the background since Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek began in January leading the nation away from 20 years of Stalinist rule.

There were reports, but no official confirmation, that Pavel already had resigned.

Soviet soldiers guarded his ministry and he has not been in his office for 10 days, although he still attends cabinet meetings.

Information Minister Miroslav Galuska, Education Minister Vladimir Kadlec and Cestmir Cisar, the Communist party presidium member in charge of the press, also were reported likely to lose their jobs. Cisar has been in hiding.

There was some doubt whether Deputy Premier Ota Sik, Dubcek's planner of economic reforms, and Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek would return to Czechoslovakia from Yugoslavia. Both were abroad when the Soviet troops invaded.

The entry of Russian experts into key positions came despite the accord worked out in Moscow. That provided the occupation troops would leave Czechoslovakia when the situation "normalizes" and would not interfere in the country's internal affairs.

The Czechoslovak government has been going ahead with another part of the accord—reimposition of press censorship. The government said Friday night that censors will start work immediately on Czechoslovak newspapers and broadcasts.

Journalists and broadcasters have been operating clandestinely to put out uncensored news.

Dubcek, who has spent several days trying to convince his own progressive supporters to bow with him to the will of the Kremlin, was authoritatively reported to have called the old party central committee into session rather than the all-progressive one elected secretly last week.

PURGED COMMITTEE

During the first week of the Soviet invasion, a secret 14th party congress was held on a factory floor while Dubcek and other leaders were negotiating in Moscow for the withdrawal of Russian troops. This congress purged the central committee of all pro-Soviet hard-liners.

By calling the old central committee into session, Dubcek was seen as giving tacit acknowledgement to the Russian claim that the 14th congress purge was illegal.

Dubcek and his colleagues are convinced that only the return

Romania Invasion Feared

BUCHAREST (AP) — Western diplomats and Romanian travellers reported a growing number of Soviet and Bulgarian troops near Romania's borders Friday, rousing fears the Soviet Union might be planning another invasion of a Warsaw pact ally.

In San Antonio, Tex., President Johnson said in a speech there were rumors that the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia might be repeated elsewhere in Eastern Europe and a White House aide said such reports had created anxiety.

Johnson did not mention Romania by name, but reports of a threat to Bucharest, which defied the Soviet Union's campaign to silence Czechoslovak liberalism, have been coming in from many sources.

"We don't know what to make of it," said one Western diplomat. "It might be the real thing or it might be just another move in a war of nerves."

SEE RUSSIAN TROOPS

A group of Romanians returning from a visit to the Ukraine, said they had seen Soviet troops headed toward Romania.

"The roads leading up to the border were clogged with troops heading west," one traveller said.

Long columns of Soviet tanks and artillery were near the Prut River, which forms the border between Romania and the Soviet Union in the east, another said.

Other travellers who crossed into Romania at Albita, said Soviet armor, personnel carriers and guns were massed near the Ukrainian town of Kotovskoje.

Romanian government officials declined comment.

The Soviet press labelled the reports as "provocation".

PRECAUTIONS REMAIN

But Romanian military and internal security precautions, set up after the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria invaded Czechoslovakia Aug. 20, remain in effect.

Informed sources said the Romanian Army was on a state of semi-alert with all reserve officers and 60 per cent of other reserve personnel on active duty.

President Nicolae Ceausescu, in a speech at Cluj, repeated his call for an early withdrawal of Warsaw pact troops from Czechoslovakia.

Continuing his defiance of Moscow, he said: "The word freedom can be said in many languages, but it has the same meaning for all people. Equality among men, among nations. people must be able to be fully What is understood is that equal, have the right to express their opinion, be able to take part in the guiding of society in accordance with their capability and knowledge."

Soviet troops in the border area has been estimated at between 15 and 27 divisions of armor and motorized infantry.

Woman's Organs Dispersed

HOUSTON (UPI) Five Methodist hospital operating teams directed by Dr. Michael E. Debakey transplanted the heart and three other organs of a woman into four different recipients today in an unprecedented surgical project.

Her eye corneas were removed and placed in an eye bank for possible use later.

GUNSHOT WOUND

The donor of the heart, two kidneys and a lung was Mrs. Nelva Lou Hernandez, 20, who died of a gunshot wound in the head.

She was first treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and then was transferred to Methodist, where she died as doctors prepared the recipients.

- Her heart was given to William C. Carrol of Scottsdale, Ariz.
- Her lung was given to William J. Whaley, 39, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.
- One kidney was given to William C. Kaiser, 41, of Odessa, Tex. The other went to Thomas A. Stevenson, 22, of Houston.

The patients were reported in satisfactory condition.

The multiple transplants were parts of a program at Baylor University College of Medicine aimed at using as many donor organs as feasible.

The lung transplant was the first at Methodist, which is in the Texas Medical Centre, professional home also of Dr. Denton A. Cooley, the world's busiest and most successful heart transplant doctor.

Trudeau Sees More Cutbacks

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday there would be more spending cuts in government programs to help bring the budegt into balance and to liberate funds for new and more productive programe.

He had already announced that the government would drop the winter works program, introduced by the Diefenbaker government to reduce winter unemployment and continued from year to year under Prime Minister Pearson.

Thursday the government announced cancellation of the $22 million Queen Elizabeth observatory on Mount Kobau in B.C.

New cuts would come after cabinet approval, Mr. Trudeau said.

He gave no indication of the programs to be affected by further cuts but said they would be meant "to hurt some ministers and some departments."

Mr. Trudeau said this was necessary to make sure the cuts were not "just sham ones" and to convince ministers and their departments that new programs would be possible only if less productive ones were cut out.

"The purpose of them is to balance the budget as closely as we can this year," the prime minister said.

On other topics covered at his press conference Mr. Trudeau said:

Dates have been set, "not in the very distant future," for meetings with business and labor to discuss means of restraining wages and prices on which a government white paper is to be tabled at the coming session of Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau said that further consultations would come after the white paper.

Limited means of action, the prime minister said, made the problem very difficult for the federal government.

Dance Riot Injures 12 Policemen

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Twelve policemen were injured, one by a gunshot, some young people and two newsmen hurt, in a five-hour flareup of violence late Friday and early today.

The violence broke out at a "soul music" dance and spread to the city Negro district.

Eleven policeman and some young people were injured when youths hurled rocks and bottles at the police. None were reported seriously injured.

Police patrolman Arnold Westphal, 54, was taken to hospital where he was described in "good condition with a bullet wound in his left shoulder."

The troubles began in the downtown St. Paul City Auditorium.

WAVED PISTOL

Two off-duty patrolmen at the concert were informed that a youth was waving a pistol around in the men's washroom.

The officers found the youth and disarmed him. Several youths attempted to attack the officers, who held them off at gunpoint.

Patrolman Gen Gordon said at least "eight to 10 shots were fired at us."

Patrolman T. F. Owens said two newsmen were injured, not seriously.

DARING ISLAND HOLDUP NETS BANDITS $15,000

PORT McNEILL — Two armed holdup men are being sought in northern Vancouver Island after the wilderness holdup of a bank teller Friday.

The two men escaped with an estimated $15,000 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here, after overpowering a teller, RCMP said.

A search by the five-man Port Hardy detachment is being conducted by air, water and on the only road in the region.

The robbery was discovered about 3:15 p.m. when a passing driver found the teller, Gerald William Underdown, bound in the seat of his car.

Underdown was bound for the Kokish camp of the Crown Zellerback Company, on Beaver Cove, police said. The money was for a pay office run by the bank to cash month-end payroll cheques for camp employees.

Underdown was driving from the bank to the camp to open the office.

One of the holdup men flagged his car to a halt on the deserted road about six miles south of Port McNeill, sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. The second man appeared and Underdown was overpowered.

The men were armed with handguns, police said.

They drove the teller's car up the road — a private paved route which is the only main road in the area — and went up a sideroad.

Underdown was left tied up in his car while the two men made their escape. Police said they did not know if the escape was made by road — no car was seen.

An officer of the detachment said the men may have left the holdup scene "by car or by boat."

PATROL BOATS

Police said they were working on several possibilities as to where the two may have gone, but would release no further information.

The Port Hardy detachment is equipped with aircraft and three patrol boats. All will be used in the search.

Port McNeill is about 250 miles northwest of Victoria and accessible only by water or air. Port Hardy — the base for RCMP activities — is another 30 miles northwest. The holdup occurred about six miles southeast of Port McNeill.

Canadian Father of Five Awakes With New Heart

MONTREAL (CP) — Elie Zaor, Canada's newest heart transplant, was reported recuperating normally eight hours after receiving a new heart at the Montreal Heart Institute.

In a bulletin issued shortly after 10 a.m. today, an institute spokesman said the father of five had regained consciousness and that the transplanted heart "maintains, on its own, excellent blood pressure and circulation."

"Mr. Zaor's immediate post-operative evolution is satisfactory," a spokesman added.

Mr. Zaor, a 58-year-old native of Turkey and resident of Sherbrooke, Que., received his new heart Friday night from Aime Lamothe, 35, a welder from Sorel, Que., who died from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Pierre Grondin, head of the surgical team that performed all three heart transplants in Canada, said immediately after the operation that "the heart took over in a beautiful fashion."

Dr. Grondin told reporters Mr. Lamothe's hemorrhage was caused by "severe hyper-tension" that was "secondary" to a kidney ailment dating back several years.

Mr. Zaor had suffered three heart attacks—in 1947, 1955 and last Aug. 20.

Employed by Dominion Textiles in Sherbrooke, Mr. Zaor has been an invalid since May.

ARTERIES BLOCKED

"He is also suffering from a valvular disease," Dr. Paul David, the institute's executive director, said in announcing the start of the operation about 8 p.m. EDT.

"Two of his three coronary arteries are obstructed and the third is almost blocked."

The heart needed only one electrical shock to start beating on its own after it was inserted in Mr. Zaor's chest cavity about 11:07.

Recipes for bringing up children are a dime a dozen, but the other day I listened to a father who has evolved a new and interesting approach. I would like to introduce him, but to do so might spoil his foxy little racket.

"You know why so many young teen-agers run away from home?" he asked. Then he proceeded to answer his own question.

"Because they haven't got anything to rebel against, and that can be terribly frustrating to adolescents. They've been given everything they ask for, except maybe the feeling that their people don't care enough about them to tell them 'No' and make it stick."

He poured water into his coffee, which had come from the restaurant urn at a rolling boil.

"They have nothing to struggle against," he continued, "so they go adrift, and sometimes they run away."

And how do they handle matters in his home? He was prompt with his answer.

"We give them something solid to rebel against. Like piano lessons, and a firm no-smoking rule, and getting up early, and making their own beds.

"So when they reach the age of rebellion, they will have somthing to rebel against. It's a wonderful cathartic, and if more parents tried it, there'd be fewer runaways."

Interesting, yes. But I hope to talk with Papa X later, when his young have crossed over into adolescence, and his theory meets the test. If by then he can still speak with such positive conviction, I'll pay for the coffee!

Today I stand corrected, and with reason, by R. D. Blagrave of 1547 Mount Douglas Cross Road.

"Probably I'm too fussy about accuracy in the use of words," he writes, "but the phrase 'Pacific Northwest' (used recently in this column) puzzles me.

"I can understand the logic when applied to the states of Washington or Oregon by Americans . . . it is the northwest corner of the United States. But southwestern British Columbia is neither the northwest corner of the United States nor of the continent. Nevertheless, press, radio, television and publishers have unconsciously fallen into this error."

Precisionist Blagrave challenges us chaps of the media to "promote" a new catch-phrase to describe this lucky corner of the country," and I for one intend to oblige.

How about Southwest Bennettopia?

Note to Sally:

In this matter of school overcrowding, the blame lies squarely on a provincial government that boasts about its annual surplus and "tax-free" status, but has consistently short-changed B.C.-dwellers and their children where education is concerned.

I hope your resentment will carry over until you are of voting age, at which time you can plunk for a better deal.

Meanwhile, if your friend's principal is willing to take him back as a part-time student to complete his failed courses, encourage him to go ahead and do so. (If he's a loafer, he may be out of luck, and if 19 or over at the start of fall term, this will indeed cost him).

One of these weeks, drivers proceeding through Tweedy country along Oak Bay Avenue are going to be startled by two well-shined brass doors of handsome design and impressive size.

The butcher shop they will grace belongs to meat maestro Garth Graham, and the doors once added dignity to a public room of the old Hotel Vancouver. The pair, which weigh 700 pounds each, lay in storage for years across the water before Mr. Graham happened on them and promptly bought them for his new establishment.

That's it, and now, for a couple of weeks, goodbye. Fishes, have at you!

Ripping Good Time At Zoo

By DON VIPOND

Moral of this story is — monkey around and you can lose your shirt.

For the better part of an hour recently the truth of it kept a crowd at Rudy's Zoo on Durrance Road convulsed.

Victim was Hilton Doucette, a visitor from Newfoundland. Villains were chimps Jill and her baby. The prize — Mr. Doucettes' shirt.

It was Jill who reached through the bars to snatch the shirt draped over the victim's arm. The entertainment warmed up as she and her baby raced about in a game of tag, then took to expertly modelling the shirt.

"Ha, ha," said Mr. Doucette, joining manfully with the crowd.

He crossed the safety fence to the cage and Jill immediately offered the shirt through the grill. He reached for it and Jill quickly pulled it back.

"Ha ha," said Mr. Doucette but it was lost in the howls of the audience.

Three times Jill led him to different corners of the cage using the shirt as bait. Each time as he lunged it was snapped away at the last second.

"Give me back my shirt."

That kind of a bellow can be heard even over a chorus of laughter.

When Jill hung the shirt out next time, Mr. Doucette wasn't about to be fooled again. So the wily chimp left it there and climbed the cage above it.

Seeing his chance, the victim lunged. But Jill's feet are really just another pair of hands. One of them flicked the shirt out of reach.

"You damn stupid ape!"

• • •

Belly laughs from about 75 people by now couldn't drown that cry of exasperation.

In time the inevitable happened. Victim and villain each got a grip on the shirt.

Rrrrrriiiipppp!

Jill tried on her half, curled a lip in disgust and tossed it through the bars.

Along came zookeeper Rudy Bauersachs to console the baffled victim and present Jill with a cigarette for her fine performance.

Jill likes the last move in any argument. She took a long, long drag, curled up her massive lips and blew a barrelful of smoke right in Mr. Doucette's face.

Turner Backers Awaiting Signal

By JOHN MIKA

Justice Minister John Turner reaches his Rubicon Monday evening when he attends a Liberal reception in the Hotel Vancouver.

That's when he'll have to show by word or deed whether he'll cross the bridge into provincial politics.

A "draft Turner" movement is ready to go if he agrees to become available for the B.C. Liberal leadership race in Penticton in October.

Preparations for the move by his friends include a couple of public opinion polls which some insiders have indicated show B.C. is ready for a major improvement of Liberal strength.

That indication is reported to be so strong that it inevitably would tempt a young and dynamic man as Mr. Turner is described by his enthusiasts.

But there also are negative results produced by the private polls from the viewpoint of the group wishing to start the draft movement.

It has been suggested that the prospects of the party have been painted in such rosy colors by the survey that the feeling is hardening for a home-grown efforts to capture the expected gains.

That may have been behind the announcement by Barrie Clark, MLA for North Vancouver-Seymour, that he endorses the only declared candidate — Dr. Pat McGeer, MLA for Vancouver-Point Grey.

'OBVIOUS CHOICE'

"There are some who are saying we should have a large number of candidates vying for the office of party leader," Mr. Clark announced, perhaps significantly using provincial Liberal party stationery.

"As far as I am concerned, when there is an obvious choice I do not find it necessary to seek alternatives," he said.

There also is a rumor spreading among party workers that "certain quarters in Ottawa, including Prime Minister Trudeau" frown on the idea of Mr. Turner resigning from the federal cabinet to try his hand in B.C.

And departing Liberal leader Ray Perrault — who was studiously overlooked in this week's appointments of parliamentary secretaries to cabinet ministers — could be expected to redouble his support of Mr. McGeer against a federal cabinet minister.

AT BAR MEETING

Prime Minister Trudeau and Mr. Turner will both be in Vancouver for the Canadian Bar Association's annual convention opening Tuesday.

Both will be in Vancouver Monday attending receptions and it is certain they'll be closely watched by Liberals for some sign of Mr. Turner's probable future.

Student Didn't Appeal Ruling Of Faculty

Uvic student John Thomas who won a scholarship for his first-year studies last year, was barred from returning to the university as a disciplinary measure, registrar Ron Ferry said Friday.

Mr. Ferry was commenting on the Thomas case as detailed by columnist Arthur Mayse in Friday's Times.

The suspension is for a year only and could have been appealed, said the registrar.

In his column Mr. Mayse reported Thomas, 23, told him he had registered as a new student a year ago, ashamed to report the failure of two previous years at Uvic in 1963-64 and 1964-65.

The university's calendar, which lists information about the university and is widely available publically, says in a section under 'unsatisfactory standing':

NO CREDITS

"A student who, in the course of his academic career, recieves no credit in any two academic years, whether they be consecutive or not, will normally be required to withdraw permanently . . ."

Mr. Thomas said today he knew of that rule when he registered as a new student a year ago but understood he could return to the university after his failure following an absence of a year or two.

The one-year suspension from the regular university session levied against Thomas was a move taken by the faculty council with powers it has under the Universities Act, said Mr. Ferry, who is also secretary of the council.

The decision was made last February and Mr. Thomas was notified then, he added. It could have been appealed to the senate.

Permit Value 'Doubles'

Victoria building permits issued in August nearly doubled the value of permits issued in the same month last year.

The total is $1.86 million compared with $948,998 a year ago.

Despite the dollar increase, the number of permits issued dropped from 581 to 529 for the month.

At the end of the first eight months of 1968, 4,238 permits worth $16.33 million have been issued.

Included are permits for 57 single-family dwellings, six duplexes, 22 multiple dwellings and three hotel or motel constructions.

To date, no permits have been issued for schools or churches.

Some 679 permits, valued at $673,338, have been issued for alterations or repairs to residential buildings.

Man Drank Gas Instead of Wine

A 47-year-old Saanich man was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital Friday night when he drank some gasoline, mistaking it for wine.

A hospital spokesman said today the man was in satisfactory condition.

Loffmark Statements 'Just Half-Truths'

Saanich Mayor Hugh Curtis said today B.C. Health Minister Ralph Loffmark is stating half-truths about the Sept. 28 sewer consolidation referendum.

"For a minister of the Crown to shoot off his mouth in this way is, to say the least, discouraging to Saanich," said Mayor Curtis.

"It's an ill-informed half-truth and on the very touchy subject of sewage, the health minister, of all ministers, should know his facts in complete detail before he gives public statements so freely."

APPROVAL NOT ASKED

Mr. Loffmark said Friday that Saanich council has not asked for health department approval as required by the provincial Health Act and that the "law is clear that these things cannot be done legally until they have my approval."

He also said that every sewer bylaw put to a vote must have a preamble that the health department certificate has been obtained.

At public meetings and elsewhere, Saanich spokesmen have said the vote is concerned only with creating one sewage collection system. Additional disposal, by whatever method, resulting from future expansion of the system will require approval from the B.C. Pollution Control Board and the B.C. health department, they have said.

COVERED BY LAW

Mayor Curtis said that the authority for the Saanich bylaw is contained in two pieces of enabling legislation, one passed by the legislature in 1967 and the other in 1968 "and Loffmark is a member of the House."

"Saanich knows very well the procedure it has to follow both before the enterprise vote and subsequent to that in the construction of new sewer extensions," he said, recalling that they were pointed out as recently as a public meeting last Tuesday night.

He said Mr. Loffmark has shown that he "simply doesn't understand" the purpose of the Saanich vote in spite of the fact that copies of the bylaw and supporting material have been left with him.

"His glossing-over of the Saanich issue is harming the bylaw in Saanich and to no useful purpose," he said.

The proposal going before Saanich ratepayers Sept. 28 is for creation of a single sewer area, called a sewer enterprise, with a common charge per property for the service.

The enterprise would replace the present half-dozen individual sewer areas and 45 different rate structures. To this would be added an adjacent area which Saanich will sewer in the next five years.

Approval of the enterprise would facilitate expansion of sewer services and provide a fair distribution of costs, Saanich officials have explained.

Mistreatment Charges Dismissed

SPCA charges that 11 horses kept at Long Beach and rented out for trail rides had been mistreated were dismissed Friday by Magistrate Ian McLorie of Tofino.

The dismissal will be appealed, SPCA spokesman Fred Straman of Port Alberni said today.

Charges were laid after an American tourist told the SPCA that the horses, belonging to Corrie Vis of Port Alberni, were suffering from lack of food, water and shelter.

The society took the horses to Port Alberni where they were stabled, fed and given veterinary treatment.

Magistrate McLorie said today the prosecution left him no alternative but to dismiss the case heard at Ucluelet.

"In my opinion, the SPCA failed to prove that the horses were not fed, not watered or not sheltered," he said. Mr. Straman said the SPCA had 30 days in which to begin an appeal.

Curtis Opposes Merger

By ROGER STONEBANKS

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich disagreed today with municipal assistant planner, Keith Birch, that amalgamation — directly or indirectly — will come to Greater Victoria municipalities within 10 years.

The mayor promised firm resistance to any such merger.

Mayor Curtis said local autonomy will remain where it works best and regional authority will operate where it works best. An example of the latter was trunk sewers.

"Amalgamation in an extinct word," he said. "It is really only raised by those not familiar with the regional process now proceeding in B.C."

It was essential to leave power with individual municipal councils because one large amalgamated area can result in difficulties for residents in getting in touch with elected officials.

"Where you have regional problems you solve them on a regional basis," he said.

'Some Strides Overlooked'

"I think in some of his comments Mr. Birch has overlooked some of the strides made on regionalization and the close co-operation that there is by elected and appointed people in the various municipalities.

He noted that regional government has grown since the last time Saanich voters turned down amalgamation with Victoria some years ago.

"There is no question of it that regionalization will continue to grow and expand and this is a good thing where the regional approach is the correct approach," he said.

He supported bringing the Capital Region Planning Board under the regional district umbrella but did not think that local municipal planning should follow the same course because it was not in the interests of the various municipalities.

Mayor Curtis said Saanich and Victoria planning departments work closely together and if they didn't he would make strong objections.

The McRae Estate was purchased by Saanich which is also building recreational facilities and both took account of needs and services beyond Saanich boundaries.

He said he will "firmly resist" amalgamation of fire and police departments in Greater Victoria.

There was good co-operation in both protections — a fire at the University of Victoria will see Oak Bay and Saanich departments called; Victoria was at the Mount Douglas fire in Saanich; and Saanich was at the Government House fire in Victoria.

Police, Fire Can't Be Improved

The "first-class" police department could not be improved by amalgamation with a larger force. There was co-operation and free exchange of information and this was essential.

Mr. Birch said the necessity for total area planning will bring the amalgamation of the four main municipalities.

"You can't plan in isolation," he said.

"You have to plan in a total invironment, not a pocket. You can't stop your thinking at a municipal border.

"I don't know how soon it will come. Soon, I hope. But I think in 10 years' time we may wake up and find we have amalgamation in practice if not in theory."

Mr. Bich, who is leaving Saanich at the end of September to return to England, said amalgamation can come in two ways: The provincial government may force the issue or it could be voluntary.

He pointed out that Alberni and Port Alberni merged voluntarily and that in Burnaby, Mayor Emmott was proposing amalgamation with Vancouver.

In Greater Victoria, however, "the time is not ripe for it to happen politically right now."

He said all phases of all municipalities have to be looked at and consideration given to the total development of the community in the future.

He believed the regional district may take on more and more authority, gradually acquiring the necessary functions to plan on a metropolitan basis.

He pointed to the Simpsons-Sears Hillside shopping centre in Victoria as having a tremendous influence on nearby areas of Saanich just from changing traffic patterns.

Suburban sprawl, rapid population increases and higher-density accommodation were all problems which must be considered on an area basis.

"We're part of Greater Victoria and some of these areas are being planned to service a metro area without metro-wide studies," he said.

Sewered Land Shortage Hits Program

The shortage of sewered land is hitting a $700,000 Saanich low-rental housing scheme which is unique in British Columbia.

The federal-provincial-municipal scheme, initiated by Saanich and paid for by the senior governments, calls for acquisition of 50 older homes in different areas and renting them at economic rates.

Final approval came last September and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation, a federal agency, has been handling details.

COSTS TOO HIGH

Ald. Edith Gunning, driving force behind the plan when she was chairman of the health and welfare committee in 1966 and 1967, said the 50 houses have not yet been acquired because of the spiralling cost of houses and the restriction that the houses must be on a sewer.

She also said Saanich cannot take advantage of land assembly schemes through CMHC because of the shortage of sewered land. The existing sewage collection system cannot be expanded to cover a large enough area for land assembly.

Ratepayers are being asked Sept. 28 to approve a single sewage collection system which would extend sewers to adjacent unsewered land in five years.

The unique aspect of the low-rental scheme is that it seeks to scatter the houses in different areas rather than bunch low-income people in a single ghetto-like development.

HOT RETURN FROM STROLL

When Trevor Digby, his wife, four children and a dog returned from a stroll around Sidney Island, they found their 25-foot $6,000 cabin cruiser Glen L. burned to the waterline.

Mr. Digby, 3099 Gibbons Road, Duncan, today said "It was quite a shock."

Friendly passers-by took Mr. Digby to Sidney where he got another boat to rescue his wife, four children and dog.

Sidney RCMP report the vessel a complete loss and are investigating, though foul play is not suspected. No one was injured in the accident. The vessel was insured.

20,000 Honor Parole

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Canada's parole system is 90 per cent successful.

Of 22,000 persons paroled from prison since 1959, only 2,400 have returned, says T. George Street, Q.C., chairman of National Parole Board in Ottawa.

Visiting Victoria today, Mr. Street said 1,852 were paroled in 1964 compared with 3,086 in 1967.

"In spite of this increase in numbers, the success rate has been high. Ninety per cent have completed their parole without committing any offence or causing any trouble.

"It is also significant that most people on parole are working."

Mr. Street says employers are less prejudiced against people who have been in jail than they used to be.

"The public has realized that, if you don't give a man a chance to work, he will drift back to crime."

The conditions of parole are variable and are tailored to suit the persons concerned.

If a man has a drink problem, he is required not to enter licenced premises or take drink home during his term of parole.

Mr. Street visited the minimum security institution at William Head Friday and revealed that 19 of its inmates are in school improving their grades.

"The average educational level of inmates is Grade Six," he said. "They rarely reach Grade 12."

OUT WITH ENGLISH and in with French is the cry of students who barricaded themselves inside Montreal's Aime Renaud high school. Supported by picketing parents, teachers and separatists, they are protesting a decision to have English only taught in the school. See story on Page 3.

Russians Purge Czech Reformers

Romania Invasion Feared

BUCHAREST (AP) — Western diplomats and Romanian travellers reported a growing number of Soviet and Bulgarian troops near Romania's borders Friday, rousing fears the Soviet Union might be planning another invasion of a Warsaw pact ally.

In San Antonio, Tex., President Johnson said in a speech there were rumors that the Soviet invasion of Czechoslovakia might be repeated elsewhere in Eastern Europe and a White House aide said such reports had created anxiety.

Johnson did not mention Romania by name, but reports of a threat to Bucharest, which defied the Soviet Union's campaign to silence Czechoslovak liberalism, have been coming in from many sources.

"We don't know what to make of it," said one Western diplomat. "It might be the real thing or it might be just another move in a war of nerves."

SEE RUSSIAN TROOPS

A group of Romanians returning from a visit to the Ukraine, said they had seen Soviet troops headed toward Romania.

"The roads leading up to the border were clogged with troops heading west," one traveller said.

Long columns of Soviet tanks and artillery were near the Prut River, which forms the border between Romania and the Soviet Union in the east, another said.

Other travellers who crossed into Romania at Albita, said Soviet armor, personnel carriers and guns were massed near the Ukrainian town of Kotovskoje.

Romanian government officials declined comment.

The Soviet press labelled the reports as "provocation".

PRECAUTIONS REMAIN

But Romanian military and internal security precautions, set up after the Soviet Union, Poland, East Germany, Hungary and Bulgaria invaded Czechoslovakia Aug. 20, remain in effect.

Informed sources said the Romanian Army was on a state of semi-alert with all reserve officers and 60 per cent of other reserve personnel on active duty.

President Nicolae Ceausescu, in a speech at Cluj, repeated his call for an early withdrawal of Warsaw pact troops from Czechoslovakia.

Continuing his defiance of Moscow, he said: "The word freedom can be said in many languages, but it has the same meaning for all people. Equality among men; among nations. What is understood is that people must be able to be fully equal, have the right to express their opinion, be able to take part in the guiding of society in accordance with their capability and knowledge."

Soviet troops in the border area has been estimated at between 15 and 27 divisions of armor and motorized infantry.

Woman's Organs Dispersed

HOUSTON (UPI) Five Methodist hospital operating teams directed by Dr. Michael E. Debakey transplanted the heart and three other organs of a woman into four different recipients today in an unprecedented surgical project.

Her eye corneas were removed and placed in an eye bank for possible use later.

GUNSHOT WOUND

The donor of the heart, two kidneys and a lung was Mrs. Nelva Lou Hernandez, 20, who died of a gunshot wound in the head.

She was first treated at St. Joseph's Hospital and then was transferred to Methodist, where she died as doctors prepared the recipients.

- Her heart was given to William C. Carrol of Scottsdale, Ariz.
- Her lung was given to William J. Whaley, 39, of Fort Lauderdale, Fla.
- One kidney was given to William C. Kaiser, 41, of Odessa, Tex. The other went to Thomas A. Stevenson, 22, of Houston.

The patients were reported in satisfactory condition.

The multiple transplants were parts of a program at Baylor University College of Medicine aimed at using as many donor organs as feasible.

The lung transplant was the first at Methodist, which is in the Texas Medical Centre, professional home also of Dr. Denton A. Cooley, the world's busiest and most successful heart transplant doctor.

Invaders Tighten Grip on Country

Times News Services

PRAGUE — Liberals who controlled information, education and the secret police were reported on their way out today in a shuffle to make Czechoslovakia's Communist government more acceptable to Moscow.

Associated Press correspondent Carl Hartman reported that Soviet security men had moved behind the scenes to tighten the Russian grip on the country occupied 10 days ago by 350,000 Soviet-bloc troops.

Reuters correspondent Lionel Walsh said the Czechoslovak central committee scheduled a meeting today to elect a new 11-man presidium that would include pro-Soviet hard-liners.

Hartman wrote that the Russians were reported putting their own experts in all ministries and into the Czechoslovak Communist party's central committee building.

The Soviet press reported resistance to occupation troops in the countryside and said: "The struggle is far from being over."

(Meanwhile, in Moscow the Soviet Communist party newspaper Pravda called for the "liquidation" of resistance groups in Czechoslovakia, which are said to have more than 40,000 members.

("Liquidation" in Russia does not necessarily mean killing, though the world came to think of it this way during the Stalin era.

(As used by Pravda today, it apparently amounted to a demand to break up the resistance groups, without a clear indication of what punishment should be handed out to their members.

(In a report from Prague, Pravda said the Czechoslovak people's militia should give a rebuff "to the counter-revolutionary scum.")

The main figure reported on the way out in Premier Oldrich Cernik's government shuffle was Interior Minister Josef Pavel. Under him, the secret police had stayed in the background since Communist party chief Alexander Dubcek began in January leading the nation away from 20 years of Stalinist rule.

There were reports, but no official confirmation, that Pavel already had resigned.

Soviet soldiers guarded his ministry and he has not been in his office for 10 days, although he still attends cabinet meetings.

Information Minister Miroslav Galuska, Education Minister Vladimir Kadlec and Cestmir Cisar, the Communist party presidium member in charge of the press, also were reported likely to lose their jobs. Cisar has been in hiding.

There was some doubt whether Deputy Premier Ota Sik, Dubcek's planner of economic reforms, and Foreign Minister Jiri Hajek would return to Czechoslovakia from Yugoslavia. Both were abroad when the Soviet troops invaded.

The entry of Russian experts into key positions came despite the accord worked out in Moscow. That provided the occupation troops would leave Czechoslovakia when the situation "normalizes" and would not interfere in the country's internal affairs.

The Czechoslovak government has been going ahead with another part of the accord—reimposition of press censorship. The government said Friday night that censors will start work immediately on Czechoslovak newspapers and broadcasts.

Journalists and broadcasters have been operating clandestinely to put out uncensored news.

Dubcek, who has spent several days trying to convince his own progressive supporters to bow with him to the will of the Kremlin, was authoritatively reported to have called the old party central committee into session rather than the all-progressive one elected secretly last week.

PURGED COMMITTEE

During the first week of the Soviet invasion, a secret 14th party congress was held on a factory floor while Dubcek and other leaders were negotiating in Moscow for the withdrawal of Russian troops. This congress purged the central committee of all pro-Soviet hard-liners.

By calling the old central committee into session, Dubcek was seen as giving tacit acknowledgement to the Russian claim that the 14th congress purge was illegal.

Dubcek and his colleagues are convinced that only the return

Trudeau Sees More Cutbacks

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA—Prime Minister Trudeau said Friday there would be more spending cuts in government programs to help bring the budget into balance and to liberate funds for new and more productive program.

He had already announced that the government would drop the winter works program, introduced by the Diefenbaker government to reduce winter unemployment and continued from year to year under Prime Minister Pearson.

Thursday the government announced cancellation of the $22 million Queen Elizabeth observatory on Mount Kobau in B.C.

New cuts would come after cabinet approval, Mr. Trudeau said.

He gave no indication of the programs to be affected by further cuts but said they would be meant "to hurt some ministers and some departments."

Mr. Trudeau said this was necessary to make sure the cuts were not "just sham ones" and to convince ministers and their departments that new programs would be possible only if less productive ones were cut out.

"The purpose of them is to balance the budget as closely as we can this year," the prime minister said.

On other topics covered at his press conference Mr. Trudeau said:

Dates have been set, "not in the very distant future," for meetings with business and labor to discuss means of restraining wages and prices on which a government white paper is to be tabled at the coming session of Parliament.

Mr. Trudeau said that further consultations would come after the white paper.

Limited means of action, the prime minister said, made the problem very difficult for the federal government.

Dance Riot Injures 12 Policemen

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — Twelve policemen were injured, one by a gunshot, some young people and two newsmen hurt, in a five-hour flareup of violence late Friday and early today.

The violence broke out at a "soul music" dance and spread to the city Negro district.

Eleven policeman and some young people were injured when youths hurled rocks and bottles at the police. None was reported seriously injured.

Police patrolman Arnold Westphal, 54, was taken to hospital where he was described in "good condition with a bullet wound in his left shoulder."

The troubles began in the downtown St. Paul City Auditorium.

WAVED PISTOL

Two off-duty patrolmen at the concert were informed that a youth was waving a pistol around in the men's washroom.

The officers found the youth and disarmed him. Several youths attempted to attack the officers, who held them off at gunpoint.

Patrolman Gen Gordon said at least "eight to 10 shots were fired at us."

Patrolman T. F. Owens said two newsmen were injured, not seriously.

ISLAND ARMED HOLDUP NETS BANDITS $15,000

PORT McNEILL — Two armed holdup men are being sought in northern Vancouver Island after the wilderness holdup of a bank teller Friday.

The two men escaped with an estimated $15,000 from the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce here, after overpowering a teller, RCMP said.

A search by the five-man Port Hardy detachment is being conducted by air, water and on the only road in the region.

The robbery was discovered about 3:15 p.m. when a passing driver found the teller, Gerald William Underdown, bound in the seat of his car.

Underdown was heading for the Kokish camp of the Crown Zellerback Company, on Beaver Cove, police said. The money was for a pay office run by the bank to cash month-end payroll cheques for camp employees.

Underdown was driving from the bank to the camp to open the office.

One of the holdup men flagged his car to a halt on the deserted road about six miles south of Port McNeill, sometime between 2:30 p.m. and 3:15 p.m. The second man appeared and Underdown was overpowered.

The men were armed with handguns, police said.

They drove the teller's car up the road — a private paved route which is the only main road in the area — and went up a sideroad.

Underdown was left tied up in his car while the two men made their escape. Police said they did not know if the escape was made by road — no car was seen.

PATROL BOATS

An officer of the detachment said the men may have left the holdup scene "by car or by boat."

Police said they were working on several possibilities as to where the two may have gone, but would release no further information.

The Port Hardy detachment is equipped with aircraft and three patrol boats. All will be used in the search.

Port McNeill is about 250 miles northwest of Victoria and accessible only by water or air. Port Hardy — the base for RCMP activities — is another 30 miles northwest. The holdup occurred about six miles southeast of Port McNeill.

Canadian Father of Five Awakes With New Heart

MONTREAL (CP) — Elie Zaor, Canada's newest heart transplant, was reported recuperating normally eight hours after receiving a new heart at the Montreal Heart Institute.

In a bulletin issued shortly after 10 a.m. today, an institute spokesman said the father of five had regained consciousness and that the transplanted heart "maintains, on its own, excellent blood pressure and circulation."

"Mr. Zaor's immediate post-operative evolution is satisfactory," a spokesman added.

Mr. Zaor, a 58-year-old native of Turkey and resident of Sherbrooke, Que., received his new heart Friday night from Aime Lamothe, 35, a welder from Sorel, Que., who died from a cerebral hemorrhage.

Dr. Pierre Grondin, head of the surgical team that performed all three heart transplants in Canada, said immediately after the operation that "the heart took over in a beautiful fashion."

Dr. Grondin told reporters Mr. Lamothe's hemorrhage was caused by "severe hyper-tension" that was "secondary" to a kidney ailment dating back several years.

Mr. Zaor had suffered three heart attacks—in 1947, 1955 and last Aug. 20.

Employed by Dominion Textiles in Sherbrooke, Mr. Zaor has been an invalid since May.

ARTERIES BLOCKED

"He is also suffering from a valvular disease," Dr. Paul David, the institute's executive director, said in announcing the start of the operation about 8 p.m. EDT.

"Two of his three coronary arteries are obstructed and the third is almost blocked."

The heart needed only one electrical shock to start beating on its own after it was inserted in Mr. Zaor's chest cavity about 11:07.
